SENATE VOTES LARGE INCREASE ON INCOME TAXES

Adopts Surtax Schedule, Ranging from 1 Per Cent. on $5,000 to 50 Per Cent. on $500,000.

WAR PROFITS TO COME NEXT

Gerry Amendment Wins 74 to 0, Forecasting Heavier Imposts on Corporate Incomes.

LODGE URGES MODERATION

Finance Committee's Schedules Shattered—Party Lines Obliterated on Several Roll Calls.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Advocates of a higher war tax upon wealth won their preliminary skirmish in the Senate today, when the entire levy upon incomes as formulated by the Finance Committee in the War Revenue bill was thrown out and higher rates substituted for it. The defeat of the Finance Committee's levy was achieved by a vote of 35 to 31, partisan alignment being disregarded.

Having won a victory in the income tax fight, proponents of higher rates will press their advantage in an effort, before the week is over, to increase the tax upon war profits of corporations, and judging from the way the Senate lined up today they will win.

The vote today came as an utter rout to the Finance Committee's carefully adjusted income tax schedule. Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Finance Committee, after finding, upon two votes, that the Senate was opposed to the committee's levy, announced that he would not ask a roll call on other features of the income tax section, and the Senate within half an hour had overturned the entire scheme.

The Senate action in recasting the income tax section embraced:

1. Acceptance of the original graduated tax, running from 1 per cent. on incomes between $5,000 and $7,500 up to a 10 per cent. tax on incomes between $40,000 and $60,000.

2. Restoring the Lenroot amendment, passed by the House and discarded by the Senate Finance Committee, providing a graduated tax running from 13 75-100 on incomes between $60,000 and $80,000 up to a tax of 37 5-10 per cent. upon incomes between [illegible] and $500,000.

3. Adoption of an amendment by Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, providing for a tax of from 35 to 50 per cent. on incomes running from $500,000 up.

As the War Revenue bill eventually will be passed by the Senate, it is now expected that approximately $2,250,000,000 will be applied to incomes and excess war profits instead of $1,339,700,000 provided in the bill as reported by the Finance Committee.

Add $75,000,000 Income Tax.

Through the increased tax put upon incomes today, $75,000,000 is added to the bill, making an aggregate yield from that source, as the measure now stands, of $850,000,000. The aggregate of the entire bill is now raised from $2,006,970,000 to $2,084,970,000. The Senate, while adding $75,000,000 today, struck out, last week, $12,000,000 in stamp and parcel post taxes.

The Senate vote that upset the work of the Finance Committee on income taxes came after an amendment offered by Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, had been carried, 74 to 0, raising the tax upon incomes in excess of $500,000. This amendment had the approval of the majority of the Finance Committee, which, convinced that a larger tax probably would be insisted upon by the Senate on big incomes, decided to test the issue by having a vote on the Gerry measure.

Senator Gerry's amendment provided for a tax of 35 per cent. on incomes exceeding $500,000 and not exceeding $750,000; a tax of 45 per cent. upon incomes exceeding $750,000 and not over $1,000,000, and a tax of 50 per cent. upon incomes over $1,000,000, these taxes to be applied in addition to those imposed under existing laws. The Finance Committee's tax, as put in the bill, was 33 per cent. flat for all incomes above $500,000.

Senator Lodge urged that the Senate go slow in levying too heavy a tax upon individual incomes, arguing that higher taxes must be applied later on, and that the Senate must not exhaust its revenue-producing reservoirs.

Senator Lodge pointed out that about 30 per cent. of civil war expenses were paid by taxation and that Great Britain had raised only 24.3 per cent. of her total war expenditures to date by taxes.

Peace on the status before the war was opposed by Senator Lodge, who declared that the United States was fighting for its own safety and independence.

"We can have no peace without complete victory," he added. "I don't believe a German victory is possible, for it would make this world a place not worthy of living in."

In the course of the debate Senator Lewis of Illinois charged that the Government had been defrauded out of $300,000,000 in income taxes.

"There has been inconceivably ingenious lying on the income tax schedules before the Finance Committee that would in other forums subject those responsible to perjury," said he. "In the Treasury Department at this hour is proof of $300,000,000 swindled out of the Government by fraud, perjury, deception, and other different forms of commercial trickery on the income tax returns. If it had not been for a cer-

Sinkings by U-Boats Increase from 16 to 18

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The number of British merchantmen sunk by submarines or mines in the last week was only slightly larger than the previous week, when a considerable falling off was noted. According to the official statement fifteen vessels of more than 1,600 tons were sunk, and three vessels of less than 1,600 tons, in addition to two fishing vessels, as compared with fourteen large vessels the previous week, two small vessels, and three fishermen. The Admiralty statement says:

NAVY WORKMEN PLEDGE LOYALTY

7,000 at League Island Sign Resolution Which Is Presented to Daniels.

HE WEEPS AS HE REPLIES

Conference with Mediators On Here—Hope Philadelphia's Example Will Be Felt.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—A striking pledge of loyalty and unified support of the Government in its war preparations was given today by the workmen of the great navy yard at Philadelphia. In the face of strikes and threatened strikes at other yards engaged in the construction of needed warships a committee representing the employes of the League Island Yard called on Secretary Daniels and presented to him resolutions signed by the 7,000 mechanics and other civilian employes there pledging their services to the Government and criticising all manifestations of labor disloyalty.

Secretary Daniels was visibly affected by this action and by the statements made by members of the committtee that they would stand by the Government. The action taken by the workmen at Philadelphia was not planned as a protest against that of the strikers who are holding up Government work at New York, but prediction was made that it would serve as a wholesome object lesson for all laborers engaged in work for the Government in its war preparations.

The committee which called on Secretary Daniels included Harvey A. Zahn, master electrician; Thomas O'Connor, master boilermaker; James J. Mullen, electrical machinist; Elmer A. Dean, assistant shop Superintendent; Jean O'Brien, toolmaker; Bert Crowley shipfitter; John J. Kehoe, leading machinist; George Powers, and William Crimbing, machinists. They were accompanied by Michael Francis Doyle of Philadelphia.

Text of Loyalty Resolutions.

The resolutions presented, signed by the 7,000 employes, read:

We, the undersigned, mechanics and civilian employes of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, as loyal and patriotic American citizens, desire by this means to express to you our pledge of earnest co-operation with all the plans which you and the Navy Department have made in this great national emergency. We desire by our example to stimulate all others to the fullest performance of their duty to the country at this time. We promise to stand by you shoulder to shoulder in carrying out measures for the development of our navy, and particularly for the betterment of this navy yard. We promise to notify our superiors of any indication of disloyalty on the part of any employe working for the Government. We promise to maintain the reputation of Philadelphia as the centre of the best mechanics in America, so that the work entrusted to us cannot be bettered in any part of the world.

We have watched with pride the growth and expansion of our navy yard, and we believe that it is largely due to your confidence in the men who are engaged here. You have done more for the Philadelphia Navy Yard than any of your predecessors, and we give you credit for the great work you have formulated and accomplished. No Secretary of the Navy has been fairer to mechanics and civil employes than you have been, and we take especial pride in assisting you in the development of your plans.

We have noted your efforts to make the environments of the Philadelphia Navy Yard a fit place for the young men who are sent here for preparatory training in the navy, and we desire to express our warmest approval of your action in this regard. We stand behind you as one man on the high moral plane which you have taken and tender you our earnest assistance and help in eradicating vice in every form, so that those who may be sent to Philadelphia will not be affected by their residence here.

With the fullest confidence that our country is in the right in this war, and relying on the wisdom of President Wilson, we earnestly pray for a speedy success for our cause and we pledge you, by our work, to do our full share toward the victory which ultimately will be ours.

Daniels Is Moved to Tears.

Secretary Daniels expressed his deep appreciation of the action taken by the League Island employes. Several times in the course of his speech of reply there were tears in his eyes.

"In this crisis," said Mr. Daniels to

PRESIDENT PLANS TO FIX COST OF ALL WAR ESSENTIALS

Begins Mapping a Sweeping Program at 3-Hour Conference with Trade Board.

TO TAKE UP STEEL NEXT

Different Prices at Different Mills on Basis of Expense Plus a Fair Profit.

COAL MEN DISAPPOINTED

Expected to Get a Better Price—Call Convention of Trade for Next Wednesday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—For three hours today President Wilson was in conference with the members of the Federal Trade Commission preparatory to the inauguration of a comprehensive program of price fixing which will affect the industries producing and manufacturing practically every wartime commodity listed under the term "essential."

With the machinery for the control of the bituminous coal situation in motion, as a result of the prices announced yesterday, the President sought all of the facts concerning production costs of steel, copper, oil, lumber, iron, and other materials.

While no official announcement was made, it can be said that in controlling the prices of commodities such as coal, coke, and fuel oils, over which the Food Control bill gives him full authority, the President is determined upon a course which will make mandatory a single price for the Government and the consuming public.

The object which the President has before him at all times is the lowering of prices to the ultimate consumer, and in this direction it can be said that he will with little delay take up the matter of anthracite coal, which is used in households throughout the country. It is his idea, it is said, to put into effect a mandatory program which within a reasonably short time will control costs at the mine and the profits which jobbers, wholesalers and retail dealers may obtain.

Insists Upon One Price for All.

In connection with commodities other than foods and fuels, the President may consider, first, the Government demands and make provisions to force the industries to provide the Government under the National Defense act with the supplies it needs at a price determined on the basis of production cost plus a reasonable profit.

He hopes that this price will become effective shortly also for the Allies and the consuming public, and that the industries will voluntarily furnish supplies at the Government prices to all or will be compelled to do so by the force of public opinion.

In this direction there will be a widespread campaign of education in prices, to which the President may add his beliefs as to the attitude Big Business should assume in this time of national stress.

Prices on which the Government decides as "fair and stimulating," it is reported, will be announced to the country. If industries hold out in their dealing with the public, and a drop in prices does not come, more drastic means may be sought.

It was reported today that the first effort in this direction, affecting a commodity which the Government has not the legal power to obtain for the public at a price parallel to that paid by the Government for its war-time needs, will be in the matter of steel. The President, it is said, has received a fairly complete report of production costs from the Trade Commission, and will act within a few days.

Different Mills, Different Prices.

The investigation of steel production, it was reported, showed such a variety of costs that a single price to cover all of the manufacturers was found to be impracticable. It is probable, therefore, that a scale of prices for different plants will be established on somewhat the same plan as that announced in connection with the coal fields. Government orders will then be placed on the basis of the production cost of the plant involved in the order plus a reasonable margin of profit. It is the hope of the Government that the price thus fixed for a plant will be accepted by it for other than Government orders, without forcing the Government to seek legislation to make such an agreement mandatory.

This, at least, is one of the plans under consideration by the Government to cope with the steel situation, and, if finally adopted by the President, may be extended to producers of other commodities not under legal control.

At the conference at the Trade Commission offices today the President called in David Wing, coal expert; F. W. Walker, steel expert, and L. H. Haney, expert on copper, oil, and lumber. He seemed satisfied with the progress made.

The activity of the President caused endless speculation, and representatives of the interests involved were "on the anxious seat" pending an official announcement. The President kept his own counsel and expressed to no one a definite opinion on the decision he shortly will make. It is said that he did not consult with members of the War Industries Board prior to his visit to the Trade Commission, although that body will be one of his principal instruments in carrying forward the campaign for universal prices on broad lines.

Coal Operators Disappointed.

The agitation of the representatives of the coal interests who were in Washington over the prices for bituminous coal which the President announced yesterday was obvious. It was reported that a careful scanning of the schedule left them in a somewhat unhappy frame of mind, as most of the operators had believed that prices would be, under no conisderation, beneath the $2.335 a ton at the mouth of the mine, named by the Navy Department, in obtaining its supplies. The President, it is felt here, is satisfied that the prices he named will remain as permanent prices, or at least that there will be no tendency upward.

Some of the coal men hinted that the President's statement on price fixing had left them in a position where they did not know just what step would be taken next, a position in which it was

Call for Japan's Troops on the Russian Front

PARIS, Aug. 22.—The Figaro today asks if the moment has not arrived for Japan to take further steps in the war.

The article describes Japan as having argued hitherto that as an essential Asiatic power it was her duty to reserve all her force for her future mission to Asia. It says that this situation has been changed by China's entry into the war, and that Japan, therefore, should send soldiers and artillery to Russia's aid, all the more so because New Russia has forsworn ideas of expansion or conquest.

The Petit Journal, in an editorial along the same lines, says the military reserves of all the Entente Powers should be used prudently. It adds that never will the Japanese troops be more needed on the Russian front than they are today.

TEUTONS DIVIDED ON POPE'S OFFER

Michaelis Announces Failure to Hasten a Decision on the Joint Reply.

AUSTRIA FOR ACCEPTANCE

Germany Reported to be for Conditional Assent, While Bulgaria Presses Demands.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Fragmentary reports have been received here from the Continent of the speech of Chancellor Michaelis to the Reichstag Main Committee yesterday, in which he discussed some aspects of the Pope's peace proposals. A wireless dispatch from Berne says:

"In diplomatic circles the passage in the speech of Dr. Michaelis, in which he said: 'Notwithstanding efforts to hasten a decision, it has not yet been possible for Germany to agree with her allies concerning a joint reply to the Papal note,' is interpreted as indicating a difference of opinion between Berlin and Vienna and also between Vienna and Sofia. Austria, according to reports, desires complete acceptance of the Papal note, while Germany wishes only conditional acceptance, and Bulgaria demands public assurances by her allies that she may annex the territories now occupied by her."

"Impossible" to Make German Offer.

A dispatch received in Copenhagen from Berlin quotes the address delivered by Dr. Michaelis in part as follows:

"It is easily understood, in view of the attitude of our enemies, that the German press maintains that it is impossible for us to make fresh peace proposals."

The Chancellor here quoted an article printed in the Berlin Vorwärts, the Socialist organ, to the effect that responsibility for the prolongation of the war rested upon the Allies and that for Germany there was only one alternative, "to defend ourselves and our kin."

"I think," the Chancellor continued, "this is the general feeling of our people. It is in such a situation as this that I now submit to you the peace proposal contained in the Pope's note. The contents of the note, I believe, are known to all of you.

"The fundamental ideas advanced in the note correspond with the position which the Pope takes up in accordance with his personality and his charge as head of the Catholic Christendom. The Pope places in the foreground his conviction that the moral force of right should replace the material force of arms. On this foundation he develops his proposals for arbitration and disarmament.

"I cannot take up any definite position regarding the material tenor of the proposals or go into any details concerning them until an agreement is reached with our allies."

Chancellor Is Sympathetic.

"It is only possible for me to explain my views in general terms, and I might do this in two directions. I oppose the opinion that the Pope's proposal was inspired by the Central Powers. It was due to the spontaneous decision of the head of the Catholic Church.

"If I must speak with reserve with regard to details, I can say that it corresponds generally to our own expressed attitude. We are sympathetic to every attempt to inspire the thought of peace among the war-weary people and we especially greet the move of the Pope which, in my opinion, was based on an earnest desire for impartiality and justice. I sum up in this way:

"The note was not initiated by us, but was advanced on the spontaneous initiative of the Pope. We greet with sympathy the Pope's efforts to make, by a durable peace, an end of the war of peoples.

"Regarding the answer to the note, we are communicating with our allies, but the negotiations have not yet been concluded. For the present I am unable to enter upon a closer discussion of the material points, but I am ready to discuss the matter further with the committee until the answer is ready. I express the hope that common labor will bring us nearer the realization of what all desire—an honorable peace for the Fatherland."

Reichstag Members Encouraged.

A Copenhagen dispatch says that Socialist speakers who followed the Chancellor said they welcomed the Pope's action as they would welcome any step capable of bringing peace, and all the more because it was expected to bear results. The Liberals declared themselves in agreement with the Chancellor's sympathetic interpretation of the Pope's action. The Centrists associated themselves with the Chancellor's remarks, and said the Pope's proposals marked extraordinarily valuable progress toward peace, which was so ar-

GERMANS BEGIN DRIVE TOWARD RIGA; RUSSIAN NEWS WORRIES WASHINGTON; HAIG THRUSTS AGAIN EAST OF YPRES

BRITISH GAIN ON WIDE FRONT

Capture Important Strategic Positions on Ypres-Menin Road.

ALSO ADVANCE TO THE NORTH

And Penetrate German Trenches Half a Mile on a Two-and-a-Half-Mile Front.

CANADIANS FIRM AT LENS

They Repulse All Counterattacks and Have Taken 1,378 Prisoners in a Week.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The British troops, attacking fiercely again today, have captured important strategic positions for a mile along the Ypres-Menin road, to a depth of nearly a third of a mile, and further to the north have carried forward their lines about half a mile over a front of two and a half miles.

The fighting, according to the official report from British Headquarters tonight, was of the most desperate nature, the prisoners taken bearing a small ratio to the losses inflicted on the Germans.

The statement reads:

Successful operations were undertaken by our troops this morning to the east and northeast of Ypres for the capture of a series of strong points and fortified farms lying a few hundred yards in front of our positions, astride the Ypres-Menin road and between the Ypres-Roulers Railway and Langemarck.

Bitter fighting has taken place at all points. The enemy again launched repeated counterattacks, which suffered heavy losses from our artillery and machine gun fire.

The struggle was particularly fierce in the neighborhood of the Ypres-Menin road, where the enemy fought desperately to retain command of the high ground. Here our line has been advanced to a depth of about 500 yards on a front of about a mile.

A position giving important observation to the eastward was captured by us, and our troops established themselves in the western portion of Inverness Copse. Further north our line has been carried forward on a front of two and a half miles to a greatest depth of over half a mile.

British Take Fewer Prisoners.

In these operations we captured over 250 prisoners, but by reason of the obstinate nature of the fighting the prisoners taken bear a more than usually small proportion to the total losses inflicted on the enemy. The number of prisoners taken by us in the course of yesterday's fighting in the neighborhood of Lens is 194, bringing the total in this neighborhood since the morning of August 15th to 1,378. In the same period we also captured in this area thirty-four machine guns and twenty-one trench mortars, so far counted.

In the face of heavy Germany counterattacks the British have maintained the newly-gained positions on the outskirts of Lens, and have made further progress at some points. These developments are chronicled in the earlier official communication.

South and west of Lens the new positions captured by us yesterday morning on the outskirts of the town have been maintained, and further progress has been made at certain points. Northwest and north of Lens also, as a result of heavy fighting, in the course of which German counterattacks were repulsed by our rifle and machine gun fire or broken up by our artillery, some additional ground has been secured in advanced positions captured on the 15th. There has been great artillery activity during the night on both sides east and northeast of Ypres.

Fighting Near Hill 35.

The Associated Press correspondent at the British front in France and Belgium telegraphs the following:

"Once more the British attack against the German positions on the Langemarck-Frezenberg sector, northeast of Ypres, has resulted in an exceptionally bitter struggle. Since dawn, when the action began, it has fluctuated back and forth within the enemy territory with no less intensity than was witnessed in last Thursday's sanguinary conflict, which took place over much the same ground in the southern section of this battlefield.

At latest reports the British had forced their way to a considerable depth into the enemy defenses and had been fighting in the neighborhood of the ridge known as Hill 35, where the Irish troops made such a valiant stand against Crown Prince Rupprecht's Bavarians on Thursday, only to retire in the face of counterattacks from—an overwhelming number of troops.

"Further down, the British troops to the southeast of Ypres began a distinct local operation near the redoubtable Inverness Copse, which has seen so much hard fighting recently. Here also the Germans were making determined resistance. This elevation to some extent dominates the British line to

German Airmen Set Two Verdun Hospitals Afire, Then Kill Nurses and Wounded Men in Their Beds

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—About 10 o'clock Sunday evening two German aviators flew over two hospitals behind Verdun, which are joined by a wooden bridge over a road separating the buildings. Four incendiary bombs which were dropped set fire to three wooden wards which were crowded with wounded.

As the personnel were making an effort to save from the fire the survivors who had not been killed by the projectiles the German airmen returned and from a low altitude turned their machine guns on the men and nurses who were cutting the bridge to prevent the fire from spreading, killing seven and wounding twenty.

The Red Cross workers on the building could be plainly seen in the light made by the blazing fire, but the raiders returned for a third time and dropped bombs on and fired their machine guns at the hospitals. Seven wounded soldiers were killed in their beds. Two Red Cross nurses in the wards were killed.

Two other hospitals were similarly bombarded, making a number of victims. One camp where German prisoners were collected also was bombed and many Germans were injured.

HAIL VERDUN AS DOOMING GERMANS

French Believe New Successes There Are a Deadly Blow to Foe's Morale.

THEIR AIRMEN DOMINANT

Pilot Says They Have "Driven the Boche Artillery Observers Simply Off the Map."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Once more the magic word "Verdun" has thrilled the heart of Paris. "Victory at Verdun" is the headline of every newspaper in the city, the cry on every lip—Verdun, the city of destiny whose name is branded on the French soul by the six months' tragedy of fear and hope.

"A kilometer gained at Verdun, and 1,000 prisoners captured, is worth more than an advance of twenty kilometers elsewhere and the surrender of a whole German army corps," said a great French General last December, "both for its stimulating effect in France and the corresponding depression of German morale. Rightly or wrongly, Verdun has become a symbol, the gauge of battle, the body of Patroclus."

One may judge, then, the value of a Verdun victory in this fourth August of the war, when the "last quarter of an hour" is taking to utmost the spirit of the fighting nations—of France, that has bled and suffered; of Germany, shut in by a ring of steel, calling in vain for the peace she outraged three years ago so wantonly, with new foes arising on every side, and in her ears the myriad tread of American armies marching.

Military experts may talk of "the established equilibrium" and "the impregnable German line," but Bismarck knew better when he said it is the imponderable that counts in war—the evasive moral factor that plays havoc with a General's plans and sets at naught his calculations. The German leaders can stifle the news of American preparations, though each step forward we make adds force to the arms of our allies; they may deny the British gains in Flanders, belittle the Italian successes, and blind their subjects' eyes to the memory that even Napoleon found progress in Russia more fatal than death; but a French victory at Verdun they cannot hide, and the day may be not far distant when the mysterious equilibrium is suddenly upset, and the impregnable German line is not pierced, but falling before us, as fell the walls of Jericho.

"The New Battle of Verdun."

"The new Battle of Verdun"—the phrase used in announcing the start of the operations on the Meuse—emphasizes the fact that this is no isolated stroke, as when Nivelle reconquered the famous position the Crown Prince had sacrificed half a million lives to win, but the beginning of a substantial offensive, a new and terrible echo of the allied thunderbolts in Flanders. Today, when the French and British guns have resumed their hammering of the German line from the sea to St. Quentin, will not the news of Verdun kindle to a flame of spirit the waiting infantry and unnerve their battered opponents, keyed up only by desperation to resistance?

Paris is mute in her rejoicing, as she was mute in her agony and disaster. Too often her heart has been sickened by hope deferred or disappointed. But, although flags are not flying, and bells are not rung, one can trace through the press and the speech of the people a new note of confidence, born of the knowledge that the Allies have really started a combined offensive and thereby won successes that at last have a morrow of victory.

A Warning for America.

In the midst of his satisfaction at the news, a high Foreign Office functionary gave me a word of warning for America.

"Whatever happens later, even if our hopes seem about to be realized, let nothing relax American preparations. America is at once France's certainty and Germany's despair. The slackening of your efforts through any success of ours, even the suggestion of such slackening voiced in America, might turn the scale and renew the enemy's resistance should it come to waver. Today America represents the moral factor of supreme importance; let nothing be done to weaken its effects."

I had the good fortune to meet a young French airman from Verdun, sent with a comrade to fetch two of the newest battleplanes, so powerful and swift with their reduced wing area that none but a master pilot can handle them successfully. As an infantry Lieutenant my friend commanded a company in the Dead Man Hill sector in May of last year, and though he flew only an hour

AUSTRIAN LOSSES EXCEED 13,000 MEN

Italians Have Also Captured 30 Guns and Are Pushing Forward on Whole Front.

OTHER BOOTY IS LARGE

Air Mastery Enables Victors to Inflict Heavy Damage in Rear of Foe's Armies.

ROME, Aug. 22.—More than 13,000 Austro-Hungarian prisoners have been captured by the Italians in their offensive on the Isonzo front, the Italian War Department announced today. The Italians also have taken 30 guns.

General Cadorna reports new successes along the whole battle line. North of Gorizia the operations are proceeding regularly. To the south the struggle is localizing, especially on the Carso front. The statement reads:

Along the whole front the battle is raging without letup. North of Gorizia the operations are proceeding regularly and we are overcoming the resistance of the enemy and the difficulty of the ground.

To the south the struggle yesterday became localized, especially on the Carso.

Along the whole line of battle our troops have gained new successes and are overcoming the difficulties which give to every yard of ground won and held the importance of a conquered fortress.

Masters of the air over the battlefield, our airplanes bombarded troops and hutments in the Chiapovano Valley and along the eastern slopes of the Hermada, making the enemy suffer losses and causing conflagrations in his communication lines. The number of able-bodied prisoners captured is 311 officers and more than 13,000 men. Thirty guns, nearly all of medium calibre, have been taken. The other booty is large and is increasing in quantity.

On the Trentino and Carnia fronts the enemy yesterday again attempted small attacks, which everywhere were repulsed. In the Ledro Valley a bitter attack resulted, after a lively struggle, in failure for the enemy, who was put to flight. He left prisoners and material in our hands.

Vienna Admits Loss of Vrh.

VIENNA, Aug. 22, (via London.)—The War Office communication issued tonight says the Italians have captured the village of Vrh, east of Canale, but that they were repulsed in their efforts to move further eastward in this region. East of Gorizia the Italian attacks also were halted. On the Carso Plateau a titanic struggle is in progress. The communication says:

Yesterday was one of the hottest days as regards fighting in the history of the Isonzo army. East of Canale the village of Vrh had to be abandoned to the enemy. All efforts of the Italians to continue their thrust beyond the heights south of the village were unsuccessful. South of Desola several enemy attacks with considerable forces failed.

Following their successes of the previous day, our brave defenders held the first-line trenches east of Gorizia and Biglia against renewed attacks. The complete exhaustion and losses of the enemy here compelled him during the afternoon to allow a pause in the fighting.

A most severe struggle has occurred on the Carso plateau. Supported by artillery fire which could scarcely be excelled, the enemy, from early in the morning until late in the evening, threw division after division against our positions. The most vigorous thrust was against both wings of this sector.

In the region of Faiti, Hrib, and Castignevizza, where since the Summer of 1915 the Thirty-ninth and Forty-sixth armies have acquired increased heroic fame, and against Meseazza and San Giovanni, the result of the day's fighting corresponded with the splendid behavior of our troops and leaders, and, although minor defensive retirements were undertaken, undoubted success remained on our side. Since daybreak this morning the Italians have massed troops and again attacked our Carso positions.

Increased fighting activity has developed at many points with Baron Von Conrad's army.

In the Sugana Valley our reconnoitering detachments brought in 70 prisoners. Northwest of Arsiero two officers and 150 men and three machine guns were captured. West of Disquieting Reports Heard in Washington Believed to Concern Military Situation.

LETCHITZKY SENT NORTH

Transferred from the Southwestern Front to Command Armies Covering Petrograd.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 22.—The Germans have begun an offensive on the northern part of the Russian lines, between the Tirul marshes and the River Aa, forcing the Russians to retire two to three versts northward between the marshes and the river, the War Office announces. Advanced posts of Russian cavalry were driven to the town of Kemmern, in the direction of Tukkum. A heavy artillery bombardment has been begun by the Germans in the regions of Dvinsk, on the Dvina River near the northern end of the front, and of Brody, in northern Galicia near the border.

General Letchitzky has been appointed Commander on the northern front, succeeding General Klembovsky. The text of the communication follows:

Western Front.—Monday, in the direction of Tukkum the Germans undertook an offensive west of the Tirul marshes and drove back our cavalry advanced posts, which retired to Anting and Kemmern. Since the morning of Tuesday the Germans have conducted attacks between the Tirul marshes and the River Aa. About 8 o'clock in the morning they succeeded in penetrating the position of our advanced detachments, which retired from between two and three versts to to north.

Insignificant attacks in the direction of the seacoast near Raggedzem and south of Lake Babit were repulsed by our fire. The enemy is directing his artillery fire against our positions in the region leading to the east of the River Aa.

In the direction of Dvinsk there has been animated artillery fighting.

In the direction of Brody, Galicia, on both sides of the Brody-Krasne Railroad, the enemy is conducting a vigorous artillery fire against our trenches.

Rumanian Front.—Tuesday night the enemy attacked our positions southwest of the town of Sereth and occupied the fortified heights. In the direction of Ocna the fighting continues with varying success. In the direction of Fokshani insignificant enemy efforts to take the offensive between Monastirora and Marasechti were frustrated by the Rumanians. There have been fusilades on the remainder of the front.

Caucasus Front.—In the direction of Pendjiv our advanced detachments have moved forward from the summit of Garrin to the direction of Lake Zeribar, and occupied the so-called gates of Marivan to the west of Aserabad.

Activity Revived, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, Aug. 22, (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—Fighting activity of the Russians and Teutons was revived yesterday on the Baltic and Galician ends of the eastern front, according to an announcement made today by the German War Department. On the Rumanian front strong Rumanian forces attacked the Austro-German positions in the regions of Grozechti and Soveja but, the statement adds, all the assaults were repulsed with heavy losses. The text of the statement follows:

Eastern Theatre: Army Group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria: Near Riga, Dvinsk, and Tarnopol, and on the River Zbrosoz fighting activity was revived.

Army Group of Archduke Joseph: South of the Trotus Valley the Rumanians launched strong forces on Monday and Tuesday, with the object of wresting from us our gains made on both sides of Grozechti and northeast of Soveja. All their attacks have been repulsed with heavy losses.

Army Group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: The situation is unchanged.

Fears in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—A new situation involving Russia's participation in the war has caused disquiet in official circles here. It concerns military conditions and while those who are aware of its serious character are extremely reticent there is reason to believe that the dispatches from Petrograd tonight with reference to a German drive on the Riga front tell part of the story. It is not possible at this time to go into details but the feeling of depression that the advices have caused indicates that the Allied nations should be prepared for bad news.

Since yesterday, when the first information on the subject was received, Washington has been filled with rumors of impending trouble in Russia. Most of the speculation has been wide of the mark, as it assumed that economic conditions confronting the new Russian Government was at the bottom of the disturbing tidings. One story that appeared to have no substantial foundation was that M. Kerensky, the intrepid young Russian Premier, had been forced out of office and his Ministry subordinated to the control of those who favor the withdrawal of Russia from the war. It is understood that nothing of this sort is contained in the dispatches received in Washington. The United States Government has the greatest confidence in the continued dominance of the Kerensky Ministry, although it is admitted that the Russian situation is capable of extremely sudden changes. The main fear is over the military situation.

Nothing has been given out here from any authoritative source to confirm the German official statement concerning the German drive on Riga, one of Russia's principal ports which the Germans have sought on several occasions to capture. They have assaulted it with their navy and have made attempts to reach it by land. If the Russian forces are showing signs of abandoning their defense of Riga nobody here in a position to know the facts is willing to make an admission to that effect.

The supposition that the disquieting news from Russia had to do with the economic situation is probably the outgrowth of frank statements that have been made in interallied conferences, in Washington and elsewhere, that Russia is greatly in need of large and immediate assistance from her allies to enable her to continue the war with prospect of real success. She has represented, it is understood, that she needs money and transportation facilities. Above all she requires locomotives and freight cars.

The statement was made today that the Root mission in its report to this Government has recommended that the United States furnish to Russia within twelve months 2,500 locomotives and 40,000 cars. The cost, it was said, was estimated to be $700,000,000, to be applied partly, however, to other transportation uses. This information as to the recommendation, which is not confirmed from any official source, would indicate that Russia wants railroad supplies far in excess of the amount of locomotives and cars that American railroad interests found they could furnish within one year.

There appears to be no doubt that the Russian representatives here have informed the United States Government that there is immedate need of assistance in order that Russia may do her share in the war. Judged by the gossip in certain diplomatic quarters, the Russians have represented their situation as rather desperate, but elsewhere there is a disposition to discredit talk of this sort.

One statement made today in a quarter where the situation should be understood was that Russia "has demanded dependable assurances, amounting to guarantees, that materials and provisions shall be furnished her immediately, adequately, and continuously."

It was stated, however, that this was not coupled with any suggestion of politics, domestic or international, and not the slightest suggestion had been made that Russia would make a separate peace if she was not assisted in the way she desired.

TEUTONS RECOGNIZE OUR ARMY'S GROWTH

Wilson Is Driving "Peaceful Men" Into the War, Says a Vienna Paper.

PICTURES NEW COLOSSUS

Suggests We Would "Swagger Across Europe" If We Should Decide Conflict.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 22.—The Neue Freie Presse of Vienna says editorially that America is the chief obstacle to peace, and that, although it is questionable if she will be able to send a million men to Europe, dollars, guns, and foodstuffs will help to continue the war.

Most Americans, it alleges, have only the vaguest idea of the people with whom they are at war, but Wilson will oblige even the Mississippi planters to send their sons to battlefields thousands of miles away. "To drive hundreds of thousands of peaceful men into war," it remarks, "was a masterpiece of diplomacy."

The paper then says that, supposing America does succeed in landing a big army next Spring or Winter and that in spite of that fact the military situation remains unchanged, it would only mean new and futile streams of human blood, and England would be politically weaker because she could not find a second America and so would only have all the trouble of the American troops on her hands, especially if Wilson could not free France and Belgium of Germans.

Wilson as World Ruler.

"Supposing also," says the paper, "that the war could be decided by the American army. The chance is small, but let us suppose it. The day when Wilson informs his people that American troops have won the war by their participation and have forced peace, he will be the ruler of all peoples; America will be the commanding power of all countries and Washington the centre of the world's politics. If the British Empire allows itself to be rescued by America it would descend from its powerful height, become dependent and end. America wuld spring on Britain."

The paper continues that, owing to the "brutal way" in which England has used her force she can hope for no quarter from America once America gets the upper hand. It urges England to end the before the Americans have an opportunity to swagger across Europe."

Discussing the alleged British treaty with the United States, the paper says it is an unknown quantity with which the Central Powers must reckon. It insists that Britain must suffer great losses through a victorious or unvictorious America and that it "has a tremendous interest to make peace before it measures America as a military power."

Angry at Americban Zeal.

The semi-official Cologne Gazette published yesterday morning an angry attack on America, on the assumption of rejection of the Pope's peace proposal. It says:

"The Pope's peace note has suffered most abrupt rejection in Washington. The American Army increases daily, factories are putting forth every effort for the manufacture of airplanes, and shipyards will turn out every ship they can, all to raise the military power to the highest possible co-efficient.

"What wonder is it then that new hopes are being raised among the peoples opposed to us, strengthening their determination to hold out for one more Winter and then to win a decisive victory with the aid of the nuge armies of the United States. The Entente Governments are naturally better informed and they increase their blood sacrifices unspeakably in order to achieve their purpose this year, but they leave to their people sweet expectations.

"Little handfuls of American troops, who are shown in the streets of Paris and London, find a jubilant welcome, for they are a symbol of the better future which is soon take the place of the hopeless present."

Charges Mercenary Motive.

The Gazette then proceeds to discuss America's alleged reasons for refusing to consider peace. These reasons are the same as have been set forth repeatedly to explain to the German public America's reasons for entering the war: First, America's hopes of doing a brilliant business in the restoration of Europe after the war; secondly, her desire to save the loans already advanced to the Allies, which will only be possible if the Allies's victory is assured; third, the desire to militarize America.

"That is why," the Gazette coments, "Washington won't hear of peace. It is not yet ready, because it has not yet garnered the military harvest."

The Gazette finds it necessary, however, to explain the appearance of American military and naval forces in Europe, since the German public has been repeatedly assured that America had no intention of sending over fighting men at all. The newspaper says:

"America will send to Europe what men she can get together to be drilled there and serve the common purpose as far as possible, but one thing is as sure as the foundations of the Washington Capitol: America will be able neither to collect nor to send next year the gigantic armies of which the Allies dream. We will not do our enemies the kindness of allowing ourselves to be scared by their cheap bluff, for by refusing we take from them the last means whereby they seriously hope to win. If we hold out through just this one more Winter the worthlessness of American help must be revealed and then the enemy Governments will have no alternative save to confess to their swindled peoples that they have lost."

dently desired by all nations. They hoped the action of the Pope would meet with full success.

The National Liberal speakers said they were unable as yet to examine closely the contents of the Papal note, but indorsed the Chancellor's statements. The Conservatives also associated themselves with Dr. Michaelis's remarks, but reserved their attitude with regard to the details.

The Vienna Reichspost says it has reliable information that the Pope's peace note is in absolute harmony with the aims of the Monarchy. Austria-Hungary, according to the paper, is willing to evacuate occupied territories and renounce claim to indemnities once the Pope's ideas of disarmament, international arbitration, and freedom of the seas are guaranteed and world peace is carried out, but all the consequences deducible from the Pope's proposals must be understood to be included in the agreement—the disappearance of the British naval bases at Gibraltar, Malta, and the Suez Canal and also the Italian abandonment of Avlona.

An Amsterdam dispatch quotes the Rhenische Westfalische Zeitung as follows:

"It is natural that our Government appreciates the Vatican's good intentions, but just as natural that the reply of the Allied (Central) Governments should be framed in a most courteous, but distinctly non-acquiescent form, because the Pope's proposal, in effect, displays a one-sided partiality in favor of our enemies."

PRESS UPHOLDS CHANCELLOR.

Germans Hear Pope Proposes to Suggest an Armistice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—An Amsterdam dispatch says:

"The German press, on the whole, is fairly well pleased with the Chancellor's speech to the Reichstag Main Committee. Germania, the Catholic organ, thinks the Chancellor deserves great praise for the way in which he approached the subject, while the Lokal Anzeiger says that Michaelis found himself in almost complete agreement with the committee. The Morgen Post sees the Government and people going determinedly side by side along the road pointed out by the peace offer of last December.

"Vorwärts says that if the majority of the Reichstag remains firm the answer of Germany to the Pope will take the shape of strong support for the Vatican's peace move and will express the wish of the German people. The Berliner Tageblatt is not altogether pleased. The Chancellor, it says, has quickly learned the diplomatic art of using speech to conceal his thoughts and skillfully hide the ideas he had formed regarding the Pope's note.

"The Leipziger Neueste Nachrichten says that in case the replies of the powers to the Pope's note are not satisfactory, the Vatican will not abandon its endeavors, but will come forward with further proposals. The German press also refers to rumors that the Pope proposes to suggest an armistice."

RAISES REICHSTAG HOPES.

Chancellor Encourages Advocates of Parliamentarization.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 21, (via London, Aug. 22.)—The short session of the Reichstag Main Committee today, at which the newly appointed members of the Cabinet presented themselves and Chancellor Michaelis made his statement about the Pope's peace note, is regarded among German parliamentarians as a milestone on the road to democratization.

Not so much importance is attached to what was done at the meeting as to what its convocation is held to mean—that in the future no vital State business will be enacted without consulting the people's representatives. Under former Chancellors, the Reichstag would probably have been acquainted with the accomplished facts, but today the Chancellor first discusses the events of the day privately at his palace with representatives of all parties before giving voice to the Government's attitude in the Main Committee, and then promises that no important step shall be taken in the matter without first letting the committee know.

A Socialist leader said today: "This is as far reaching consideration as could be expected in a country that has not the parliamentary traditions of centuries by which to regulate such affairs, but on the contrary must feel its way into the new land of parliamentarization while half the outside world is threatening it with destruction."

To all appearances the National Liberal Party seems to be coming around to the conviction that parliamentarization is necessary to the new Germany. Since the death of its leader, Bassermann, who more or less openly conducted a flirtation with the Conservatives, the more modern element in that party has gotten the upper hand and has now accepted the invitation to join in the caucuses of the majority parties, consisting of Socialists, Progressives, and Centrists, who, as will be remembered, passed the Reichstag peace resolution.

The National Liberals, in their own party meeting, passed separately a resolution to which they will adhere. It differs very little in principle from that of the majority. This new combination leaves the Conservatives practically isolated unless they prefer the unruly company of a handful of the minority Socialists.

ASSAILS POPE'S DOCTRINES.

German Count Thinks Nation Must Repudiate "Interference."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZURICH, Aug. 22, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—The Leipsic Neueste Nachrichten prints a remarkable open letter from Count Stolberg-Wernigerode, a leading member of the Herrenhaus, to the Pope.

Of all countries, he says, Germany must repudiate the interference of the Papacy, whose baneful influence is "the darkest stain on German history." The resolution of the Reichstag majority which "betrayed German interests," was, he asserts, the work of the Pope. That right should supersede might is a ridiculous suggestion, involving the suicide of Germany.

The proposal of disarmament is equally absurd, declares the Count, and, he asks, does the Pope imagine the whole world attacked Germany in the interest of public order? He goes on to say experience shows that armaments must be increased, and not decreased. He, who excells all others in commerce stands alone the subject of universal envy. Germany, therefore, would always be defeated at an international court.

Instead of advocating the independence of Belgium, which would be fatal to Germany, the Pope should preach obedience to the occupying authorities.

"EVEN NEUTRALS" MIGHT PAY.

Reichstag Member Advocates a Sharing of War Costs.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 22.—The Neue Freie Presse of Berlin publishes some proposals by George Gothein, who was one of the three compilers of the Reichstag peace resolution passed in July. Their chief object appears to be to enable Germany to escape responsibility for restitution and reparation.

Gothein suggests that all the belligerents should share in this expense, either in proportion to population or to prewar armaments and budgets, and that even neutrals might be called upon to contribute in view of their large profits. He also proposes that losses to mercantile fleets should not be indemnified, but all trade and industrial settlements should be restored. In other words, Britain should not receive compensation for losses through submarines, but Germany should be paid for the re-establishment of her overseas trade settlements.

Gothein concludes: "As an honorary member of the Cobden Club, I permit myself to remind Englishmen that Cobden, Bright, and Gladstone were pronounced pacifists, and that free trade was for them a means to peace and international reconciliation."

REDFIELD DENOUNCES PACIFIST OBSTRUCTION

Letter Regarded as Significant in View of Pending Proposals from Pope.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield has addressed to J. E. Van Dyke of East Orange, N. J., who wrote asking his support of the La Follette peace resolution now before the Senate, a letter in which he says:

"There is no word in your communication that speaks an American spirit. You seem interested to assert evil intentions on the part of the nations associated with us in the war, and an equally earnest wish to slur over the spirit and act on the part of Germany which brought this war into being.

"Subtly and by indirection you take such a course as would stab your country in the back; as would tie the hands of the President and make ineffective for righteousness the sacrifices of our men and our treasure.

"You deal with superficialities and neglect the substance. You chase shadows and ignore realities. You seem not to know that there are two great opposing ideals in the world, one of which must go down before the other. These ideals are autocracy and democracy.

"Autocracy has put its heel on Belgium, on Serbia, on Montenegro, on Poland, on Rumania, on a fair part of France.

"No humane note rings in your letter. No pity for slaughtered nations shows in it. But you have an excuse for Germany and the moral forces have none."

SPY REPORTED CAUGHT TIPPING NAVAL NEWS

Arrest on Torpedo Boat at Newport Said to Clear Up Leaks to Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 22.—It was reported tonight that the source of the leak to Germany of news relative to the movement of United States naval vessels had been discovered at Newport, following a three months' investigation by Secret Service agents. Naval officers today, it was said, arrested a man on board a United States torpedo boat, and were holding him for court-martial on a charge of forging the censoring officer's initials to a communication. Whether the person under arrest is an enlisted man or an officer could not be ascertained.

At the time of the arrest a communication in code was seized. It was addressed to a woman on the Mexican border, who, the United States agents believe, receives information relative to the movement of ships and sends it to German agents in Mexico, whence it is forwarded to Germany, probably by wireless.

Since the warning issued by Secretary Daniels was sent out, Secret Service officers have been watching Newport. Today they found that the censor's initials had been forged to a certain communication. Federal officers on the Mexican border were notified to apprehend the German to whom it was addressed and await further advices.

In naval circles tonight details of the case are closely guarded, even the fact that there has been an arrest being denied.

FRENCH HOLD ALL GAINS AT VERDUN

Thrust Back Numerous Furious Counterattacks Launched by the Germans.

PRISONERS NEARLY 7,000

Berlin Admits Losses at Two Points, but Reports Successful Resistance Elsewhere.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Desperate efforts were made last night by the Germans to recover the Verdun positions lost to the French. The long artillery preparation of the latter, interrupted as it was by bad weather, had given the Germans time to mass reserves for counterattacks. They had withdrawn forces from their advanced lines which were too greatly exposed to the French artillery, massing these men, together with reserves, around the extremities of the sector attacked, between Avocourt and Bezonvaux, in readiness for counterattacks.

No less than eight of these counterattacks were made. All of them were repulsed, though one was temporarily successful. The gains of the French were maintained entirely, further advances were made, and a large number of prisoners were added to the previous total, which is now raised to nearly 7,000.

Today the German artillery was active in the Verdun sector, particularly on the left bank of the Meuse, but no assault on the new French positions was attempted.

It is known that the Germans had five divisions of reserves in readiness for this battle, and more than 400 batteries. They began to weaken before the bombardment ceased, and many of them surrendered. One complete platoon, in charge of non-commissioned officers, gave itself up in a group. A new batch followed the next day, and they thoughtfully brought along the letters of the first platoon.

The Germans flooded the region with gas, but the French charged wearing their masks, and carried nearly two miles of positions in an hour. Hill 344 was also stormed by masked troops.

The afternoon statement of the War Office follows:

The Germans last night violently bombarded our first lines at various points on the Aisne front. They made several strong attacks in the region of Mennejean Farm, east of Braye-en-Laonnois, south of Bovelle, between Ailles and the Hurtebise monument and on the Californie Plateau. Everywhere our troops maintained their positions entirely. Prisoners were taken.

On the left bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) late yesterday we repulsed a violent German counterattack between Hill 304 and Dead Man Hill. Certain enemy detachments which succeeded in gaining a footing in our new first line trenches were ejected by a brilliant attack, which gave us sixty prisoners. Our reconnoissances were pushed forward as far as the village of Forges.

6,716 Germans Captured.

On the right bank of the river the enemy also made several attempts to drive us from the positions which we had captured, especially north of Normont Farm and at Hill 344. Our fire inflicted heavy losses on the Germans and broke up their assaulting waves, which were not able to approach our lines at any point. North of Caurieres Wood the attacks, accompanied by the use of flaming liquids, were not any more successful for the enemy, and added to his losses. The number of unwounded prisoners we have taken since Aug. 20 has now reached 6,116. Of these 114 are officers. This does not include the prisoners captured yesterday in shelters, or 600 wounded prisoners who are in our hospitals.

According to information now at hand, important booty has been captured, especially in the three tunnels in Dead Man Hill, where we found dressing stations and complete electrical plants. At this point we took prisoners an entire regimental staff and an officer of engineers.

There is nothing to report from the remainder of he front.

Tonight's official report follows:

The artillery fighting was quite violent in tho regions of Braye and Cerny.

In Champagne ur batteries carried out efficacious bombardments and destroyed additional gas reservoirs.

On the Verdun front the enemy reacted during the course of the day with artillery, notably on the left bank of the Meuse, but made no attempt to attack our new positions. One of our heavy guns destroyed the under structure of an observatory at Romagne-sous-les-Côtes.

German airplanes last night dropped bombs in the region of Gerardmer. There were neither victims nor damage. In the course of the day six German airplanes were destroyed in aerial engagements; five others fell within their own lines in a damaged condition. It is established that additional German airplanes were brought down on Aug. 20 by our machine guns.

Much amusement is expressed by French military officers over the German official communications. The statement that the battle was begun "at England's order" is regarded as an attempt to persuade the Germans that France is too discouraged to act on her own initiative.

Admits French "Gained a Footing."

BERLIN, Aug. 22, (via London.)—French troops have gained a footing in the southeastern part of Avocourt Wood and on the knolls to the east of that position, on the Verdun front, says the official statement issued today by the German War Office.

The German statement also says that the French forced their way into the German positions in the southern part of the village of Samogneux, on the east bank of the Meuse. The losses of the French infantry, the German report says, were very heavy, and the French command had to replace several of the ten attacking divisions.

Following is the text of the report dealing with the operations against the French:

Northwest and west of Le Catelet numerous outpost engagements took place in which we gained some prisoners.

St. Quentin again has been subjected to French fire.

Army Group of the German Crown Prince—On the battlefield near Verdun the French yesterday continued their attacks in some sectors, and at several places the fighting lasted into the night. In the southeastern part of Avocourt Wood and on the knolls to the east thereof, the enemy, after repeated vain storming attacks, gained a footing.

On Hill 304 all attacks, as well as those which were begun from Dead Man Hill, failed under our fire and against the tenacity of our brave defenders. The thrusts directed from the ridge to the east of Corbtaux Wood against Forges Valley were repulsed.

On the eastern bank of the Meuse the French forced their way into the southern part of Samogneux. Otherwise their dense masses which assaulted our lines from Hill 344 to the Beaumont-Vacherauville Road and in the Fosses Wood in the forenoon and in the afternoon were sanguinarily repulsed. The losses of the infantry were heavy, and the French command had to replace several of the ten attacking divisions with fresh troops.

HAILS VERDUN AS DOOMING GERMANS

and a half over the battlefield on Monday, he gave me a striking picture, literally a birdseye view of the scene.

French Airmen Dominant at Verdun.

"I will begin," he said, "by answering your question about the command of the air. Whatever may be true about the equality of air forces in general, it is still more certain that nothing is so easy as to make airplane concentration that will establish unquestioned superiority at a certain point. For example, my squadron reached Verdun recently by a two-hour flight from quite a different sector, and it was much the same with others. Our concentration gave us positive command of the air at Verdun. You may object that the enemy can offset that by a similar concentration, but in the air, ten times more than on land, it's getting the jump on them that counts. We have quite established a 'funk,' as the British fliers call it, and though there has been a lot of air fighting, it has been almost all over the boche lines. More important still, we have put the fear of God into their artillery observers and photoplanes, whose morale has never been so high as that of the picked fighting squadrons, and have simply driven them off the map, whereas ours are everywhere. After all, that's what command of the air really means for practical purposes, because the battleplanes help only indirectly and as scouts or messengers; but the artillery observers and 'sausages' are the real eyes, and ours are wide open, and the Boches's shut. That's what makes the difference.

"Of course we lost machines. You know the Boches sent for Richtofen's squadron, and they are first-class fighters. That's why I didn't go out till the second patrol yesterday morning and why I am here now—because I knocked my plane to pieces on landing—but they couldn't prevent us giving efficient protection to our working bees, to say nothing of occasional dives to hand the infantry a bit of encouragement.

"It was an extraordinary sight when I went up at about 6 A. M.—like a sea of different clouds with sparks tearing them in all directions, and here and there hills appearing like islands. In the centre, over the Meuse, there was a whitish mist; to the right and left rolls of smoke, green and yellow and brown and violet. It was a curious thing to see the gray and brown of the hill islands, pocked all over with shellpits and never a speck of vegetation left on them. It was in marked contrast with the green woods further away to the left and the green meadows on the right.

"Behind our smoke you could see forts and batteries spouting fire like miniature volcanoes, and right in the middle the sun lit the two gray towers of the cathedral standing up bare like a semaphore. I could catch glimpses of the river through the mist, until it showed clear and glittering save in the bend between Cumières and Talou Hill Of course the lines of barrage fire were quite easy to distinguish. I was glad to see that by the time I got up they were unquestionably beyond our old Mort Homme, and for that matter beyond Hill 304 also, though I heard later that the Boches were still resisting there, surrounded in the earthworks on the far side. It was said, too, that they had built a tunnel to the Mort Homme position, but even that didn't save them; you know one 400-millimeter shell makes a tunnel just a deathtrap. All the same, I wish we had had one last year.

Germans Used a Gas Barrage.

"The Boche barrages were harder to make out, as they used gas shells, not high explosives, which shows that they were purely on the defensive. These are not very effective in a hilly country, anyway, though I heard afterward that they had tried some counterattacks on the wings, where some of our fellows signaled German infantry concentrations.

"The soldiers in masks looked awfully queer when I swooped every now and then to see what was happening, or to shoot up a stubborn group of Boches in British style. It was exactly like a lot of huge insects running all over the place, with nothing human about them. It made me think of Wells's giant ants in the men-in-the-moon story. Whenever I cut off the engine the din was tremendous—worse than flying in the middle of a thunderstorm. It was more concentrated than in Champagne, or even in Flanders. The exceptional number of big-calibre guns made things nasty for flying.

"One of my pals said that he was engaged with two Albatross machines at about 3,000 feet, when suddenly he was almost upset by a terrific eddy and heard a roaring and a rattle looser than the engine's. As he righted himself he saw an Albatross close on his right literally dissolve in pieces with a burst of flame, as if the whole machine had exploded. He judged that it was a heavy shell that had caught it in mid-air and smashed it to bits—of course without exploding, or it would have wrecked all three of them. It sounds queer, but I suppose it could easily happen, and it's not very nice to think about, either.

Engine Hit by a Mitrailleuse.

"About 7:30 I dived to have some fun with the Boche infantry at the north side of Avocourt Wood and peppered one company till they broke and hid behind shattered tree trunks. But some one turned a mitrailleuse on me and must have hit the engine, as it began to miss. It got better, and I was able to make a fair height, and then it began again, rather worse, and I decided that it was advisable to land quickly. I volplaned southward and saw a big hayfield that looked good landing; but these machines are very tricky, as one has to land at nearly a hundred kilometers an hour, and when the engine isn't right you're likely to have trouble. So I capoted and crashed my plane, and was lucky not to break my neck. The shock dazed me for a minute; then I heard a terrific explosion which woke me up properly. Beside the hedge, not twenty yards away, was one of our biggest cannon, with a muzzle forty feet long sticking up like a factory chimney, and smoking like one, too. Then some one yelled, and across the field came running a farm woman with a couple of youngsters. They had been coolly loading hay on a wagon, as if Huns and battle didn't exist. But no one can resist the attraction of an airplane, especially when it crashes as I did."

GERMANS WERE UNABLE TO STOP FRENCH DRIVE

Had 400 Batteries in Action and Used All Poison Gases Against Them in Vain.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES NEAR VERDUN, Aug. 22.—The French Army made a notable advance yesterday to the northeast of Dead Man Hill and Cumieres village. A long, bare slope of Goose Ridge was captured, with the hamlet of Regneville at its root, while on the opposite bank of the Meuse this success was prolonged through the village of Samogneux, and a series of strong trenches to the north of Hill 344 and the Mormout farm.

The clearance of the whole of this awkward loop of the river, which has been a weakness since the Crown Prince's onset of February last year, and the pushing forward of the French lines a distance of two miles so that they now rest solidly on Dead Man Hill on the west bank and Hill 344 on the east, is a remarkable achievement, admirable alike in its conception and execution. With Avocourt Wood, Dead Man Hill, Goose Hill, Hill 344 and Caurieres Hill in their possession, the French have recovered the real, though not yet complete, command of the Meuse heights.

There is yet a small dent in this crescent in which the Germans are holding out desperately as I write. They have the northern edge of the summit and most of the slope behind, while the French have broken into their right and can enfilade their supports from both sides.

It is one of the most infernal corners of a battlefield on which every imaginable weapon and means of destruction seem to have been let loose. The difficulty of supplies and reliefs may be imagined. I wondered continually as I met files of heavily laden fellows trudging through the wilderness of filth, where so many of their comrades had fallen, how they come by such power of endurance against poisonous and corrosive gases poured forth from pumps or liberated from shells, now more and more in use. They have horribly aggravated the pains of communication services.

These were the chief means by which Talour ridge and Hill 344 were defended. French heavy guns from the monsters of 370 and 400 millimeters downward had effectually smashed up the trenches and blockhouses on these crests, but as owing to the lay of the land the French front trenches were at a considerable distance, it was possible for Germans without danger to themselves to put over great clouds of poison gas and rain down upon the lower levels gas shells, mustard shells and other laboratory products.

In their hideous snouted masks the French soldiers charged up Talon Hill and forged their way round Hill 344. Meanwhile another division on the west bank of the river was overruning Goose Ridge and the saddle, marked by shattered stumps of Crow and Cumières Woods, and the Zouaves and sharpshooters were disposing of the last resistance on the double crest of Dead Man Hill. These last did not content themselves with the program for the day, and actually went on to the rivulet of Forges, where they captured and destroyed eight German mortars. But General Guillaumat's plans were definite and his orders peremptory. The ridge, overlooking this small stream, was a natural and advantageous term to the offensive, and nothing was to be gained by passing it.

Dead Man Hill, with its system of underground galleries, was a formidable stronghold, and the artillerymen, who had pounded it and drowned it in explosives, share with the troops of assault the credit of its capture in a single day. More than a hundred deserters came over to the French lines. A whole squad surrendered, with their non-commissioned officers at their head. Some hours later another group surrendered. The second group brought with them letters addressed earlier which suggests that the surrender was discussed and deliberately planned. This group belonged to a different regiment than the first.

Evidently this case is not typical of the German troops as a whole, but their morale does not improve, and if it were not for their strength in artillery and other material the end would not long be postponed.

The whole garrison of Dead Man Tunnel, including one company and two battalion commanders, were made prisoners.

The prospect is very good. If with five divisions in reserve behind their front line and 400 batteries in action the German command could do no better than it has done in the last two days, one may look to the future with confidence.

The former victor of Verdun left the Meuse to take up the supreme command. To him one may add the names of General Coylle and General Guillaumat.

Lake Garda, after a vigorous engagement, we overpowered an enemy point of support.

Claim 5,600 Prisoners.

In an earlier communication, dated Tuesday, the Austrian War Office claimed the capture of 5,600 Italians in two days of fighting. The statement follows:

The eleventh battle of the Isonzo is in full swing, the enemy not having succeeded in the ten preceding battles in breaking our victorious defensive strength. South of Auzza and east of Canale, (on the Isonzo south of Tolmino,) the enemy succeeded in driving in our front slightly. After an atack at Vrh, (southeast of Canale,) some of our detachments held their positions until they were surrounded completely, after which they cut their way out. Between the Dersela and the Wippach an assault failed in the face of the heroic defense of our lines. On the Carso the enemy, at the cost of thousands of men, obtained a local success in the conquest of the village of Selo.

During two days of fighting we have taken more than 5,600 prisoners and more than fifty machine guns.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY, Aug. 20, (delayed.)—Here and there upon the hills beyond the Isonzo and through smoke that fills the air comes a flutter of signals. It is the Italian infantry upon their new lines and in newly won positions spelling out the tale of their victory, for now, as in May last, the Italian front has blazed into action over a span of 40 miles from the upper Isonzo to the Adriatic and in the first hot impulse of conquest reaped its rich harvest of success.

The battle, whose first stage commenced early Saturday morning with twenty-four hours of intense bombardment, and whose second stage began in the dark of Sunday morning with the crossing of the river at a number of points, is already yielding its first fruits in the form of nearly 8,000 prisoners, including about a hundred officers and a still uncounted booty of machine guns and cannon. I am required for good and sufficient reasons to abstain for the present from indicating the precise objectives aimed at or gained, but of the quality of the victory and its hourly growth there is no question.

It was before dawn on Sunday that the final throwing of bridges across the Isonzo was accomplished. The river here runs swiftly, squeezed between narrow banks with high abrupt hills on either side. The operation had been already successfully practiced in May, but it was not much easier for that. The Austrians were nervous. A day of intense shelling had warned them and their guns got busy on the slopes while the pontoon sections and engineers labored along the shores linking up bridges and floating them into place. It was still short of daylight when the Italian troops streamed across, and through the darkness a sudden flurry of Austrian machine guns, a shrill monotone of guns and an anvil chorus of great trench mortars announced that the Italians had joined up on the further er bank and that the great attack was under way.

Sunday was no such day as that in May when Monte Kuk, further to the south, was carried by storm in the transfiguring glory of sunlight. Dawn came mistily to reveal through a vague and troubled daylight from the slope whence I watched the river shrouded under a ghost river of slow-moving smoke to which from a hundred valleys there trickled tributaries of vapor. The maze of hills beyond the stream was smoke-blanketed breast high, and out of that darkness there sounded an unceasingly uproar of furious fighting. All this was north of Anhove, toward the northern limit of the battle, but it was representative of the general conditions and results.

Upon the sector where the river was crossed the Austrians were in strength and as always their organization of ground technically perfect. They were especially strong in machine guns. Even before the battle a Brigadier commanding one portion of this sector told me the ground was sown with their machine guns. "Every rock and almost every tree seems to be a machine gun," he said. In a dozen points of the attack one whole problem was one of machine guns and the rattle and stutter of them playing like hoses across the front of the advancing Italians was loud till in the afternoon big trench mortars accounted for a proportion of them. The rest had to be rushed and bombed to silence.

At first the news came back slowly out of that night of smoke and fire, but when it came it was good news. Names not hitherto known to our geography of battle were being added to the front. Such and such a battalion had taken such and such a crest. Signals had been seen from such and such a slope. And long before noon there arrived, coming at the crawl up the steep hillside from the smoke and grimed in that strange squalor of dirt that seems to go with defeat and capture, the first gang of prisoners—German-Austrians these, most of them weary to the bone, drained dry of all energy and force by thirty hours under the tornado of shells, and prostrated at last by the final convulsion of the battle when the Italians had stormed up the hill upon them, bombers leading and bayonets following, and hauled them out to captivity.

I saw more of them later in the day making their way to the rear under cavalry escort, not all as weary and outworn as the first, but all drearily depressed, crushed down by the depression of utter defeat.

The battle continues upon the whole front. At certain points it still sways to and fro, but definite gains have been achieved over large stretches. The spirit of the troops is beyond praise. If, as we read, the enemy really believes the pacifist has obtained any real hold on Italy, the enthusiasm and dash of the men in the fight, their appetite for battle and their superb will to victory should answer him. They have written Italy's reply to the last peace proposals across the face of Austria.

How to judge the safety of a Bank

THE mere volume of any bank's deposits tells little about that bank's strength. Deposits are debts. Financial strength cannot be measured by debts.

A safer judgment of strength is found in the character of the bank's assets. The more liquid (quickly salable) its assets the more promptly it meets demands in times of stress.

At least 95% of the Columbia Trust Company's demand deposits are in liquid form—cash, or securities which can promptly be turned into cash.

POLICE REFUSE TO HELP MOFFETT

Decline to Make Arrests at His Request for Street Abuse of England.

THOUSANDS BLOCK STREET

Speakers Abuse England, Sneer at the Vigilantes, and Praise La Follette.

Cleveland Moffett and his Vigilantes met the Friends of Irish Freedom before a crowd of 2,500 at Thirty-seventh Street and Broadway last night. The result was a draw.

Mr. Moffett failed to obtain the arrest of Stephen Johnson, in charge of the meeting, and Mr. Johnson failed to obtain the arrest of Mr. Moffett. Both said they would appeal to the authorities today.

The climax of the dramatic situation came after Johnson had heaped invective upon Mr. Moffett, and had said: "We are the good Americans and Moffett is a damned bad one."

Then Mr. Moffett raised his hand and shouted:

"That is not true."

It seemed as if a thousand voices were raised at once. "Throw him out," "Hang Moffett," "Get him" were cries that were mingled with the screams of the score or more of women attachés of the Friends of Irish Freedom meetings.

"I demand the arrest of that man!" shouted Johnson, pointing at Moffett.

"Three cheers for the Stars and Stripes!" shouted Mr. Moffett, and he got them with a will. "Three cheers for America!" called Mr. Moffett, and the response made it look as if he would take Johnson's meeting away from him.

Johnson then pressed his demand for the arrest of Mr. Moffett, threatening to report the police in charge to Commissioner Woods. Mr. Moffett demanded the arrest of Johnson for his abuse of England. He was told by policemen to arrest Johnson himself. He started toward the speakers' stand; the crowd of supporters of Johnson surged forward with angry gestures. Then Mr. Moffett turned and left the meeting, being pushed along by two policemen. As Mr. Moffett left, Johnson shouted, "Moffett hasn't the courage of a mouse."

Street Blocked.

Mr. Moffett had stated publicly that if the Friends of Irish Freedom continued to insult England at their meeting last night he would stop it or be arrested. One hundred Vigilantes were at the meeting, which because of the prominence given the attempt of the Vigilantes to break up the anti-British campaign had drawn a crowd of 1,000 before 7:30 o'clock. By 8 o'clock the crowd had grown to 2,000, and by 8:30, when the meeting opened, the street from Sixth Avenue to Broadway was blocked, and it took the best efforts of 100 policemen to keep order.

Johnson, who started the speaking, began by proclaiming that the Friends of Irish Freedom would not be stopped in their campaign against England by Mr. Moffett "or any other Anglomaniac."

The first outburst of applause came when Johnson said: "The first thing the Sixty-ninth Regiment should be used for in France should be to force the English slacker regiments up to the firing line."

This was the beginning of much abuse of England, and the stenographers of the Vigilantes got to work taking down what was said by Johnson S. Conway and others.

Attack on Root.

P. Laughlin of Chicago began by saying that "if Mr. Moffett had the sense of a goose he would keep his mouth shut and not advertise us so much." He attacked Roosevelt as the "Vocal Volcano of Oyster Bay," attacked Elihu Root, and paid a glowing tribute to Senator La Follette. Every reference to peace brought prolonged cheers. He characterized President Wilson's assertion that we were fighting to make the world safe for democracy as "a glittering generality from Washington."

At one point an automobile drew up to the outskirts of the crowd and the occupants waved a big Union Jack. The police sent them away.

Miss Curry of Boston spoke for half an hour against England and Mr. Moffett. At the conclusion of the meeting Johnson urged every one to come back and bring a friend the next time, and "warned" the Vigilantes. "They are the law-breakers and not we," he said.

Mr. Moffett said after the meeting that he had not gone to the meeting to precipitate the near riot he did, but in accordance with Commissioner Woods's advice, to cause the arrest of the speakers.

"I ordered the police to arrest Johnson," he said, "but they would not do it. They told me to arrest him. It might have meant my life to have tried to reach him through his friends. I was like a chip on a wave in that hostile crowd. I cannot understand the apparent indifference of the police in guarding these near treasonable men in respect to the efforts of a patriotic minority to break up these meetings. Loyal Americanism is mocked at and the police stand by indifferent.

Mr. Moffett said that he would try today to have Johnson arrested on a Magistrate's warrant.

After Mr. Moffett left the meeting Policeman Sheehy of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested John Hehie, 19 years old, of 358 West Forty-eighth Street for disorderly conduct. It was charged he showed disrespect to the American flag by throwing it to the street. Jeremiah A. O'Leary, President of the American Truth Society, who was at the meeting, went to the Night Court to act as counsel for Hehie and when Magistrate Simms recalled two witnesses for further questioning O'Leary said he would call fifty witnesses. Magistrate Simms said he would hear further evidence tonight. Hehie was held in $300 bail. O'Leary contended that the accusation that Hehie was a defamer of the flag was a charge against the Irish race.

FEARS RACIAL STRIFE HERE.

Staats-Zeitung Sees Danger Coming for Germans.

Under the caption "Today Me, Tomorrow You," the Staats-Zeitung said editorially yesterday afternoon:

"In spite of all the efforts of far-seeing Americans, despite President Wilson, despite the fact that Governor Whitman is incessantly warning the people against every kind of evil racial incitement, it becomes clearer from day to day that we shall not be spared this thing. The first list of casualties, an officially verified report that German U-boats are off the coast of the United States, will, so it is predicted quite openly in the sheets that are systematically promoting the baiting, throw the lighted match into the powder keg.

"Foolish Poles, Bohemians, Jews, Italians join in the now fashionable incitement against the Germans, against everything that even sounds German, in the belief that they, too, will gain something by it. * * *

"The attacks upon everything that talks German or sounds German, that could not be hazarded openly while peace still obtained because then the Germans stood too high, too firm, politically, socially, and industrially, are only the beginning. Our America is to become an America that is strictly English from top to bottom. An America in which but one God, one language, one way of thinking and of living is to be allowed."

SOCIALIST LEADER REBUKES PACIFISM

Henry L. Slobodin Sees in War the Issue Drawn Between Liberty and Slavery.

While the People's Council was busy yesterday trying to rent a circus tent in which to hold its peace meeting in Minneapolis, beginning on Sept. 1, the managers of the patriotic meeting to be held there at the same time announced they had engaged the Auditorium, the largest hall in Minneapolis. The Minnesota State Federation of Labor has sent word that it will support the patriotic convention and not the pacifist gathering. From all parts of the country organized labor is sending to the convention's headquarters at 280 Broadway unqualified indorsement of the strategic move to vitiate the effect of the pacifist movement. Special trains will be run from all parts of the country to carry the patriotic delegates to Minneapolis.

Frank P. Walsh, Chairman of the Industrial Relations Committee, yesterday sent his hearty approval of the Minneapolis gathering. While the pacifists claim the support of the Socialist Party, Henry L. Slobodin, Chairman of the Socialist Party in New York State, sent to the conference committee yesterday an unqualified indorsement of the patriotic convention and a denunciation of the pacifist gathering.

William G. Willcox, President of the Board of Education, sent to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday a letter commending the labor leader for his denunciation of the so-called People's Council.

The People's Council issued a statement yesterday suggesting that when President Wilson replies to the Pope he will be as well replying to the People's Council.

LOSE 8 AIRPLANES IN RAIDING ENGLAND

German Bombs Kill Eleven Persons and Injure Fourteen in Seaside Towns.

ZEPPELINS IN YORKSHIRE

Gotha Machines Attack Dover, Margate, and Ramsgate on the Southeast Coast.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—Two raids by German aircraft within a few hours occurred last night and this morning on the northeast and southeast seaboard.

The first raid was by Zeppelins, a number of which approached the Yorkshire coast, though only one, and at the most two, ventured overland. Twelve high explosive and thirteen incendiary bombs were dropped on three small villages near the coast. A chapel was wrecked, and several houses were damaged. One man was injured.

This morning soon after 10 o'clock ten airplanes appeared on the coast of Kent and dropped bombs on Dover, (an important naval base in the English channel,) Margate, and Ramsgate. There were no casualties at Margate, but at Dover and Ramsgate eleven persons were killed and thirteen injured. A hospital and some houses were damaged.

Three of the raiding machines were shot down and also five of the escorting scout machines.

A bulletin issued this afternoon by Lord French said:

Ten enemy airplanes approached the Kentish coast, near Ramsgate, about 10:15 A. M. Being met and heavily engaged by machines of the Royal Flying Corps and Royal Naval Air Service, and also by gunfire from anti-aircraft guns, the raiders were unable to penetrate inland.

A small party tarveled west to Margate, but then turned homeward. The remainder skirted the coast to the south as far as Dover.

Bombs were dropped at Dover and at Margate. Casualties reported up to the present were three persons killed and two injured. The material damage was slight. Two enemy machines were brought down by anti-aircraft gun fire and by our own airplanes.

Enemy airships in numbers not definitely ascertained appeared off the Yorkshire coast last night. One of the raiders attacked the mouth of the Humber and was fired on by anti-aircraft guns. She dropped some bombs, then made off to sea.

The damage so far reported is slight. One man was injured.

The Admiralty later issued this statement:

Ten enemy airplanes of the Gotha type were attacked by naval airplanes in the vicinity of Ramsgate between 10 and 11 A. M. today. The enemy machines, which were flying at a height between 11,000 and 12,000 feet, were closely engaged, and in addition to the two mentioned by Lord French in the earlier communication, another was shot down by a Royal Naval Air Squadron machine close to the coast.

A later Admiralty statement said that a British air squadron met the returning raiders north of Nieuport and engaged them, but without result. It goes on:

"Another of our patrols of ten machines engaged a flight of about twenty-five enemy escorting scouts, which were off the coast awaiting the return of the enemy bombers, and in the ensuing fight five enemy aircraft were sent down completely out of control and probably some more. But in the close fighting accurate counting was impossible. All of our machines returned safely."

Reports from the places raided by the Germans concur in the efficiency of the gun and aircraft defences and the enterprise of the German raiders being balked and the casualties minimized. Nevertheless the general comment is that the defending forces are not large enough and must be increased to overwhelming numbers so that it may be impossible for any raiders to return home.

BERLIN, Aug. 22, (via London.)—The War Office tonight issued the following bulletin:

Bomb attacks by our aviators on fortified towns on the English coast today were successful.

AMERICAN GUNNERS LOST ON SUBMARINE

Campana Survivors Believe the U-2 That Sank Her Was Destroyed Soon Afterward.

HAD 6 PRISONERS ABOARD

German Craft, with Capt. Oliver and Five Bluejackets, Probable Victim of French Warship.

Forty-six survivors, including eight of the naval gun crew, of the Standard Oil tanker Campana, which was sunk on Aug. 6 about 175 miles off the French coast, arrived yesterday at an Atlantic port with the news that the German submarine which took away five of the gun crew and the Captain of the ship as prisoners had been destroyed later in the day by a French patrol cruiser. This information was given to the survivors by the officers of a French warship which rescued them from their lifeboats at 6 o'clock on the evening of Aug. 6.

French officers had received the report by wireless, they explained, from the patrol vessel an hour previously, and, putting the facts together, there was a strong possibility that it was the U-2 which sank the Campana with bombs that morning.

Members of the Campana's gun crew said they fired shots from their three-inch gun aft until the ammunition was all expended. Three of the shots struck the U-boat but did not injure the craft in a vital spot. The firing was all done at 7,500 yards, and as the submarine had a four-inch gun forward she could outrange the Campana's guns.

The names of the men who are reported to have been drowned on the U-2 are Captain Alfred Oliver of the Campana, Chief Gunner's Mate James Delaney, Third Class Gunner's Mate Charles Klein, Second Class Boatswain Root, and ordinary seamen Jacobs and Wilhelm Miller.

The story of the fight was related by Third Officer Bruce, who was on board the German submarine for three hours and would have been kept there as prisoner if the commander of the U-boat had not decided that he could not accommodate more than six extra men on board his craft.

Battle at Long Range.

"We left from this side on July 6," said Bruce, "and arrived safely at a port in France where we discharged our cargo of oil and left again in ballast for a Spanish port on Aug. 5. At 5 o'clock next morning I was on the bridge when a shell passed over our stern, and looking aft I saw a big submarine about 8,000 yards away firing at us from her bow gun. Our crew opened fire with the three-inch gun aft and blazed away until 8 o'clock without apparently damaging the enemy craft, as the range of 7,500 yards and over, was a little too far. We heard later from the commander that three of our shells had struck him near the conning tower. One shell from the U-boat hit the upper deck of the Campana aft, but did not do any serious damage. During the three-hour gun duel the Campana was going at her best speed and zig-zagging. The submarine, which was a large one of the latest type, could easily have overhauled us as she had a speed on the surface of eighteen knots, but her commander did not wish to come too close to our guns. By 8 o'clock we had fired 250 shots and the submarine had fired about 175. Then we knocked off for breakfast and ignored the enemy for half an hour, and his crew apparently did the same, as they did not fire another shell until 9:40 o'clock. After our gunners had expended 300 shells they reported to Captain Oliver that the ammunition was all gone and he hoisted the international code signal at the main masthead: 'Am abandoning ship.'

"The crew left the Campana in four lifeboats after the engines had stopped, and I had the thirteen men of the naval gun crew in my boat. Our total crew, including the Captain and the gunners, was fifty-two men. When we started to pull away the submarine continued shelling the steamship until it had fired another twenty-five shots. Then the U-boat ceased firing and signaled for the lifeboats to go alongside, which was a little after 10 o'clock. The naval crew, with myself, Captain Oliver, and the other officers of the Campana were invited on board by the commander, who spoke English, and I believe had been an officer on one of the big German transatlantic liners before the war.

"After sending his boat to get some stores from the tanker the commander ordered his men to place bombs in the hold and blow her up, which was done. He asked how much draft we had aft, and when the Captain replied, 'Thirteen feet,' he said, 'Well, I fired a torpedo at your ship at a depth of fifteen feet, and it must have missed her.'

"After noting down the tonnage and details of the voyage of the Campana in a log book, the commander turned to Captain Oliver and said: 'I have been instructed to take all American Captains and gun crews prisoners to Germany, but have only stores and accommodation for six. I am going direct back to Germany because the submarine has been cruising a long time, and I need overhauling and new supplies of torpedoes, ammunition, and stores. When we arrive in port I will see that the six prisoners will have an opportunity of cabling home to their friends.

"'I am sorry that America has entered the war and hate to fight Americans because I have always liked them, but I must do my duty. They are good sports and always play the game well. I hate the French and more especially the English.'

"Then he told Captain Oliver that he must remain on board with five of the gun crew, and asked for volunteers. He wanted a man who could speak German. Wilhelm Miller answered with others, and when the commander heard his first name he said: 'You will do.'

Got Wireless Warning.

"As we were about to row away from the submarine, the commander said:

"'My wireless operator has just picked up a message from a French warship that is coming toward us. Keep away from that ship, because I am going to sink her.'

"At 6 o'clock that night we were picked up by a French warship and the officers told us that an hour before they had received a wireless from a French cruiser that she had sunk a big submarine. This vessel, the officers said, when challenged by the U-boat, fired her six-inch guns with deadly effect. The submarine crumpled up amidship and sank stern first with her bow in the air."

Bruce said that after he had made his report at the Standard Oil office, 26 Broadway, he was going to Harlem to see Captain Oliver's wife and give her a message that he received from the Captain before the lifeboats pulled away from the U-boat.

IRISHMEN WON GLORY IN FIGHT FOR HILL 35

Swept the Germans from Ridge, but Had to Retire Before Superior Forces.

By The Associated Press.

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Aug. 22.—The story of the valiant fight waged by Irish battalions, both Ulstermen and South of Ireland men, in the recent British offensive northeast of Ypres forms one of the most remarkable pages in the history of this sanguinary battle. As was the case with the intrepid Londoners in Polygon Wood to the south, they did not achieve the success which they sought, but the struggle they made against overwhelming odds will make their names immortal in Irish annals.

The ground over which the Irish troops fought Thursday may roughly be placed as lying between Fortuin on the north and Frezenberg on the south. Before them lay strong Bavarian positions scattered over a terrain which at first sight made an advance seem impossible. Stretching out from the Zonnebeke-Langemarck road across the centre of the battlefield was a ridge which dominated all surrounding ground, and from a myriad of machine guns on the crest a deluge of bullets could be poured into advancing ranks.

Through the southern part of this section the swollen Zonnebeke River poured its muddy water, and scattered along both banks of the stream were many steel and concrete redoubts holding from twenty to 100 Germans, all well-armed. Immediately in front of the Irish was undulating ground. Every knoll was a strong Bavarian position, and the whole section was filled with concrete redoubts and shell-hole nests lined with machine guns. Depressions in the ground were a mass of knee-deep mud caused by recent rains and the flood of the river.

The Ulstermen first struck a position called Pond Farm, below Fortuin. Here were many machine guns placed in concrete pits behind which towered strong redoubts and deep dugouts. The Ulstermen plunged into the gun pits, and a fierce struggle followed. The Bavarians would not surrender, and they fought until the last German lay crumpled beside his gun. A small garrison was left to hold this place, and the Irishmen pushed on. There was constant and bitter fighting at every step.

Near Pond Farm they were held up by partly cut barbed wire entanglements, and as they struggled through these they were swept with bullets. Numerous redoubts were encountered beyond, and in most cases it was hand-to-hand fighting to a finish with a stubborn enemy. The Southern Irish at a given hour went forward with all the coolness which made them famous at Ginchy and other places. They surged on through the mire to some of their objectives, but they had passed numerous unsilenced machine gun emplacements, and following waves of infantry were held up by them.

North of Frezenberg was a redoubt called Borry Farm, holding from sixty to eighty Bavarians with machine guns. The position was too strong for the infantry to take, but the Irishmen battled on until those troops which had essayed an attack on the fortification lay dead or wounded before it. But others pushed forward to Hill 35, as this ridge which dominated the surrounding ground was called, and for a time that eminence was actually in British hands. But it was too important a position for the Germans to relinquish. They massed great numbers of men behind it and hurled them against the Irish. The latter met the onslaught with bayonets and clubbed rifles and fought as their forefathers fought, fiercely and determinedly. But they were greatly outnumbered, and gradually they were forced to fall back until the Germans had regained their hold on the hill.

The Bavarians then began a series of heavy counterattacks, and the Irish, many of them wounded and all exhausted, retreated slowly, fighting every inch of the way until they reached the trenches which they left at dawn and which they held.

CONDEMNS THE MASSES AS ORGAN OF TREASON

Burleson Also Denounces Watson's Jeffersonian as a Foe of the Government.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The Masses, a Soialist magazine published in New York, was denounced by Postmaster General Burleson in a communication to the Senate today as a leader in organized propaganda to discourage enlistments, prevent subscriptions to the Liberty Loan and obstruct the Draft act. He mentioned The Jeffersonian, of which Thomas E. Watson is editor, as in the same class.

Mr. Burleson declined to give more specific reasons for barring The Masses from the mails, saying such information was incompatible with the public interest.

Arctic Relief Ship Neptune Sighted Off the Coast of Labrador.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 22.—The relief sailing steamer Neptune, commanded by Captain Robert Bartlett, bringing some members of the McMillan arctic exploration party from Greenland, was reported tonight off the coast of Labrador. The Neptune probably will reach here Sunday.

The McMillan party left New York on July 2, 1913, on the sealer Diana. Captain Robert A. Bartlett on the sealer Neptune left St. John's, N. F., on June 30 last for Sydney, C. B. A few days later he left Sydney for Etah, where the McMillan expedition was quartered. Three attempts to find the McMillan party failed.

66 OF 413 EXCUSED BY DISTRICT BOARD

Y. M. C. A. War Council Official's Case Referred to Brig. Gen. Crowder for Solution.

MOTHER-IN-LAW IS NO HELP

Supporting Her Not Accepted as Reason for Exemption — Many Claims Have Been Withdrawn.

The District Exemption Board of New York City, of which Charles E. Hughes is Chairman, handed down decisions in 162 cases yesterday, of which 144 were appeals from the decisions of local boards and eighteen claims for discharge from service for industrial reasons. Of the 144 appeals from local boards the appeal was denied in 112 cases while only five of the industrial claims were granted, in each instance for six months. To date the District Board has decided 413 cases, of which 347 were denied and 66 granted.

One of the most interesting of the cases before the board yesterday was that of Carlton O. Miller of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Miller when passed waived exemption and the appeal for his exemption was made by Fletcher S. Brockman, as associate secretary of the association's War Council. The papers in the case show that Mr. Miller has been designated as an official of the War Council's Paris Office and that he will have several hundred secretaries under him, and will supervise a war fund of about $2,000,000 to be expended for the comfort and welfare of the American troops in France. When Mr. Miller was passed for service by Board 154 he stated that if the War Department believed he would be of more service in the army than in the Y. M. C. A. he stood ready to serve there. The District Board finally voted to refer this case to Provost Marshal General Crowder.

Lauren Wheeler, passed by Board 176, was granted six months' exemption because he is an expert wirer of airplane wings employed on Government work. Robert J. Wandsman, passed by Board 11, in the Bronx, was also granted six months' exemption because he is at present doing experimental work for the Government, his special work being the development of a stabilizer for use on airplanes.

Abraham J. Bernfeld, passed by Board 64, asked that he be exempted because he supports his mother-in-law. His wife is a school teacher and self-supporting, and the claim was denied. Vincent Marino, passed by Board 102, asked exemption upon a common-law marriage.

It was stated yesterday that hundreds of claims for exemption have been withdrawn in the last few days. Most of these men felt their apeals would not be granted. Chairman Hughes made the following announcement:

"We do not concur in the view suggested in some quarters that in case of wife and children actually dependent on the applicant's labor for support, and where there are no other means of support, the wife should be put to the necessity of going to work to support herself and children. Bona fide dependency of wife and children on labor of applicant where in his absence they will be left without reasonably adequate support after duly taking into consideration soldier's wage and support available from relatives, as stated in the rulings of the Provost Marshal General, is ground of discharge."

Mr. Hughes stated that he has telegraphed to Governor Whitman to fill vacancies through the resignation of Nathan Straus and John Dalton at the earliest possible moment, on account of the great amount of work the board has to do.

William H. Conkling, a brother of Deputy Attorney General Roscoe S. Conkling, passed the physical test yesterday before Board 43 in Brooklyn. He has a wife and a young child, but waived exemption and will join the national army.

HAIG THRUSTS AGAIN EAST OF YPRES

the north and is therefore of great value to the holders.

"The batle of Lens today had diminished in intensity to the point of 'comparative calm,' due to pure exhaustion of the German troops who had been hurled time after time against the Canadians in fierce counterattacks. No less than eight heavy assaults were made against the Canadian positions northwest of the city proper last night, and in each case the Germans were thrown back at the point of the bayonet. The Canadians this afternoon are holding all the positions which they reached southwest of the heart of the city yesterday, and this morning they added two more posts to their captures.

"On the northwest the situation is virtually where it stood yesterday morning, although the Canadians have established themselves in a number of new posts which they wrested from the enemy.

"The British were under no delusions as to the strength of the German positions to the northeast of Ypres when they began their attack at dawn. The whole sector is a network of machine guns, redoubts, and shell-hole nests, behind which are elevations covered with rapid-firers, which can sweep the whole country before them with a deadly hail of bullets. The British have forged ahead at many points and have reduced numbers of strong German redoubts. A considerable number of prisoners have also been sent to the rear, but the nature of the struggle makes it impossible to visualize it with definite statements at this time. The Germans have large concentrations of troops in this section, and all day they have been delivering heavy counterattacks against the British."

Berlin Admits Reverse Near Lens.

BERLIN, Aug. 22, (Via London.)—After the battle around Lens yesterday, the German General Staff reports, the coal depot southwest of the French mining centre remained in the hands of the British. The statement relating to the fighting on the British front reads:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria—In Flanders the artillery duel on the coast and from Bixschoote to Warneton again was intense in the evening. Early yesterday morning, after a vigorous wave of fire northeast of Ypres a strong English attack took place near St. Julien. It was repulsed. Early this morning fresh engagements developed in the region lying between the roads leading from Staden and Menines to Ypres.

In the Artois the enemy attacked northwest of Lens, after vigorous artillery preparation. Local eruptions were equalized by powerful counterthrusts, which led to bitter hand-to-hand fighting. The coal depot situated southwest of Lens, which had been set on fire by shells, is still in the hands of the British.

The supplementary report from German Headquarters tonight reads:

In Flanders the British attack east of Ypres which began this morning, extending over a fifteen-kilometer front, failed, the enemy suffering heavy losses.

BRITISH FIGHT THROUGH AN ENFILADING FIRE

Storm German "Pill Boxes" in Their Advance East of St. Julien.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1917, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 22.—There was severe fighting again today eastward of St. Julien, three and a half miles northeast of Ypres, extending south across the Zonnebeke beyond the Frezenberg Redoubt, while on the right the British troops again penetrated the Glencorse Copse and fought on that ugly rising ground which the enemy has been defending in great strength. On the left progress has been made from the high road of St. Julien to the Zonnebeke-Langemarck road, which cuts across it and which is guarded on the enemy's side by two strong points with the usual concrete shelters. Below them is another strong position called Winnipeg, about which the British were heavily engaged in the early hours of this morning, and below that again the same series of "pillboxes" and concrete blockhouse against which the Irish battalions went forward with such desperate valor on the 16th of this month.

The Scottish troops attacked today where the southern Irish were engaged six days ago. The surface of the shell-broken earth is hardening, but it is only a thin crust over a bog, so that the tanks which went forward today here and there could not get very far without sinking in.

The enemy put down a furious barrage fire soon after the attack started today, and kept the Frezenberg Redoubt under an intense bombardment, but, soon as the attack developed, he could not use his artillery against the British at many points, not knowing what forts and ground were still held by his own troops. He relied again upon a cross-fire of machine guns, arranged very skillfully, and upon the garrisons which held his concrete redoubts in the advanced positions.

On the left his defense this morning was a division of Silesian troops (the Twelfth Reserve Division) brought up fresh for counterattacks, and on the right the Bavarians. These men have shown the most stubborn courage. If they are driven into the open they run or surrender, but with a grim spirit of endurance they cling to their blockhouses and serve their guns in spite of all bombardments. In one of the blockhouses this morning the Midland men captured forty-seven prisoners who, when they were surrounded, took refuge in tunneled galleries, running to the right of the main fort, called the Schuler farm.

Some of the British fought through the enfilading fire of machine guns as far as the slope of Hill 35, and to the right of this the Scots made a gallant and fierce assault toward the Bremen redoubt.

The issue of this day's fighting is still doubtful, because the day is not yet finished, and at the present time the struggle continues on both sides.

Down by Glencorse Copse the situation is even more obscure, and I must wait until tomorrow before I can write about this action.

Meanwhile another battle is in progress far away from the old Ypres salient. It is the battle of Lens. The Canadians have been fighting hard and checking repeated counterattacks of the most violent kind. The number of those counterattacks now must have reached a score, and they have been delivered by strong bodies of men advancing behind storms of shell fire. Again and again they have been beaten off with what the Canadians believe to have been extremely heavy losses. The fighting has been fierce and bloody, and the Canadians have shown determination and staying power of a marvelous kind. Never in all their fighting out here have they been so hard pressed by an enemy reckless of loss so long as he holds his ground, or have made such a long series of big assaults over difficult ground.

The Canadians' gain yesterday morning was over a frontage of 2,000 yards from the site of Ste. Emilie southward. Three counterattacks were launched against them during the day, and each one was preceded by intense bombardment. The enemy has increased his artillery around Lens by many batteries which constantly shift their positions in order to avoid the British counter-battery work, and they are using every kind and size of shell, including large quantities of gas shells of the most poisonous sort.

One counterattack took place this morning on the southern side of Lens, and another at about 2:30 was delivered against the Canadian centre, while a third advanced on the north. Swarms of men came from the cellars and tunnels of Lens and advanced in waves against the Canadian troops, who swept them down with machine gun fire. During the evening fresh counterattacks developed, but the Canadians held on to their advanced posts, even under this continual pressure and terrific gunfire.

Many new troops have been brought up for the defense of Lens, but the Canadians have tightened their hold on it and will never let go until they have strangled it.

SENATE VOTES FOR MORE INCOME TAX

tain set of men who, prating loudly about patriotism and crying for war, there would have been no necesity for levying the heavy burdens of this bill."

Senators Lewis also said that had "this set of very wealthy men" shown fidelity and honesty in making their income tax returns, the Government would in past years have had ample funds for preparedness purposes.

The vote on the Gerry amendment came as a distinct shock to Senator La Follette, who had expected that the Senate would take up his own drastic amendment first. The tax imposed by the Gerry amendment had been drawn to conform to the higher taxes of the La Follette measure, so that the Wisconsin Senator had no alternative but to support it.

It was found that the tax of 37 5-10 per cent. conflicted with the tax fixed by the Gerry amendment of 35 per cent. upon incomes running from $500,000 to $750,000. Senator Gerry proposed, as a means of correcting the defect, to increase the taxes in his levy to 40 per cent. on incomes from $500,000 to $750,000 and to 45 per cent. on incomes from $750,000 to $1,000,000. The Senate will vote on this tomorrow.

The Schedule.

Here is the income tax section, as voted by the Senate today, with the higher levies of 40 and 45 per cent. to correct the defect in the Gerry amendment:

1 per cent.	exceeding	$5,000	up to	$7,500
2 per cent.	"	7,500	"	10,000
3 per cent.	"	10,000	"	12,500
4 per cent.	"	12,500	"	15,000
6 per cent.	"	15,000	"	20,000
8 per cent.	"	20,000	"	40,000
10 per cent.	"	40,000	"	60,000
13 75-100 p. c.	"	60,000	"	80,000
17 5-10 p. c.	"	80,000	"	100,000
21 25-100 p. c.	"	100,000	"	150,000
25 per cent.	"	150,000	"	200,000
30 per cent.	"	200,000	"	250,000
33 75-100 p. c.	"	250,000	"	300,000
37 5-10 p. c.	"	300,000	"	500,000
40 per cent.	"	500,000	"	750,000
45 per cent.	"	750,000	"	1,000,000
50 per cent.	"	1,000,000

After the entire income section had been made over Senator La Follette arose to protest that the taxes as framed did not go far enough. He expressed disappointment that the Senate had thrust his own amendment aside, saying that it would produce appreciably more than the section as it now stood.

The Wisconsin Senator talked for an hour, urging the Senate to adopt his own amendment. He consented, he said, to change his draft to conform to the Gerry taxes. The fault Senator La Follette found with the section as put through by the Senate was that it did not impose a sufficient levy upon incomes from $50,000 up to $500,000. Under his scheme, he insisted, with a gradual increase of 1 per cent. for each $2,500 of income, fully $10,000,000 more would be accumulated.

Senator La Follette talked until the Senate recessed for the night. The Senate will vote upon his substitute tomorrow. Leaders anticipate that the Senate will stick to its vote of today, and discard the whole La Follette scheme.

POLITICIANS PONDER ON HEARST'S MOTIVE

Murphy, Facing Tammany Opposition to Editor, Orders Rank and File to Stand by Hylan.

BENNETT A FUSION DANGER

Will Appeal to Every Enrolled Republican—Queens Magistracy May Embarrass Mitchel.

The entrance of William R. Hearst into the Democratic Mayoralty fight through the filing of petitions on Tuesday night whereby he obtains a chance to run in the primary for the Mayoralty nomination against County Judge John F. Hylan, the regular Democratic nominee, stirred speculation among politicians yesterday as to Mr. Hearst's motives and intentions.

No word came from Mr. Hearst, who is in California, as to whether he would run, although his secretary, L. J. O'Reilly, telegraphed for instructions and information. It was the general belief about Tammany Hall that Mr. Hearst would refuse to make a primary fight against Judge Hylan. On the other hand the Hearst newspapers have made no move to support Judge Hylan.

Tammany leaders who opposed the selection of Judge Hylan by Charles F. Murphy and John H. McCooey are in no mood to support Hearst. Of the two candidates, many said that they preferred the Kings County Judge. Hearst also has strong opposition among the Executive Committeemen in Fourteenth Street, particularly "Big Tom" Foley and Sheriff Al Smith. Leader Murphy, it was said yesterday, has given up all idea of trying to "put Hearst over" this year, although he inclined strongly to him before Judge Hylan was chosen. As Judge Hylan shows no inclination to quit, Murphy, it was said, has given the word to the Tammany rank and file to support him.

Despite the Hearst opposition in Tammany some of the leaders professed to see a deep laid scheme on the part of Hearst and Murphy to have Hearst beat Hylan and then appear as the popular rather than the Tammany choice.

No Word from Hearst.

Mr. O'Reilly said yesterday that he did not doubt that Mr. Hearst knew by this time about the petitions being filed. "Up to the present, however," he said, "I haven't heard a word from Mr. Hearst. In an effort to find out who started these petitions I got into communication with some of the signers but could get little or no information as to where the idea of having Mr. Hearst run for Mayor originated. Unless I hear from him later in the day I shall telegraph him the facts of the filing of the petitions and ask him what he wants done in the matter."

Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall, said yesterday, in the absence of Leader Murphy, that there was no plan or discussion of a plan for withdrawing Judge Hylan in favor of Hearst. Judge Hylan did not attempt to disguise his interest in the Hearst situation but said he was entirely in the dark concerning it.

Judge Hylan had another conference yesterday with his running mates on the city ticket, Charles L. Craig, candidate for Controller, and Sheriff Smith, candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. It was agreed that each candidate should conduct his own campaign in all essential matters. During the conference Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, who was a candidate for the Mayoralty designation, was called in to give expert opinion regarding the handling of the Board of Education issue, which Judge Hylan will make one of the prominent features of his campaign.

Bennett Threatens Trouble.

The Fusion-Mitchel forces began to take notice yesterday of the fight that is to be made against the Fusion ticket in the Republican primary by ex-State Senator William M. Bennett, who filed a petition designating himself for Mayor against Mayor Mitchel, and a whole city and county ticket. Two of the candidates selected, William H. Douglas for Controller and Theodore T. Baylor for President of the Board of Aldermen, are expected to withdraw within a few days to give place to persons better known. It was learned yesterday that Frank D. Wilsey, a former member of the Board of Education, is being considered for President of the Board of Aldermen in Mr. Baylor's place. Mr. Wilsey is a boat builder of the Bronx, and had long served as Chairman of the Building Committee of the Board of Education. He was considered a Churchill man on the Board, and when his term expired recently Mayor Mitchel did not reappoint him. The real candidate for Controller has not yet been named.

Mr. Bennett said last night that he was in the Mayoralty race to stay. His first step in the campaign, he said, would be to send 250,000 letters to enrolled Republicans calling attention to the fact that he is the only Republican candidate running in the primaries and that therefore he is entitled to support. He said he would attack the Mitchel administration from many angles and show up the real estate situation in the city. He said he had received assurances of support from many prominent Republicans in all boroughs. "I will demonstrate," said Mr. Bennett, "that the Republicans of New York City are sick of voting eternally for Democrats."

A Muddle in Queens.

An interesting situation developed yesterday among fusion forces in Queens. District Attorney Denis O'Leary, who was indorsed by the Fusion Committee, refused to file petitions which would bring his name before the Republican primaries, and announced that he would conduct an independent campaign in the interest of his own election solely. At the same time Mayor Mitchel's delay in naming a City Magistrate to fill the place made vacant by the expiration of the term of James J. Conway has threatened the fusion ranks. De Bragga, Chairman of the Republican Committee, urges the appointment of Edgar F. Hazleton, who has filed a petition for nomination for District Attorney, which has angered O'Leary. Thomas F. Dwyer, Deputy Commissioner of Water Supply, is the Democratic candidate.

PLENTY OF IRON CROSSES.

Kaiser Also Says Many Men Are Promoted from Ranks.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 22, (via London.)—Some time ago a Reichstag member, Felix Marquardt, addressed a memorial to the Kaiser expressing the wish that all soldiers who had served at the front since the beginning of the war should be awarded the Iron Cross of the second class, and that Iron Crosses not earned in service at the front, but on lines of communication and at home, should be especially distinguished. He also asked the Kaiser to facilitate the promotion of private soldiers to the rank of officers.

To this memorial the Kaiser, through the Chief of the Imperial Military Cabinet, has directed a reply stating that these questions have been given due consideration for a long time by him, but considerations not merely of a military nature have prevented him from making at present the distinction between iron crosses desired by Marquardt. He added that even the iron cross of the first class was now being liberally awarded to noncommissioned officers and men.

Concerning the promotion of men to be officers the reply says such promotions are not made dependent on social conditions if the commanding officer thinks a man's distinction before the enemy warrants reward. The number of soldiers thus promoted in this war is incomparably larger than that in 1870, almost every day proposals for such promotions being submitted to the Kaiser's decision.

PLANS TO FIX COST ON WAR ESSENTIALS

impossible for them to know the conditions they would face and endeavor to adjust their industry accordingly. They were anxious to know, for one thing, whether the President intended to establish a coal dictatorship, through which the Government would buy up the supply and pool and resell it, or whether he expected that they would meet the prices on the present basis without further Government supervision. There were few who believed that the President would actually commandeer and operate the mines, except as a last step, if faced by open revolt on the part of the operaotrs.

There was talk, too, that operators might not be able to meet the demands of labor for increased wages, or even continue existing agreements with labor, under the price schedule announced from the White House. The President, it is said, feels that this situation can be met under the prices quoted. An open revolt of operators on this question is one of the emergencies which might eventually force Government operation of mines.

One of the principal organizations which took the matter under consideration today was the National Association of Coal Operators, in session at the new Interior Building, where Francis S. Peabody, Chairman of the Coal Production Committee of the Council of National Defense, has his offices. That was the committee which, with Secretary Lane of the Interior, and Commissioner Fort of the Federal Trade Commission, entered the so-called $3 agreement with the operators several weeks ago.

Mr. Peabody and representatives of the association suggested that they hoped to work in accord with the Government in the matter, but did not seem very cheerful. The association decided to call a big meeting of coal men in Pittsburgh for Aug. 29, and issued this message, in which they refer to the conditions created by the President's price fixing effort as "abnormal."

> National Association of Coal Operators,
> Washington, D. C., Aug. 22, 1917.
> All Bituminous Coal Operators, Associations, and Individual Operating Concerns Not Members of the Coal Operators' Association:
> In view of the action of the President with reference to the bituminous coal industry of the country, as reported in the morning press, it is deemed of the greatest importance that the coal producers of the United States meet as soon as possible for the purpose of discussing and considering the abnormal conditions under which the industry is now asked to labor.
> Accordingly, the National Association of Coal Operators extends an invitation to all bituminous coal producers of the country to meet at the William Penn Hotel, Pittsburgh, Penn., at 10 A. M. Wednesday, Aug. 29, 1917.
> Should you desire to communicate with the National Association of Coal Operators prior to the meeting, please address J. D. A. Morrow, Secretary, Pittsburgh Coal Producers' Association, 323 Farmers' Bank Building, Pittsburgh, Penn.

The association has 600 mines in its membership, it was said, and controls approximately 150,000,000 tons of bituminous coal a year.

President Wilson remained silent today as to the effect of his order on existing contracts and as to the next step he will take for a more complete control of the coal situation. It was reported on high authority, however, that he had definitely offered the position of Coal Controller to Dr. Harry A. Garfield, at present at the head of the commission to fix the price of wheat. Dr. Garfield called at the White House offices yesterday, and it is reported that he left word that he would accept. A definite announcement is expected in a day or two.

Senator Pomerene, it was said today, felt that the prices quoted by the President were too high, in some sections at least, rather than too low. His opinion, it was said, was based on investigations made recently by a Senate committee of which he was chairman. It was understood that he might take some steps to bring down the level.

The Navy Department felt fully vindicated today in refusing to pay the price fixed by the Coal Committee of the Council of National Defense for its coal by the announcement of the President's act in prescribing a rate of a little more than $2 for run-of-mine coal. The committee's recommendation was $2.95 at the mine, which would have meant $4.35 delivered at Hampton Roads.

GAS-FILLED DUGOUTS ENTERED BY OUR TROOPS

By The Associated Press.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, Monday, Aug. 20.—Work began at the American field headquarters today of accustoming the men of the American expeditionary force to some of their stealthy enemies on the actual battlefront. They were introduced to dugouts filled with tear gas such as the Germans are so fond of spraying about behind the fighting lines through the medium of thousands of varicalibred shells. The Germans also have hand grenades filled with liquid which explodes into blinding fumes.

The object of today's demonstration was to prove to the men the absolute reliability of their French gas masks, for after being put through the dugouts without the slightest inconvenience with their masks on they all are allowed to get one whiff of the gas without the masks. With smarting eyes they quickly realize, after one second's exposure without protection, how important the daily gas-mask drills are, for not only the men's eyes but their lives depend upon the speed with which the masks can be adjusted when the alarm is given. Later the men will have experience with real asphyxiating gas.

LAST YEAR at the NATIONAL TOURNAMENT

The concern controlling tobacco sales at the championship tournament at Forest Hills last fall states that the sale of Fatimas exceeded that of any other cigarette.

So at tennis, just as at the golf clubs and baseball games—Fatimas are a favorite.

—For the delicate relish of their finely balanced Turkish Blend

—For the comfort this blend gives to throat and tongue

—For the keen, alert feeling a man retains, even after smoking more often than usual

Fatimas are a sensible cigarette. Try them and see for yourself.

End of the run

If you want your car to be fit at the end of a long run, don't feed it on any old gasoline. Use So-CO-ny (accent on the second syllable).

WILL PASS FOOD BILL IF PERKINS RETIRES

Attitude of Legislators Set Forth by Senator Brown—Whitman Not Responsive.

REASSEMBLING A FIASCO

Only a Handful of Members in Each House, and Fresh Appeals Are Wired to Absentees.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 22.—The elimination of George W. Perkins as a factor in food control in this State is the price demanded by Republican lawmakers for favorable action on the pending bill for the creation of a food control commission. Governor Whitman indicated tonight that he was not prepared to enter upon any bargain with the legislators on that basis.

Elon R. Brown, President pro tem. of the Senate, soon after he arrived at the Capitol this afternoon declared that if the food control bill should be defeated the responsibility would rest upon Mr. Perkins. Senator Brown called upon Mr. Perkins to efface himself as a patriotic duty.

"The whole people up-State are up in arms against Mr. Perkins," said the Senate leader. "They do not think that he should be allowed to impose his personal views upon the people through food control. It is a matter of great regret to me that Mr. Perkins should insist upon injecting himself into a situation already complex. If Mr. Perkins wants to do a service to his country, let him eliminate himself; if he does, the situation here will quickly clear."

Senator Brown said he would work for the Food Control bill, even if Mr. Perkins is not eliminated, but he could not answer for his Republican colleagues. Talks with other Republican members of the Senate seemed to indicate that Mr. Perkins will fail of confirmation as a member of the Food Commission.

When informed of Senator Brown's statement Governor Whitman said: "This is no time for personalities. The matter of imminent and pressing importance before the Legislature is to pass the Food Control bill."

Under a concurrent resolution adopted last week the Senate and Assembly were to meet to consider the bill at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Telegrams were sent out by Speaker Sweet and Senator Brown yesterday urging all members to be in attendance. But when the appointed hour arrived only a score of Assemblymen out of 150 and half a dozen of the 49 Senators were in their seats. Both houses adjourned until tomorrow.

Senator Brown and Speaker Sweet seem determined to end the extraordinary session this week, notwithstanding the slim attendance. Speaker Sweet before the Assembly adjourned told the few members present to "bring their dinner pails and their supper pails tomorrow and prepare to sit through until the business of the session has been transacted."

A conference of the Republican Assemblymen has been called for tomorrow. This is taken as an indication that the Speaker has secured the necessary fifty votes to turn the conference into a caucus and swing this in line for the Governor's bill. Some doubt was expressed tonight by lawmakers from up State whether members of the group of thirty-five Republican Assemblymen from agricultural districts who last week banded themselves together to defeat the measure would enter the caucus.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, leader of the Democratic minority in the upper house, said that he would offer amendments to the pending bill to make it conform more closely to the bill drafted under Governor Whitman's personal supervision and introduced under Democratic auspices. But Senator Wagner made it plain that if the enactment of food control legislation depended on Democratic votes these in the end would be forthcoming, even if the Democratic amendments were defeated.

Assemblyman verett of St. Lawrence has proposed an amendment for the establishment of warehouses under State auspices at central points in the State for the storage of food supplies either obtained through seizure by the food control commission or sent there voluntarily by food producers to be sold under State auspices.

During the brief legislative session Senator James A. Foley, a New York Democrat, introduced a bill to appropriate $100,000 for the erection of a dehydration plant and to provide means for encouraging the study of scientific drying processes. Assemblyman Frederick A. Wells, Republican, of Brooklyn, announced his intention of introducing tomorrow an amendment to the Food bill which would specifically provide that the production and distribution of milk be brought under State control.

TEXAS GOVERNOR SILENT.

Still Refuses to Tell Who Loaned Him $150,000.

AUSTIN, Aug. 22.—Governor Ferguson should know by Saturday whether he will have to stand trial before the State Senate on a bill of impeachment presented by the House of Representatives. Taking of testimony on the thirteen charges preferred by Speaker Fuller was concluded today. The committee, after a two-hour session tonight, recessed until tomorrow morning, when arguments will be continued.

While no announcement has been made, it is expected that when voting begins each charge will be considered separately. This should bring final action late Friday or some time Saturday.

Despite the vote of the House Committee, 70 to 56, that he must tell who lent him more than $150,000 to pay off bank debts, the Governor today maintained his silence.

LEAGUE ISLAND MEN PLEDGE LOYALTY

the committee, "you are enlisted as truly as any gun pointer or Captain on the bridge of a ship. We are engaged in a great war, a war which calls for the employment of all our resources and the services of all our men. No man who enlists in the navy and goes across the water is serving his country more patriotically than you gentlemen in navy yards who construct and repair our fighting ships, without which their service would be of little avail. It is a very heartening thing in this crisis to know you feel the responsibility which rests upon all good citizens.

"A year ago we were discussing politics and small questions. Today all questions are shriveled beside the momentous one involved in the worldwide war. Today you do not stop to reflect whether you are a Republican or a Democrat. You do not think about anything but America, whose purpose is to lift up and enlarge the opportunities of men who labor all over the world. America is the ideal of all the world today.

"We have our troubles. There are injustices which we must end, but in spite of them our country is a beacon light to those looking for liberty and equality. When we shall have won this war, of which there is no doubt, we shall be the model of those people who will come into a larger life.

"I congratulate you that you see the significance of unity in this hour of national life. We have no place but for accord and national unity. We must not think of any business except the business of winning the war. That is the business of America.

"You gentlemen are in the heart of that business. If our ships are not well made, if our ships are not fitted properly to sail the seas and to protect our transports, if the guns are not properly placed, victory cannot come.

Calls It Roll of Honor.

"I am glad you realize your responsibility. It is as high as that of any other men in America. The spirit shown by you gentlemen and of these thousands of men who have written their names on what we might call the Roll of Honor is the spirit manifested by the Minute Men, men ready to make sacrifices. This list of names will be preserved in the archives of the Navy Department as that of men who stand among the country's most honored volunteers.

"The Government must be fair, it must be human. Sometimes we think about the Government as something far off, something that is handed down to us, forgetting that the Government is ourselves. We are the Government; you are the Government; and America cannot win the war unless the people follow your example at other navy yards, at arsenals, in the machine shops, on the farms, everywhere, and see in this war that every man enlists in heart, in mind, in skill. If all will follow your example this war will not be a long war and we will soon celebrate victory.

"I thank you, gentlemen, and for the President, who is bearing great burdens and embodying in his great work the best conception of American leadership. He will be heartened when he knows of your last visit and your memorial, and that you have put your character and your lives behind your words of patriotism. What you have done will stimulate others to higher partiotic service."

Expects No Navy Yard Strike.

Threats of a strike at the New York Navy Yard arouse little anxiety at the Navy Department, because Secretary Daniels is confident that the adjustment of wages, now being considered by the joint board representing the navy, the War Department, and the Department of Labor, will be so equitable that disputes will be obviated.

Secretary Daniels said that there was every disposition on the part of the Government to recognize conditions which justified increased wages for certain classes of work, indicating that without doubt higher wages would be paid.

No Strike at Navy Yard Here.

Notwithstanding the resolution adopted at the stormy shipyard strikers' meeting in Tammany Hall on Tuesday afternoon to call out the machinists and boiler makers from every marine shop in New York, including the navy yard, there was no extension of the strike yesterday. According to union officials there are 5,000 men on strike in seventeen shipyards around New York, Henry C. Hunter, a lawyer, of 300 Church Street, who represents the employers, said about 4,000 men were out and that ten yards were affected.

Two members of the United States Conciliation Board were in conference with the strike leaders all day at the Marine Trades Council, 309 Broadway. The conference will continue today.

Daniels Gets Mare Island Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The official report on the explosion which resulted in the death of five men and the injury of many others at the Mare Island Navy Yard last month reached the desk of Secretary Daniels today by mail from Captain George, commandant of the navy yard, who had charge of the investigation. The Navy League recently issued a statement alleging that the investigation had been blocked, and as a result Secretary Daniels called on Colonel Robert M. Thompson, President of the league, to resign. Secretary Daniels is studying the contents of the report tonight and probably will make it public tomorrow.

During the past few days more than one thousand horses have died on the streets and in the stables of New York from the effects of heat. This great property loss, which must mean greatly added costs in the delivery and trucking service of the City, could have been avoided by using electric in place of horse-drawn vehicles

The life of the electric vehicle is practically unlimited. Many delivery wagons and trucks have been in use five, ten, and even fifteen years, and with a minimum of upkeep, are as serviceable today as when new. Electric energy is available everywhere—the quantity is unlimited and the cost is low

Electric vehicles may be purchased on the "Deferred Payment" plan. Without cost, our Transportation Engineers will be glad to study and report upon any New York problem

EXONERATES HOME IN MIXUP OF BABIES

Wm. D. Guthrie, Counsel for Hospital, Says All Precautions Were Taken.

FLORIO FAMILY NOT BLAMED

Lawyer Inclines to Belief That Person Who Brought Infants to Sea Cliff Made Mistake.

William D. Guthrie, as counsel for the Country Home for Convalescent Babies at Sea Cliff, L. I., issued a statement yesterday relative to the matter of the mistake in identity made in the case of little Charles Wisatsky, who died two days after he was returned to his mother. Mr. Guthrie declared that so far as he could see, no blame could be laid on either the hospital or the Florio family, to which the Wisatsky baby was sent by mistake. He further urged that some sort of means of identification should be employed by families who sent their children to institutions.

"Children are brought to the Sea Cliff Home," said Mr. Guthrie, "by persons sent by the hospitals, generally without identifying marks or tags of any kind. It is the invariable custom to take precautions to identify the babies. The explanation of the confusion of the babies in the present case is that probably one of the persons sent by the hospitals made a mistake and pointed out to the nurse at the home the wrong baby at the time of admission. The Superintendent, the nurse, and the nursery maids in charge are all positive that no confusion of the children occurred after the babies were admitted.

"Upon the admission of babies a nurse receives them, and usually the Superintendent is present. The person sent with the child by the hospital gives the nurse in charge an application for the admission of the baby, and the nurse assumes the care of the child; the nurse and the Superintendent make an examination, and at this time a card is made out which is kept with the child and is later attached to the baby's crib and remains there during the entire time that the child is in the home. This was the course of procedure in the case of the babies in question.

"On June 22 five children were admitted, one of whom was the Wisatsky baby and another the Florio baby. The Wisatsky baby came from Lebanon Hospital and the Florio baby from Bellevue Hospital. They were brought to the home by different persons. They were of about the same age and similar in physique, and the diagnoses were similar."

Mr. Guthrie told how the baby whom the home knew as the Florio child, but who was, in fact, the Wisatsky baby, was sent to the Florio family, where it remained until it was identified by Mrs. Wisatsky. He asserted that investigation showed that the Florios gave the baby intrusted to them all the care they could.

The hearing will continue before Assistant District Attorney Cohn of the Bronx.

CANADA TO CURTAIL MUNITIONS OUTPUT

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—The Imperial Munitions Board announced today that production of munitions in Canada will be discontinued, as no longer necessary, except in some lines which, in part, will be produced in lessened quantities. Some of the plants affected will in consequence resume pre-war activities in their regular lines; others will engage in production of equipment for ships.

"Toward the close of 1916," the statement says, "the capacity for producing munitions in Great Britain had so increased that the Minister of Munitions decided that it was unnecessary to continue the production of munitions in the United States for British account, except in a few special lines. The production in Canada, however, was continued as before.

"The Minister has now advised that it is unnecessary to continue production in Canada. He has directed that certain lines shall be discontinued, that other lines shall be produced in lessened quantities, while some lines are to be continued as at present.

"The effect of this will be to stop the production of shells and components at some plants which are now producing sizes no longer required.

"In other plants, where shells are made of sizes of which a reduced output is required, it will mean working during the day only, thus stopping night work. In other plants, however, where sustained production is required operations will be continued night as well as day."

AMERICAN FLIER KILLED, ANOTHER IS CAPTURED

Julian Biddle Dies on French Front—Lafayette Squadron Aids Verdun Attack.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Julian Biddle of the Lafayette Aerial Squadron was killed in the service two days ago. It is now learned definitely that Corporal Harold Willis of Boston, who has been missing for several days, was brought down inside the German lines by a German machine.

GRAND HEADQUARTERS OF THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 21.—The American aviators who have taken such an active part in the battle around Verdun are still mourning today over the disappearance of Corporal Harold Willis of Boston, who was brought down behind the German lines several days ago during the height of the battle. While the fate of Willis, who is regarded as one of the best of the American pilots, is unknown, it is thought that he possibly may have landed and been made a prisoner, as his machine, as it went down, was seen to straighten out as it neared the ground.

The Americans since the disappearance of Willis have been engaged in frequent daily patrols and also have acted as escorts for bombarding squadrons which have caused enormous damage to German positions. The aviators have noticed recently that German fliers invariably use incendiary and explosive bullets against French airmen.

Walter Lovell of the Lafayette Flying Squadron, brought down a German airplane Monday and Walter S. Rheno of Boston sent down another. Sergeant Andrew C. Campbell and Corporal James R. Doolittle both gained the French war cross recently for aerial achievement, and Doolittle has now been proposed for the British medal.

Stephen Bigelow of Boston has been slightly wounded, as has also Caleb Coatsworth of Buffalo.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Julian B. Biddle was the youngest son of Mrs. Arthur Biddle of Ambler, Pa. He was a Yale graduate and was 27 years of age. He was admitted to the Lafayette Escadrille nineteen days ago.

RAID OFFICER'S SANITARIUM.

$20,000 Worth of Drugs Found in Lieut. Hoyt's Safe Deposit Box.

The sanitarium of Dr. Daniel J. Hoyt, recently commissioned a Lieutenant in the Medical Reserve Corps and now at a military post in Kansas, was raided at 124th Street and Fifth Avenue yesterday afternoon by Internal Revenue agents, who later opened a box in a Harlem Safe Deposit Company where Dr. Hoyt had deposited $75,000 in Liberty bonds and securities, and found drugs said to be worth more than $20,000. More than 150 persons, many of them of standing, called for prescriptions at the sanitarium while the Federal agents were there. Dr. Daniel Spence, an elderly physician, and Miss Bertha Chamberlain, an attractive young nurse, were arrested on charges of violating the State drug law.

Recently U. S. Minister to Holland, is now writing

Fighting for Peace!

It begins in September

SCRIBNER'S

IT WAS at a gala concert in the palace of Her Royal Highness, the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg—the beautiful, high-spirited girl who rules the little country that lies between the German, Belgian, and French frontiers.

Into the gathering of diplomats came thirty uninvited guests—some courteous, some stiff, wooden, high-chinned and staring—thirty German officers from the garrison at Trier, a few miles away. Their presence was resented.

"What were these Prussians doing there?" the Luxembourgers asked themselves. "Had they come to spy out the land? They had better go home at once—at once!" And they did.

But two months later they returned with countless thousands of the Kaiser's soldiers. Ruthlessly they thrust into a ditch the motor van which the little Luxembourg army put in their way. They tramped into France, as Dr. van Dyke puts it, "through a peaceful neighbor's garden."

HENRY VAN DYKE WAS AT THAT GALA CONCERT. HE WAS THERE AS UNITED STATES MINISTER TO THE NETHERLANDS AND LUXEMBOURG. FOR THREE YEARS HE WAS IN THE HEART OF THINGS. He saw the incident of the thirty uninvited guests as he saw countless other incidents that foreshadowed the Great War and marked its progress.

For months he had been laboring to arrange another Peace Conference—the one that was to have brought the nations to a perfect understanding. That was the task for which he was sent to Holland—this distinguished literary man, this poet and preacher, this man of peace. But Germany blocked him at every step. The other nations were ready; only Berlin was vague, evasive, reserved.

LAST FEBRUARY HENRY VAN DYKE GAVE UP HIS POST. AND THIS WAS HIS REASON: "TO RETURN TO WORK AS A WRITER WITH FULL FREEDOM TO SAY WHAT I THINK AND FEEL."

NOW HE HAS KEPT HIS PROMISE. HE HAS PUT DOWN HIS THOUGHTS AND FEELINGS IN BLACK AND WHITE IN A SERIES OF ARTICLES FOR SCRIBNER'S.

THE FIRST APPEARS TO-DAY IN THE SEPTEMBER ISSUE. Dispassionately, fearlessly, he piles incident on incident as he draws his scorching indictment of the Potsdam Gang. No man had such a chance as he to see and hear.

YOU WILL WANT TO READ EVERY WORD OF HIS ARTICLE, "FIGHTING FOR PEACE—FAIR WEATHER AND STORM-SIGNS," IN THE SEPTEMBER ISSUE AND LATER YOU WILL WANT TO FOLLOW EVERYTHING HE SAYS IN OCTOBER, UNDER THE TITLE "THE WERE-WOLF IS OUT." HE WILL DISCUSS VIGOROUSLY THE ILLEGAL METHODS OF WARFARE INTRODUCED BY GERMANY, AND PARTICULARLY THE SUBMARINE PIRACY; ALSO THE SUFFERINGS OF THE BELGIANS.

WILLIAMS AND MURRAY HAVE CLOSE CALL IN NATIONAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT

WILLIAMS BARELY ESCAPES DEFEAT

Throckmorton Carries Titleholder Five Sets in Spirited Tennis Match.

MURRAY SCARED BY BIDDLE

Quaker Player, Continuing Surprising Display, Taxes Skill of Californian on West Side Court.

The tang of championship tennis was present in nearly every match that was waged in the national singles tournament at Forest Hills yesterday and, while the logical winners for the most part asserted their supremacy, several of them trod perilously close to the brink of defeat. It may seem like a contradiction to say that the man who stood out most prominently was among the defeated, yet such was the case.

When Craig Biddle of Philadelphia entered the tournament he probably had little thought of advancing beyond the second round and certainly those versed in tennis lore would hardly have conceded to him anything better, yet it was Biddle who yesterday came within an ace of forcing the brilliant Californian racquet wielder, Robert Lindley Murray, out of the tournament in a spirited five-set match. The Quaker City expert was beaten only after the score reached 4—6, 6—1, 6—4, 4—6, 6—2.

The national champion, Williams, had an extremely difficult time of it before he succeeded in defeating Harold A. Throckmorton of Elizabeth, this match also being carried to five sets, with Williams the victor at 6—1, 3—6, 6—4, 0—6, 6—3. Even this score hardly shows how closely pressed was the title holder. In the opinion of many, Throckmorton should have had the honors, but at critical moments in the third set he threw away opportunities with reckless abandon.

Contest Between East and West.

The tournament has now reached the semi-final round and is resolved into a semblance of an East vs. West event. In the upper half of the draw are Murray and John R. Strachan, two of the California group, while in the lower half are the representatives of the extreme Eastern half of the country, Nathaniel W. Niles and Richard Norris Williams, both of Boston. Strachan made his way to the semi-final round by defeating the young Pittsburgh player, Charles S. Garland, in a four-set contest with the score 6—1, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3. Niles disposed of Clarence J. Griffin, another of the first ten of last year, without experiencing great opposition. It was evident from Griffin's play that his stay at Plattsburg has robbed him of much of the strength which he ordinarily commands in tennis matches. The same applies to Dean Mathey, now a Lieutenant of Artillery, who fell before Biddle. Williams and Murray are now the only first ten men of last year left in the tournament, and Williams is the only one of newly commissioned officers in the army to survive.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Miss Mary K. Browne of Los Angeles renewed their contests yesterday in the special series of matches which they are playing in aid of the tennis ambulance fund, and the California woman triumphed over the Norse girl in straight sets. Two days ago Miss Bjurstedt won in a three-set match, but yesterday the honors rested with Miss Browne at 6—2, 6—4, all her strokes working perfectly, while Miss Bjurstedt was not quite up to her usual standard.

When Murray and Biddle started on the court it was not in the least anticipated that it would be more than a practice match for the Californian, even though Biddle had just a short time before shown his skill by defeating Mathey. The progress of the first set, however, showed the spectators and Murray as well that there was a keen contest in store and that it would require the best of tennis to earn the decision.

Biddle's Accurate Placing.

The Philadelphian could not begin to match speed with the Californian, and his game therefore had to be founded on sound tennis to withstand the assault of his opponent. He played confidently and skillfully, never being perturbed by the severe service or the stinging drives of his opponent, both being handled with amazing ease. He was content to let Murray be the aggressor and himself the defender, but once there was developed a real opening for a passing or a cross-court shot, Biddle took advantage of it with a shot that was usually sent true for an ace. Murray many times thought that he had a point finished, only to find Biddle making a return that skipped elusively past him.

When Biddle carried off the first set, after Murray had established a lead at the outset, the spectators began to gather around the court, and those in the stand moved across to have a closer view of the hostilities. Murray was even more aggressive in the second set, and his effort was rewarded with an easy sweep through to victory, Biddle being able to secure only one game. For the time being Biddle's drives down the lines and his volleys, which were usually good, seemed inclined to nick outside the lines and sometimes he netted. These errors and Murray's alertness paved the way for Murray's victory in the second set, and he placed the third set as well to his credit.

After the rest of seven minutes Biddle came to the court so refreshed that he was victor in the fourth set after a keenly waged contest in which each player scored the same number of points. The pace, however, was far more than the Philadelphian's strength could stand, and in the fifth set Murray, who was still as aggressive as ever, smashed his way through to the match victory.

Champion's Backhand Faulty.

Williams in the play against Throckmorton at times flashed some of the most brilliant tennis of the tournament, and then again he made errors that were not at all in company with his usual skill on the courts.

In the first set Throckmorton could not get his stroke working well and he was an easy victim to the sturdy play of Williams, who came to the forecourt and volleyed with such sureness of stroke that the points were finished off quickly. As game after game went against him, Throckmorton became wild and even easy shots at the net were sent away with faulty touch that destined them to go out of court or into the net.

Throckmorton has shown this year an aptitude to recover his strength of game under trying conditions, and just when everyone was expecting that Williams would win easily, the Jersey boy rallied his best game to his command, and try as he would, Williams could not stay the determined attack, winning at 6—3. Throckmorton began the third set with just a tinge to much confidence, and when he was twice within sight of easy victory he threw important games away. There was phenomenal speed to his game as the fourth set was started, and Williams was again playing defensively against the best period of play that Throckmorton had during the match.

Jersey Youth Weakens.

There was not a single game for the champion in the set, and it began to look dubious for him in the fifth set, when the games went to three all, with Throckmorton playing as steadily as a machine. The change from this came swiftly, with Throckmorton instead of Williams breaking under the strain. The youngster's service, which had ben a dependable weapon all along, now was lulled, and Williams ran out the match without only feeble opposition from his opponent.

There was nothing but a shadow of Peck Griffin's normal game in the match which he played against Niles.

The Boston expert was in rare form, and in the long rallies which many times ensued was far more dependable than Griffin. The latter was wild, and errors mounted rapidly against him. He could neither make his drives nor his volleys travel true with any degree of consistency. In generalship alone was he the Griffin of last year. He made the openings for aces repeatedly, only to miss the shot that would have finished off the point. His game was not far out of tune, the shots netting or going out by only the smallest margin, but this margin was enough to let Niles establish a commanding lead.

The other player who advanced to the semi-final round, John R. Strachan, did not experience great difficulty in handling Garland's game. The latter was not at his best, because just prior to his match with the Californian he played in a hard contest in the junior championship tournament. This robbed his strokes of much of their speed, and his placing game proved easy for Strachan either from the baseline or the forecourt.

RAMPANT REDS ARE CURBED BY BENTON

Giants Brace and Defeat the Rhinelanders by a Score of 3 to 0.

The Giants woke from their nap at the Polo Grounds yesterday, stretched, yawned and decided that this Cincinnati bunch of Christy Mathewson's had done about enough damage around here for one season. McGraw's troupe played with fire and vim, and with Rube Benton twisting his best curves, they gave the Rhinelanders a push right into the whitewash vat. The score was 3 to 0.

Perhaps the Giants got thinking too much about the world's series, forgetting the important detail that first they must finish the regular schedule. For the last week or more they have been thinking about something besides baseball, but they took the subject up again in a serious way yesterday. Where for the last few days they have hobbled around like a lot of cripples, they performed yesterday as if they were on springs. The infield locked up like a safety deposit vault and Cincinnati couldn't get a shot through it with a gatling gun.

The Reds have taken the high and mighty attitude around here lately that they would consider no peace terms whatever without indemnity and even annexation, but they changed their tune yesterday. They were perfectly willing to make a peace without victory. The Reds caught the Giants when they were tired after playing ten games in six days, but yesterday they found the old machine oiled, overhauled, and running as smoothly as split satin. It was a delight to see Fletcher and Heinie Zim scoop the infield and propel the pill to first.

Before the game, Company E, Twenty-second Regiment, presented Ferdie Schupp with a signet ring. It was an outburst of pure admiration, and Ferdie says he will wear the Tiffany hardware as long as he wanders this footstool.

Rube Benton, who had knitted a skein of nine straight victories when the Cardinals tore it apart last week, resumed his winning ways and held the Reds to four scattered hits. There was no time that the Cincinnati lads were given any encouragement to score. Benton had the Red sluggers, Roush and Chase, bowing to his pitching skill, and each had to be satisfied with one unproductive slam. Rube's control was paralyzing to Matty's fence breakers, and he gave only one pass, Griffith doing the Chinese toddle to first in the fifth.

It was the shortest pastime of the year, the hired men finishing up the afternoon's job in an hour and twenty-five minutes. To aid Benton's nifty tossing, the Giants not only supplied air-tight defense, but did some timely batting to aid the good cause. Pete Schneider did the pitching for the Matties, and he was so stingy for four innings that it looked as if the Giants were going to get another severe bump. In the fourth he handed Kauff a pass, and then in the fifth the Giants got busy and solved his service for a brace of runs.

Fletcher started Schneider's downfall with a single to left and went to third on Robertson's one-base smash to right. Holke hoisted a fly to Magee in short left field and Fletcher made a bluff to go home. Magee hastened his throw to the plate just enough to make it a poor toss. Heinie Groh got his hands on the ball, but let it slip through his fingers and Fletcher counted, Robertson going around to third. Bill Rariden, who now constitutes the entire New York catching staff, slapped a single to centre and scored Robertson. After Benton skied to Magee Rariden died trying to steal second.

Schneider hadn't regained his equilibrium from that assault when the sixth inning came around and the Giants continued to boldly slap the ball. Burns shot a hopper just north of second base and Kopf leaped over and made a remarkable stop, which would have made Connie Mack change his mind about the Fordham boy not being a high-class short stop. After Kopf's wonderful scoop he made a hurried throw to first, but Burns outraced the ball by inches. The throw was low, but Chase saved Kopf an error by making a beautiful one-handed grab, digging the ball right out of the clay.

Burns went down to second on Schneider's wild pitch, and legged it to third on Herzog's sacrifice. Benny Kauff plastered a single to right, sending Burns over the platter. Benny tried to stretch his wallop into a double, but was thrown out at second by Griffith. On the next play Griffith made another nice throw to second and nailed Zimmerman after he had singled and attempted to stretch it into a two-bagger.

The last out in the ninth was Chase's lofty fly to Robertson, and when he made the catch he threw the ball up among the Twenty-second Engineers in the grandstand, where there was a football scrimmage to get possession of the souvenir.

TIGERS SHUT OUT YANKEES.

Make Only Two Hits, but Win by 2 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Aug. 22.—The Tigers got one clean hit and one safe bunt off the combined deliveries of Nick Cullop and George Mogridge here this afternoon, yet they defeated the Yankees, 2 to 0.

Cullop worked seven innings and pitched his best game of the year, going out at the beginning of the eighth so that Tim Hendryx might attempt to launch a Yankee rally. The Chilhowie southpaw held the Tigers to two hits. Cobb got a double along the third base line with two out in the first inning, which was the only clean blow the home team got during the game. Burns outran a slow bunt to Cullop in the second, and that ended the Tigers' hitting for the day.

The Tigers won the game in the sixth. Cullop started his own trouble by walking Bill James, and Bush followed with a line drive which tore Nick's hands apart. He recovered the ball and had an easy force play on the slow-footed James at second, but threw poorly to Peckinpaugh. James turned second and Peck recovered the ball in time to throw him out by yards, but the ball hit James and bounded to the stands. The Detroit pitcher scored easily on this second misplay and Bush reached third. Vitt's sacrifice fly to Caldwell sent Bush home. Cobb and Veach were retired in order.

ROBINS MAKE NEW LONG-GAME RECORD

Brooklyn Beats Pirates, 6 to 5, in Heartbreaking Twenty-two-Inning Tussle.

The National League record for long-distance games was shattered to smithereens yesterday afternoon at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, where Wilbert Robinson's last year's champions engaged in the final tussle of the series with Pittsburgh. The final count favored the Brooklyn athletes, 6 to 5, after twenty-two innings of heartbreaking baseball.

The game breaks a record that has stood in the National League since July 14, 1914. On that record-making day in 1914 the Pirates were opponents of the Giants, when, in the twenty-first inning, Larry Doyle belted a home-run drive which sent Bescher home ahead of him and gave the Giants the honors of the conflict by 3 to 1.

Umpire Bill Klem, field marshal of the day, ordered the teams to commence the second advertised game at 5:56, after they had been working for four hours and fifteen minutes, but Bill called a halt in the second inning, evidently conscience-stricken with the realization that the teams had already put in a day's work.

Mack Wheat, who had jumped into the struggle in the fourteenth inning in place of his brother, Zach, started the final frame with a foul fly to Miller at first. Hickman received a pass from the crumpling Elmer Jacobs and advanced to second on O'Rourke's single to left. On Otto Miller's grounder to Debus, O'Rourke was forced out, Ward to Pitler, Hickman sprinting to third. Pitler evidently thought that Hickman would not attempt to make home and deliberated whether to throw to first in an effort to double up O. Miller.

While Pitler was thus deliberating Hickman was rounding third. He stopped just a fraction of a second to look over his shoulder at the play at second base, and then continued on to the plate, beating Pitler's belated throw with ease.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 22.—R. T. Wilson, Jr., President of the Saratoga Racing Association, showed that he appreciated the conditions for the Grab Bag Handicap for two-year-olds when he filled his subscription for the event by leasing Jack Hare, Jr., from W. E. Applegate. In the hands of C. Peak, recently added to the list of riders on The Jockey Club tracks, Jack Hare, Jr., stepped out in front all the way and won the handicap from a field of sixteen horses.

George W. Loft's Papp, counted the best of the two-year-olds, ran a remarkable race and from a bad beginning made his way to the front division and at the finish was running over the other horses to land in second place, a length and a half behind the winner. The greatest disappointment of the race was A. K. Macomber's Tracksend, which, coupled with Hand Grenade, was favorite for the event.

OUR REPLY TO THE VATICAN.

That is an admirable plan for the United States to make a separate answer to the Pope's peace proposals. Our case stands on a slightly different footing from that of our allies. In endeavoring to formulate a program which would take into account the war aims of the different nations as he understood them, the Pope perhaps unconsciously omitted the United States, though his proposals were sent to us as well as to the others. He proposed what he believed to be a base for harmonizing conflicting aims, but made no proposal for harmonizing those of the United States with the rest. England entered the war because of the attack on Belgium, and he proposes the evacuation of Belgium; France to defend herself from the invader, and he proposes that the invader retire from France.

But the United States entered the war to destroy the power of German autocracy to threaten our peace and the peace of the world. It entered the war to protect its own safety by land and sea. It intends to see Belgium and France evacuated, but when that is done it will be no safer than it was before, nor will any other country be. It means to fight until it is safe, until the rest of the world is safe, too; until it shall be out of the power of the warriors of Germany to impose on us all the task of maintaining heavy and permanent armaments to resist their next assault.

With what can this aim be harmonized? What material is there for a peace conference attended by the United States, as long as the intention of the German warriors to dominate the world in this war or the next remains the same? How much of this aim of ours are we to give up by way of compromise? What are to be the terms of that compromise? We cannot meet Germany in conference and say, " Let us each give up a part " of our aim in the interest of peace. " You give up in part your aim of " conquering the world, and we will " give up in part our aim of securing " our safety." Italy might debate the question of how much of Istria and Trentino she will concede to Germany, France might compromise on Alsace, but we cannot compromise on our safety.

For this aim all our allies are fighting, too. But in our case the aim stands out with singular clearness. There is nothing for us to debate until we have either attained our object or failed in it.

FIXING PRICES.

Necessities must be had, especially necessities of war by Governments, whatever the profits or wages, and no price is right argumentatively unless it produces the goods. There are those who think that all is said when it is declared that either profits are too great and must be reduced, or that wages are too low and must be raised, and that some authority should order either or both done forthwith. That depends upon how either affects production, and that cannot be told with certainty without trial. It is of little consequence that the security markets are drooping because of the price regulation in good part. That may be a benefit, through the diversion of capital away from production of securities to production of something wanted for consumption. But it is different when the prices of commodities droop. If that should indicate a check to production, something would have to be done to correct it. For there is no surplus of anything. The high cost of manufacture had not yet checked production, and all goods were wanted, although prices were complained of.

With reference to soft coal particularly, there is no limit to the natural capacity of supply. It is solely a question of paying the price to produce the goods, and finding the means of distribution. It would be a pity to prolong the war a day by checking the production of coal by controversy over either prices or profits or wages. Of course, the lowest economic price should be fixed for Government as the chief buyer of either coal or the products of coal. When the Government has fixed the right price for [illegible] that price serves as fair notice to all others that they may be paying too much if they pay more. A price for coal may be fixed which would close many mines. Also a price might be fixed which would duplicate many times every soft coal mine now working. The just price is the price which is just to both producers and consumers. It cannot be just to either unless it is just to both.

A flat price, the same to all, is not a just price unless it is an agreed price, for there are inequalities of needs of consumers as well as of profits to producers. The man whose need is greatest, and who is willing to pay a higher price, ought not to be forbidden to supply his needs, and all experience teaches that he cannot be forbidden to do so without driving trade into underground methods. These are commonplaces and axioms. There are those who think that they can be altered by throwing the weight of Government into the scale. It has been attempted about once in a century, more or less, through thousands of years, and without success as yet. We are in a new era, and we must wait with patience for the new demonstration, and trust to the wisdom of those in authority.

A WAR MAYOR.

Mayor Mitchel's address to the Belgian Mission expressed in a noble form the feeling of New York:

> Of all the communities of this broad land, each generous, each devoted with the passionate spirit of American nationality to the cause of human freedom, each resentful of tyranny, each full of compassion for the victims of brutal aggression, there is none in which the cruel sufferings of Belgium and her people meet with a readier response in sympathy or evoke a fiercer hatred of the savage, conscienceless, faithless, militaristic autocracy of the Hohenzollerns that inflicted them than in the City of New York.

The Mayor's admirable greetings to the representatives of our allies, his intense Americanism, his zeal for the prosecution of the war, the dignity of his official utterances, the sincerity and ardor of his sympathy and labor in the supreme struggle of democracy have increased his hold upon public opinion and public respect. He is not only the head of the most civilized and the most fruitful administration the city has known. He has the qualities, the convictions, the steady and strong national patriotism which the Mayor of New York must have in time of war, unless New York is to be shamed and disgraced.

New York must have a resolute, energetic, able, and patriotic American Mayor. She could not endure a comic or a sinister, disloyal figure in the City Hall, a William Hale Thompson or a Fernando Wood.

DUAL SUBWAY'S FIRST FRUITS.

The opening in the first week of next month of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit's route to Fourteenth Street and Broadway, Manhattan, will be the first fruits of the dual subway bargain. The city's contribution is the Manhattan Bridge and the Manhattan subway connections. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit's contribution is the elevated system throughout Brooklyn, which will feed the Manhattan lines. Over the combination the fare will be a nickel, eventually from Fifty-ninth Street to Coney Island, with a link through Queens on the side. Cheaper access to Coney Island is the least of the benefits. In families where there are several habitual riders between home and work the gift will be equal to the interest on a thousand dollars. An even greater contribution to reduce the high cost of living is access to cheaper rents in more comfortable homes. The city's share lies in the consequent increase in taxable values in the several boroughs, besides the aid to sanitation and the promotion of good citizenship through the scattering of the overcrowded population.

Although the cornerstone of the plan is the halving of the fare cost to daily riders, there is a good prospect that the merely financial results will not be disappointing. During the period of construction, since 1913, there has accumulated a deficit on this section of the dual subway of $1,037,276, and no benefits have been realized. That was inevitable. But for the last year of the period there was earned the full preferential to the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and within $250,371 of the interest upon the cost of the new construction. If that can be done with the system not opened, it is with reason that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit's last report says: " It will only be " a short time after complete opera- " tion when all of the operator's pref- " erentials will have been earned and " the city will begin to get interest on " its investment."

That is more to be wished by riders than even by the city and its contracting operator, and there will be eager expectancy as the new links of the system are opened. Some of them will be in time to invite the confidence of voters in the administration which has advanced this great work. The steel for it cost $42 a ton, and could not be bought now for double that. A great deal of the construction was done at a like saving in wages, and yet full going rates were paid. Hundreds of steel cars have been contracted for, and most of them delivered, at a cost 40 per cent. under present prices. There are offsets, of course. The contract for the extension of the Centre Street loop to a connection with the nearly completed tunnel to Montague Street, Brooklyn, has not even been let. And the connection of the Fulton Street, Brooklyn, elevated railway with the Manhattan subways hangs fire interminably. The physical connection is necessary for the operation of the trains and to save passengers the necessity of changing cars. But what is the necessity of waiting for this work to be done before realizing part of the benefits? Why not give the passengers transfers, under rules which will prevent their being used unfairly? Every day now many riders over this Brooklyn elevated change cars and pay an added nickel to the Interborough. That is because the Interborough penetrated Brooklyn before the Brooklyn Rapid Transit penetrated Manhattan. The gentlemen's agreement for the duplication of fares and the separation of the boroughs has received a hard blow, and Greater New York is about to be consolidated in a manner otherwise impossible. One of the issues of the approaching election is the expression of appreciation of the services of those who have put the city far on the road of municipal ownership without committing the city to the perils of municipal operation.

CUBA'S GIFT.

Yesterday Mr. William E. Gonzales, our Minister to Cuba, took possession, in behalf of the United Shipping Board, of the four German steamers seized by the Cuban Government on the day of the American declaration of war against Germany. Thus about 20,000 tons of sorely needed shipping are added to our merchant marine. President Menocal, disdaining for Cuba all thought of profit by sale or lease of the vessels, for which many offers were made to him, transferred them to the United States without money and without price. He regarded them, as he says in the decree of transfer, as prizes of war " to be " used for the common benefit in aid- " ing to bring the war against the " Government of Germany to a prompt " and victorious end."

There spoke the high-minded gentleman, the worthy representative of a generous people. Our sister republic, one with us in the great purposes of the war, makes America her grateful debtor, shows us again the fine, idealistic, gallant spirit that sustained her in her long fight for freedom and independence. She who knows the value of freedom, where could she be but by the side of the nations that are defending it?

President Menocal has done a gracious thing. It will not pass from American memories.

SPAIN.

Little news is permitted to come out of Spain. The continuous severity of the censorship, the official list of nearly 400 killed in the disorders incident to the railroad strike and the attempt at a general strike, the recalling to the colors of the army reservists of 1914 and 1915, daily shooting and shell fire, ferocious rioting in Barcelona, the heart of always separatist Catalonia; reports of a republican movement suppressed with the loss of more than 300 lives in Bilbao; the suppression of the Liberal newspapers, the promise that order will be restored before long: all this makes a picture characteristically Spanish, a picture of a vigorous nation or collection of provinces, extreme in opinion, of a constitutional monarchy in name, perpetually in danger from a revolution proclaiming a republic, and from a rebellion of the Carlists, those undying Jacobites—a constitutional monarchy in which the people do not govern.

The charming personal qualities of the King, his supposed sympathy with the Entente Powers, should not make us forget his difficult position, worsened by the war, or the political system by which the monarchy keeps an uneasy throne. The two chief parties, distinguished for form's sake as Liberals and Conservatives, are really one in purpose and method. They keep the monarchy going. If the anti-monarchical parties are strong in the cities, in the country districts, where the economic condition of the peasants is usually wretched, the Government can get a majority. In the science of gerrymandering the Spanish politicians make their American brethren look like novices. Bribery flourishes. It is even truer of Spain than of Hungary that the Government always " carries " an election.

Against the irreconcilable Carlists, strong among the inferior clergy and country folks of the Basque Provinces and North Catalonia, the Crown relies upon the support of the Church, whose interest and wishes are always considered in legislation, and which gets patronage and privileges from the Government. Against the Socialists, the Radicals, Republicans, Federalists, Reformists, the Crown depends on the army. The recent dissatisfactions in the army, or some branches of it, seemed, if anything more than a skillful exploitation of the increased necessities of the Crown, a serious danger to it, but they have been appeased, apparently. Crown, Church, army, two political parties led by cynical politicians, dividing the spoils of office, aided by and aiding the masters of economic life: that is the Spanish Government. As yet, the people have small hand in it.

Beyond the clamor of pro-German and pro-Ally in Spain one listens for the popular voice. Is it fanciful to trace in the disorders in widely separated parts of Spain an echo of Russia? " The word revolution," says a contemporary Spanish writer, " is a magic word for the Spanish " people. The race, with its impa- " tience of authority and its strong " individualism, has a born revolu- " tionary instinct. The tradition was " kept alive all through the nine- " teenth century by a chain of half- " military, half-popular outbreaks. " The stability of the Restoration, " resting, as it does, on the satisfac- " tion of all but the people, which is " thus made the victim of unjust " fiscal, military, and civil laws, con- " tributes to fostering the revolution- " ary spirit. The last great strike was " but a rehearsal of more ambitious " schemes. One can easily imagine " the hopes raised by the Russian " Revolution in many a Spanish " heart."

On the other hand, that revolution, by leading the Republicans and Socialists to demand intervention in favor of the Allies, must have stiffened the anti-popular combination on which the throne rests.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Grand Dukes Ask for the Ballot.

As the Russians have been merciful to the extent of allowing the Czar and his close relatives not only to retain their heads but also to remain within the confines of what used to be their empire, the Russians can well afford to go still further and grant to the Grand Dukes and Grand Duchesses the privilege they ask of voting like other Russians at the coming election of members of the Constituent Assembly. That would probably be the part of wisdom—and wisdom is about the best companion mercy can have—for the petition thus to be favored, coming from the quarter it does, clearly proclaims, even if it does not quite prove, that these once great personages [illegible] more ready than their kind commonly have been to recognize accomplished facts, to admit that they are living in a new world, and cheerfully to make the best of what must be to them an extremely painful and trying situation.

The Grand Duke who voluntarily casts a ballot that will count for no more than the one cast by a peasant on his estates, and does it at an election that is to determine the character of Russia's new government and indirectly to select the men who are to control and direct that government, thereby explicitly abandons all of his old pretensions as to the origin and nature of the power to rule, and, whatever he may think in his heart, never again can venture to say aloud a word about " divine right." An erstwhile Grand Duke at the polling place would be a pleasing spectacle anywhere, and especially in Russia, and, of course, if Russian women are to vote, there is no excuse for barring a properly reconstructed Grand Duchess. For both, the " gesture," as the French say, would be at once magnificent and significant.

Some dangers, indeed, are incidental to the according of full citizen rights and liberties to such recent converts to democracy as these. That, when enfranchised, they may plot and scheme for the restoration of the old conditions they found so enjoyable is well within the bounds of possibility. But, whatever their status, they could be prevented with certainty from doing that only by action which their late servants and present masters have not deemed it necessary to take. So the obviously promising alternative is that of seeing if trustworthiness will not follow trust. It sometimes does.

Patriotism from The Commoner.

Satisfaction, for some of us, has so infrequently followed perusal of Mr. Bryan's paper, and opportunity to agree with the sentiments and opinions expressed by Mr. Bryan in it have been so rare, that there is a special pleasure in admitting—no, in proclaiming—that every good American who sees the current issue of the periodical in question will get both the feeling and the privilege just mentioned. For in it Mr. Bryan preaches the soundest of doctrine on two timely and important subjects.

One of them is the conduct of those who are resisting the enforcement of the selective draft law and trying to incite others to imitate their example. The other is the misbehavior of the men who are abusing the wide liberty of speech permitted in this country by making seditious speeches.

Both classes Mr. Bryan condemns with characteristic vigor. As regards resistance of the draft, he admits the possibility that conscience may compel refusal to obey any law, but he wisely adds that the man who does it must take whatever consequences in the shape of punishment the law provides, whether it be imprisonment or death. This, he writes, " is a government of the people—not of one or a few men," and " if a few are permitted to resist a law—any law—because they do not like it, government becomes a farce." War Mr. Bryan sees as " a last resort," just as we all should, and as the vast majority of us do, and he thinks it " a reflection upon civilization that it still reddens the earth," which no sane man will deny. But he also thinks and says that " so long as nations go to war the citizen cannot escape a citizen's duty."

Concerning freedom of speech, Mr. Bryan declares that the time for discussing whether or not the United States should enter the war ended when Congress decided that it must. No sympathy, he says, should be wasted on those who in the name of free speech assail their own Government's deliberately taken policies, and attacks on our allies are just as bad. " We must," he concludes, " stand together and fight it through. There are only two sides to a war—every American must be on the side of the United States."

There is as little comfort in The Commoner for the professional foes of England as there is for the pro-Germans who call themselves pacifists.

Supplemental Action Necessary.

By giving his formal and explicit approval to the efforts of Governor Whitman to obtain the passage of a State food law, Mr. Hoover has answered the argument of all the people who have felt, or pretended to feel, that the matter was one to be left wholly for Federal action. Nobody, therefore, who recognizes that Mr. Hoover speaks with high authority on this subject—that his training and experience alike qualify him to speak with such authority—can longer be in doubt that the Governor is right in urging the Legislature to pass a bill providing for real food conservation.

The opponents of this course are, every one of them, interested either in production or distribution, as contrasted with consumption, and that fact is highly significant. Producers and distributers do have their rights, of course, and these should be protected; but consumers also have their rights, including that to be guarded, or to guard themselves, from ruthless exploitation.

Whether or not the Governor's bill as it stands is perfect, or the best that can be devised—those are still questions for discussion. But State action supplementing Federal action has been declared by Mr. Hoover to be a necessity of the existing situation, and it will take something more than courage after that to deny it.

NEUTRALITY OF ECUADOR.

Minister Transmits Extracts from President's Recent Speech.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Taking advantage of the interest shown by you regarding my country, I am sending you certain information which I believe will be of some interest to the numerous readers of The New York Times and to the American public in general.

R. H. ELIZALDE,
Minister from Ecuador.

Blue Ridge Summit, Penn., Aug. 20, 1917.

[Inclosure.]

On the 10th of August last the Congress of Ecuador inaugurated its annual ordinary sessions. The President of the Republic, Dr. Baquerizo Moreno, read personally his message. Regarding the attitude of Ecuador on the present war, the following extract has been received here by cable:

" Our neutrality continues, not without us having attempted a more ingenuous and frank understanding with all the nations of the American Continent. We have declared our sympathy, our faith, as often as requested by justice, for the great democratic principles which are the base and foundation of these nationalities. Therefore, America will find us always with her."

Further on, speaking of the intervention of some of the American Republics in the war, he said:

" The attitude of Ecuador, serene, friendly, within the bounds of the neutrality which we had adopted, has been like that of Colombia, Chile, Peru, Venezuela, &c.

" In maintaining neutrality we shall not fail to find ourselves forever up to the requirements of our democratic duties, of our republican duties, and of our duties as sons of America."

At the end of his speech he recalled that the Chancellery of Ecuador initiated the idea of a congress of neutrals, which met with a favorable reception by the American countries, and that, therefore, Ecuador accepted the invitation of Argentina with the same object.

A New Tune for the Berlin Bells.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The " superiority " of the German people over other peoples seems to lie principally in their systems of espionage, deceit, and frightfulness. This superiority has been very prominent during this German war for world empire, but, in fighting face to face, their success has come from superiority in men in battle array.

The Germans—all by themselves—defeated the little Belgian Army in three weeks. In their rush to, and retreat from, Paris they were not so successful, as the battles of the Marne, Verdun, and Somme prove; but, in attacking little Serbia, with Bulgaria stabbing her in the back, they were quite successful and overran the country; and again, with Turkey and Bulgaria, they pushed the Rumanians back almost out of sight.

On the sea Germany has done more damage than any other belligerent, but it has all been done with the undersea boat working stealthily in the dark and sinking everything it could surprise.

After three years of war the map of Europe alone may indicate a great German victory, yet now they cry for peace; but civilization is against a peace the terms of which would be taken by the German mind as a proof of superiority and that another war conducted with the same ideas as this would be short and final for a universal German empire.

Such a peace as the Germans now cry for must not be. The " Bells of Berlin " must cease to ring as they have rung for the Belgian, Serbian, and Lusitania tragedies, and ring for the new birth of a German freedom that will help keep the peace of the world—a freedom given through an Entente-American victory in this war.

ENTENTE-AMERICAN.

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 21, 1917.

Wrath at the Obstructionists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer wishes to take this opportunity to express his satisfaction at the placing in the magazine of The New York Times of August 19 of the pictures of the obstructionists among our Senators, thus bringing before the public those who are blocking the progress of this country, which has been committed to war to a successful conclusion. They should be giving the Administration every backing possible. These men have no proper place in Congress as representatives of the American people. America, first, last, and all the time, united, whether under Democratic or Republican government, should be every one's slogan in a time like this, with each doing his share to uphold the honor of his country.

CONSTANT READER.

Orange, N. J., August 21, 1917.

Likes the Name "Liberty Boys."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Alexander Powell, in the opening chapter of his book, " Brothers in Arms," states that in the Revolution we fought for liberty; in 1812 we fought for the freedom of the seas; in the civil war we fought for the preservation of the Union and the freedom of the slaves, and in 1898 we fought for the liberty of Cuba.

In view of the foregoing and the fact that our troops abroad object to the name "Sammies" I would respectfully offer as a substitute the name "Liberty Boys," as we are now fighting for the liberty of the world from the domination of the German Government, the most selfish, heartless, cruel and brutal in methods recorded in history.

GEORGE W. LEWIS.

Cincinnati, Aug. 20, 1912.

AUGUST.

I think that in the twilights of hereafter,
Although my dreams may hold
Me deaf to January's jonquil laughter,
And April leave me cold;

Although the jacinth joy of jasmine waking,
Or iris cups uncurled,
Or bluebell buds, may beckon, breaking
The sleep of a shadow world;

And even if I know not when November
Is bright above my head
With glee of goldenrod, I shall remember
One month, when I am dead!

I shall recall the threat of tropic thunder,
And feel the rush of rain
Across the grass, or all the wistful wonder
Of dreaming dusks again!

In August of the lilies I shall waken,
And, restless, rise to tread,
'Mid mistiness of moonlight, silver-shaken,
The gardens of the dead!

CAPITAL WELCOMES JAPANESE MISSION

Washington Sees New Era in War on Prussian Autocracy with Arrival of the Visitors.

WILL SEE PRESIDENT TODAY

Understood Ishii Will Discuss How Best to Co-ordinate Efforts to Beat the Enemy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—A new era in the war against the Prussian autocracy was begun today when the special war mission sent to the United States by the Emperor of Japan arrived in Washington. Outside of the cordiality of the reception given to the mission, it is already apparent that it has come here with a sincere desire to further the allied cause in the war and that it will be met more than half way by the Administration. This means that Japanese and American co-operation of the most intimate character appears to be assured.

No authoritative statement of the purposes of the mission has been made, but it is well understood that before its members depart they will have discussed intimately with President Wilson, Secretary Lansing and other high officials of this Government how best to co-ordinate Japanese and American effort in defeating the common enemy.

Until Viscount Ishii, the head of the mission, has seen President Wilson and explained to him the objects of the visit no statement concerning the aims of the mission will be issued to the press. Tomorrow Viscount Ishii will call on Secretary Lansing and later in the day will be presented to President Wilson, who will give a dinner tomorrow evening in honor of the mission.

Viscount Ishii and the other members of the mission are immensely pleased also over the reception given them here, where the people did not know of their coming until a few hours before their arrival. Crowds surrounded the Union Station and cheered the visitors, who proceeded at once to the home of Perry Belmont, where they will be quartered during their stay here.

Ishii Touched by Welcome.

Viscount Ishii, the special Ambassador, said this afternoon:

" In speaking to the gentlemen of a newspaper press which wields such enormous power in this great country I am well aware that purely conventional and formal utterance is worse than nothing—it sounds empty. But at the same time what can I say? I have not even done my first duty as a guest. Obviously it would be improper therefore to anticipate the message I carry from the Emperor of Japan to your great President.

" Now that Japan and America are together brothers in arms and fighting for a great common cause I have every hope and confidence in success, victory, and for permanently continued international amity."

At the Union Station there were waiting to receive the visitors the Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Sato; Secretary Lansing, Assistant Secretary of State Phillips, Colonel W. W. Harts, personal military aid to President Wilson; A. R. Ruddock, Secretary of the American Embassy in Tokio, and the entire personnel of the Japanese Embassy. After cordial greetings had been exchanged between the members of the mission and the reception party, Viscount Ishii and his staff were escorted to waiting motor cars, and under the escort of troops of the Second United States Cavalry from Fort Myer, Virginia, were taken to the Belmont home. Many Japanese flags were in evidence along the way.

The commission expects to be in Washington for two or three weeks, after which it will make a tour of the country. It is authoritatively explained that the mission has not come here on a commercial or political errand, but to greet the United States as a brother nation fighting for a common end and to decide, after consultation, how best the two nations can co-operate, both in an economic and a military sense, in carrying on the war. While Viscount Ishii is vested with plenipotentiary powers, the questions to be discussed will not be political, but those of expediency and mutual assistance.

To Discuss Shipping.

Among the most important problems to be discussed is that of the disposition of the Japanese shipping, with the view to making it of the greatest assistance in the conduct of the war. It is understood that Japan stands ready to render additional assistance, and to contrive means to do so is one of the prime objects of the special mission.

America becomes an important factor in meeting this demand because the Japanese cannot build the great number of new ships needed for the trade without an adequate supply of structural steel from the United States. An important secondary consideration is that of freight rates, and it remains to be seen whether the Japanese ship owners can be induced to content themselves with more moderate profits than they have been making in the past.

Another war measure which the commission is expected to discuss will be the enlargement of Japanese naval activities.

That the visit of the commission will result in making even closer the present commercial relations between Japan and America is believed to be a certainty. The extent of these relations at present is not generally realized. The United States sells Japan more goods than does any other country and in turn buys more from Japan than any other nation in the world.

GERMAN EFFORTS IN MEXICO.

Propaganda Fails to Incite Element That Controls Public Life.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 22.—Friends of Germany are conducting in Mexico newspaper propaganda against the United States, but up to the present time the effort has failed of its purpose in so far as the better educated and influential classes of Mexico are concerned. There is reason to believe that it has had no effect on men prominent in public life, those associated with the Government, or the high officers of the army, but it seems certain that the German campaign has exerted a certain influence over the uneducated Mexicans.

The line followed has had for its end the convincing of the more ignorant classes that the friendly advances of the United States are not to be trusted and that that country is steadfast in the aim of overthrowing the sovereignty of Mexico, and seizing for its own, either by economic means or by force, the territory between the Rio Grande and Panama.

The Germans also have made strong efforts to spread the belief that the Allies are in desperate straits for men, ships, and money, and that the ultimate victory of the Central Powers is assured.

Special efforts have been made to influence the students of the universities and technical schools in and around the capital and the younger officers of the army. The Mexican student body always has mixed freely in politics.

The German publicity attack has been conducted along two separate lines. The first and more important, appealing to the more conservative element, has been headed by El Democrata, one of the four principal daily morning papers of the capital, managed and directed by Rafael Martinez, member of Congress, and better known by his pen name of " Rip Rip." The Democrata has found ammunition for its heaviest attacks in reprinting articles from American papers scoring Mexico, its Government, its people, and its policy. In addition to this plan of attack, the news dispatches of El Democrata, whether from the United States or from Europe, have shown the obvious purpose of presenting the condition and prospects of the Central Powers in the most favorable light and of painting the condition and future of the Allies, especially the United States, in the darkest colors.

BELGIANS AT OYSTER BAY.

Roosevelt Entertains Commission and Calls for Indemnity.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Theodore Roosevelt, welcoming the Belgian Commission to his home in Sagamore Hill this afternoon, addressed them in words calculated to soothe Belgian fears of a premature peace and to make plain the democratic ideals for which America is fighting. The greatest menace to civilization at the present time, he told them as they listened eagerly, was an inconclusive peace. " We must have a peace that is just, and no peace will be just which does not give to Belgium the most heavy indemnity," he told them.

Equally no peace will be just which does not establish a greater Bohemia and a great Slav commonwealth in Austria and which does not join the Italian and Rumanian Austrians to their Italian and Rumanian brothers, the Commissioners were told. Furthermore, such a peace must drive the Turk from Constantinople and free Armenia.

The Belgian visitors applauded Mr. Roosevelt's sentiments. The commission arrived at Sagamore Hill late in the afternoon after having dined with Frederic R. Coudert at the Piping Rock Club. Accompanying the commission were George T. Wilson, Mr. Coudert, Major General Daniel Appleton, Lieutenant Harry Stratton and T. P. O'Connor, an unexpected member of the party who joined them as they left the Hotel Biltmore.

In greeting Colonel Roosevelt, M. de Cartier de Marchienne, the Belgian Minister to this country, told with what delight the commission came to Sagamore Hill, which they considered the Mecca for distinguished men of the entire world. Those present then drank a toast proposed by their host.

" I give you a toast to one of the most noted and heroic figures it has been my good fortune to read about, King Albert of Belgium."

After this toast Mr. Roosevelt turned to those of his countrymen present and said: " To you Americans, here is a toast to the heroic Belgian people. ' May we strive to approximate the high standards they have set.' "

The Colonel followed this toast with a third to the President. Mr. O'Connor then spoke up and said: " May I ask you all now to drink to the greatest American in private life?" The Colonel's name was pledged with a cheer. The commission remained at Sagamore Hill about an hour, most of the time being taken up in informal discussion. As they left Mr. Wilson announced that the Seventh Regiment would parade on the South Meadow of Central Park at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in honor of the Belgian Commission.

The members of the Belgian Mission to the United States, whose official status as diplomats ended, according to Baron Moncheur, head of the mission, after their reception on Tuesday, enjoyed yesterday as private visitors to New York, attending a private dinner at the Biltmore last evening.

" We are grateful to the citizens of this city for their enthusiastic welcome," said Baron Moncheur. " I am no stranger to your city. I was Minister to the United States for eight years, and I know New York well."

GERARD GETS NO TITLE.

Order Conferred Upon Him Does Not Make Him a "Sir."

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—James W. Gerard, ex-Ambassador to Germany, who arrived here this morning to fill several speaking engagements, is confined to his bed at the Blackstone Hotel suffering from a severe attack of lumbago. He may not be able to get about for several days.

Asked about the Knighthood of the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath, recently conferred upon him by King George in recognition of his efforts to ameliorate the lot of British prisoners in Germany, Mr. Gerard said:

" I don't get the title. There are three classes to the Order of the Bath. Those of the second and third class are entitled to the title ' Sir ' during their lifetime. I received the order of the first class, and this carries no title. Mrs. Gerard, by the way, is the only person not of royalty who had received the decoration of the Order of the Red Cross from Germany."

Forced to call off his engagements for speaking before the Chicago Association of Commerce at noon and at the country home of H. M. Byllesby at Lake Geneva this evening, the former Ambassador nevertheless sounded a warning to all persons guilty of un-American acts that they would incur the wrath of the country unless they " got behind the Government."

To officeholders " seeking votes by opposing their Government " he sounded a warning that the mothers, wives, sweethearts and friends of the boys who " go across " would seek personal vengeance that might lead to violence. Asked if he referred to the Mayor of Chicago, he said that he wasn't " mentioning names," but that his remarks applied to " every person throughout the land " guilty of un-American acts or expressions.

Members of Congress especially were warned that they must cease opposition to the Government or face trouble. To the editors of pro-German and German-language papers he had a message that in Germany their actions would result in lining them up before a wall in front of a firing squad.

The Ambassador was suffering great pain when he arrived. Dr. W. E. Connor and Dr. Carr examined the patient and ordered him to bed.

The former Ambassador received reporters in his room.

" The Germans," he said, " cannot but believe that the German-Americans here will rise against us in their favor. A man must now be either an American or a traitor. There is nothing more disgraceful in the dirty political history of the country than the action of officeholders who are now seeking votes by attacking their Government. The wives, mothers, sweethearts and sisters whose loved ones will be bombed, gased, killed and maimed will be the first to burn down the offices of the pro-German press and throw officeholders out of jobs they are holding on to.

" A vigorous prosecution of the war means an early peace. The Germans said they would stand no foolishness from us after the war. Ask the Poles here how they liked to live under German rule."

Mr. Gerard said that every utterance against the Government and its plans for winning the war would only cost more in lives, money and time. He dismissed Senator La Follette with the remark that he " may be all right, but his views are all wrong."

" It's better for our boys to be fighting the Germans in France now than in Chicago later," he said. " The quickest way for America to win this war is for everybody to get together and let Germany know that we are in this war to win."

BRITISH RAILWAY MENACE.

Men Said to End War Truce and Demand Higher Wages.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Central News says that all branches of the National Union of railway men have been required by the men to instruct the executive committee to give notice of the termination of the truce agreement made in October, 1914, and demand an increase of £1 weekly in wages and a considerable reduction in working hours. The truce provided for a settlement of all disputes without recourse to strikes.

INDEPENDENTS SHIP THROUGH RED CROSS

War Relief Clearing House Will Discontinue Its Shipping Department.

FULL HARMONY IN SIGHT

Cargo Space for Material Sent by Outside Organizations Will Be Subject to Risk.

The War Relief Clearing House for France and her allies which, as the general shipping agency for more than 5,000 war relief charities, has forwarded $10,000,000 in cash and supplies to Europe in the last two years, announced yesterday that its shipping department in New York City would be discontinued on Sept. 1. It will still continue to accept money, but suggests that supplies contributed after Sept. 1 be sent to the local warehouse of the American Red Cross which will make shipments through its supply service and export department. Independent war relief charities failing to follow this advice will have to arrange their own cargo space, risking the advantages of free transportation obtained for them by the clearing house.

The action of the clearing house, which follows closely the announcement of the clearing house in Paris—the distributing agency of the service for which the clearing house in New York acted as receiver—that it would become part of the American Red Cross after Sept. 1, brings to a head the long agitation for a centralized plan of operation of all war relief charities. It had been expected that something of the sort would happen when C. A. Coffin, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the General Electric Company, recently succeeded Robert S. Lovett as head of the Committee on Co-operation appointed by the Red Cross to negotiate with the independent war relief charities. Mr. Coffin is a member of the Executive Committee of the War Relief Clearing House and has had a controling hand in its affairs.

Mr. Coffin became the Chairman of the Committee on Co-operation shortly after the Committee on Surgical Dressings, one of the independents, became an auxiliary of the Red Cross, but although negotiations were then undertaken with the other independent relief organizations, notably the American Fund for French Wounded, of which Miss Anne Morgan is the Treasurer, none of these accepted the Red Cross plan.

To Resist Red Cross Domination.

" We had heard that the Clearing House in New York contemplated some such action as announced," one of the executives of the American Fund for French Wounded said last night, " but we hope to be able to find independent means for transporting our supplies. I do not know if we can, but I think we will be successful."

The executive, who asked that her name be not published, predicted that many of the other independent organizations would resist the effort to force them into the Red Cross, and would also make efforts to arrange their own cargo space for their shipments.

" We have reason to believe the French Government will see that we get the cargo space we need," the officer of the American Fund for French Wounded said. " I know Gertrude Atherton's organization does not intend to join the Red Cross, and is going to try to arrange for independent shipments."

The War Relief Clearing House for France and her Allies was established on April 27, 1917, and has been maintaining a warehouse at 131-133 Charlton Street. By special arrangement with representatives of the French Government it was able to obtain free cargo space for all of the war relief charities. The Red Cross, until recently reorganized under H. P. Davison of J. P. Morgan & Co., was one of those that sent supplies to France through the Clearing House.

The notices that the Clearing House was to close its warehouse and shipping department in this city were mailed to all of the War Relief Charities yesterday by Clyde A. Pratt, the Executive Secretary of the shipping and receiving agency. It was as follows:

> The American Relief Clearing House in Paris was organized soon after the outbreak of the war in 1914 and since the organization of the War Relief Clearing House of France and her allies it has been its distributing representative in France. For about two years past it has also been the official representative in France of the American Red Cross. The entry of the United States into the war has resulted in enormously increasing the burdens of the American Red Cross in France and to aid in the situation there has been organized in Paris the American Red Cross for France and Belgium, to succeed the American Relief Clearing House which, as above stated, has for about two years been the Red Cross representative, and in order to secure the greatest efficiency it has been found necessary to place the administration of the new organization on a strictly military basis and to vest in it full discretion with respect to distribution of relief supplies in France.

Must Stand on its Own Bottom.

The notices sent out by Mr. Pratt were accompanied by letters addressed "To Our Friends and Co-Workers" explaining that the clearing house took action after an extended correspondence with its associates in Paris. It points out that in forwarding supplies during the last two years the clearing house had depended on the generosity of the French Government and the French Steamship Line for transportation from New York to France, but that recent changes in conditions had made it imperative that a different plan be adopted.

"As the result of our entry into the war," one letter says, "the American Relief Clearing House in Paris has been taken over by the American Red Cross for France and Belgium, which latter it has been found necessary to organize upon a military basis, making it now practically a branch of the American army in France.

"Because of this the decisions which have been reached in Paris seem to some relief workers in America to be abrupt and possibly harsh, particularly those in which the Red Cross indicates that it will be necessary to have relief articles consigned to it distributed at its discretion, taking into account the greatest needs of the moment.

"In this connection it should be pointed out that the American Red Cross for France and Belgium will be constantly supplying urgent needs from its warehouse stores and that it will necessarily recoup itself from contributions subsequently received by it.

"We offer the suggestion that you write to those hospitals, orphanages, etc., in France to whom you have been accustomed to ship supplies, directing them to make application to the American Red Cross for France and Belgium for a supply of needed articles from its warehouses."

The directors and officers of the War Relief Clearing House for France and her allies, based upon the wide information which is at their disposal, express their conviction that the present arrangement for the distribution of relief supplies in France is the best possible under all the circumstances of the case, and they feel justified in urging that all American contributors who desire to make use of the facilities of the American Red Cross for France and Belgium leave to its wide judgment the distribution of articles contributed by them.

John Moffat, representative of more than seventy-four independent war relief charities in their negotiations with the Red Cross, is away from the city on a vacation.

'EYES OF YOUTH' GO CRYSTAL GAZING

Marjorie Rambeau Enacts Youth's Varied Futures Seen in Trance.

A NEW TRICK MELODRAMA

The Future 'On Trial' Yields Varied Scenes and Contrasted Bits of Acting.

EYES OF YOUTH—A play in three acts by Charles Guernon and Max Marcin. At the Maxine Elliott.

In "On Trial" the hands of time turned backward, and one saw enacted the scenes of a woman's past as they were recalled by witnesses in court. In "Eyes of Youth," thanks to a yogi and his crystal sphere, the process is reversed. The heroine sees, not indeed her future, but three of four possible futures with which the first act confronts her; and at the last curtain, by means of a simple problem in subtraction, elects the fourth, which nobody sees, but which the others have indicated as the path to happiness.

The result is a trick melodrama which, though it discloses little skill in writing and characterization, has yet the popular virtue of novelty. More than this, it affords Marjorie Rambeau an opportunity to display her talent in varied impersonation.

In the parts of the play which are supposed to be real life, Miss Rambeau is a young girl whose father's circumstances force to choose between three suitors and two possible careers. In the three acts there are four "episodes," which present the visions seen in a prophetic trance, induced by the kind yogi's crystal.

Miss Rambeau is first a school teacher, sweet and patient with her unruly children, yet a rather pathetic failure, dismissed by the school board, and abandoned by the young cad who had pleaded that it was her duty to wait until he could marry her. Then, in a strongly contrasting episode, she is a successful opera singer in Paris, victim of the impresario, who had promised to protect her, and abandoned to the worst manners and morals ever attributed to a prima donna.

The two final episodes show the result of a marriage for money. They are a court scene, in which she is the pathetic victim of trumped-up evidence in a divorce trial, and a street scene, "In Front of Rector's," in which she is an even more pathetic victim of dope—and is rescued by the joint efforts of a detective and her one true lover.

As the school teacher Miss Rambeau is rather finely pathetic and gentle, and denotes very successfully the weariness of her lot and the dreary fading of her vitality. As the opera singer, case-hardened in her amours and recklessly tyrannical with her public and her managers alike, she gives a vivid and highly vitalized performance, perhaps the one real creation of the evening. The emotional scene in court and the characterization of the broken and bedraggled street waif are at best capable, and come rather in the nature of an anti-climax. Until this last act it seemed possible that the play would score a success of novelty and histrionic stunt; but the final curtain cast a shadow of doubt.

As a whole the play does not reward analysis. "Even in our ashes live their accustomed fires"; and though many and varied ways in life are open to any and all of us, the basic elements of character would probably remain, however different the outward forms they might assume. In creating such a character as this, certainly, a sense of fundamental unity would be most effective.

In retrospect we should be able to discern possibilities of the high-spirited opera singer in the utmost abasement of the school teacher, and elements of sweetness and pathos in the opera singer's flightiest tantrums. But the character drawing, and, indeed, the play as a whole, makes small claim to subtlety—a fact which will, however, have slight influence upon the public to which it is obviously addressed.

Miss Wyeth was one of last Winter's débutantes, and is a granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Goodridge and a sister of Mrs. Edward Kenneth Hadden, Mrs. A. No date has been decided upon for the wedding.

Newport Engagement Not Bonheur's

Lucien Bonheur denied yesterday that he had had anything to do with the engagement of the French Players in Newport that came to grief Tuesday. A dispatch from Newport had stated that Mr. Bonheur, who was the director of the company last season at the Garrick, had arranged the engagement at the resort city. Mr. Bonheur said he had not been away from his Summer home at Great Neck for a week.

The engagement of Mrs. Hilah Reeder of this city to Grosvenor B. Clarkson has been announced. Mrs. Reeder has lived at the Hotel Biltmore for several years. Frances White Seeks Divorce.

Frances White Fay of the vaudeville team of Rock and White applied yesterday to Justice Aspinall in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn for a divorce from her husband, Francis Fay, also an actor. Mrs. Fay asked for $25 a week alimony. Decision was reserved. Mrs. Fay testified that she was married in Philadelphia on April 12, 1917. Detectives testified that they found Fay in a room in a hotel in Philadelphia with a woman who was not his wife.

SHIFTS EMBARGO POWERS.

Now Are Concentrated in Board Headed by Vance McCormick.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—President Wilson by an executive order today turned over many of the powers of the Exports Council to its administrative board, of which Vance McCormick is chairman. The action, it is felt here, sounded the death knell of any hopes which certain neutral countries may have held that some course less drastic than the strictest kind of a rationing system would be adopted.

It was the administrative board largely which, with the approval of President Wilson, put into effect the present absolute embargo on American foodstuffs, fodder and other wartime commodities consigned to the northern neutrals. The embargo was clamped on when the President's first proclamation became effective on July 5 and it is still on tight.

One reason for the action taken by the President today, it was said, was the plain fact that the members of the administrative board, ostensibly employed in an advisory capacity, were doing most of the work, and were able to give much more time to a study of the situation than the members of the Exports Council, which is composed of Secretary of State Lansing, Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce, Secretary Houston of the Department of Agriculture, and Herbert C. Hoover, Food Administrator.

Son to Mrs. Richard L. Morris.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Morris of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., are being congratulated on the birth of a son yesterday morning. Mrs. Morris was formerly Miss Carolyn W. Fellowes.

Drug Market Is Rather Quiet.

Drug and Chemical Markets will say today that trading in these articles has been restricted to small quantities of late, as consumers show a continued disinclination to buy at the high prices. Fluctuations have been less frequent, and aside from a sharp advance in morphine, owing to the scarcity of opium, the changes have been of minor importance. Lower prices were quoted for acephenetidin and antipyrine, owing to keener selling competition. Seeds and herbs are in limited supply here.

Pile Fabric Demand Growing.

Despite the lateness of the season, a steadily increasing call for pile fabrics is reported from houses where they can be had. Panne velvets and silk plushes especially are sought by the higher-class buyers, and both are selling freely in spite of the enhanced values of these goods that result from the advanced cost of schappe and tussah silks. Chiffon velvets also are in good demand, and reports indicate a better business in velveteens than last season. Fur effects are active sellers, including such things as seal, mole, fitch, lamb, and polar bear.

Will "First Line" Orders Be Cut?

The showing of new Fall models in Paris, coming at about the time peace was declared in the discount war between the retailers and the cutters-up, has led to the question here as to whether business on the first lines offered will not be restricted this season. There are arguments on both sides. One is that the buyers, needing prompt deliveries of goods to make up for the time already lost, will have to buy from the current offerings. On the other hand, it is said in some quarters that, with the introduction of adaptations of the new models not very far off, buyers probably will take as few of the earlier garments as possible.

May Get German Goods Out.

It was stated yesterday that the American Consul at Rotterdam was taking a census of German merchandise bought and paid for by merchants of this country prior to the war, but which was refused shipment here by the British Government. Carl W. Stern, Chairman of the Biltmore Committee of Importers, said yesterday that after the Consul has completed his enumeration of American-owned goods, the lists would be forwarded to Washington. It is hoped here that with the aid of the State Department an arrangement may be made with the British authorities whereby the goods may be shipped without much further delay. Among the lines are embroideries, earthenware, china, glass, &c.

Gray Goods Sales Improve.

There was more snap to the demand in the local gray goods market yesterday, in which buyers of sheetings figured in no small way. Manufacturers of sugar bags were reported to be active buyers of 5.50-sheetings at 8¾ cents for contract delivery. Among the other sheetings disposed of were 48 square, 4-yard, which brought 11¾ cents for nearby deliveries. Among the printcloth sales reported was one of good size on 38½-inch 64-60s from second hands at 10 cents. First-hand sales of these goods included 39-inch 56-44s, which sold for nearby delivery at 8¼ cents. Spot mill prices on printcloths closed as follows:

NEPHEW H. F. WALKER'S HEIR

Home Town Institutions Remembered in Vermonter's Will.

The will of Henry Freeman Walker, who died in Pittsford, Vt., on Aug. 13, was filed yesterday in the Surrogate's Court. The chief beneficiary is Williston Walker, a nephew, of 281 Edwards Street, New Haven, who is also the executor.

Mr. Walker left $100,000 to the President and Fellows of Middlebury, (Vt.,) College to establish the Henry Freeman Walker Furlough and Emergency Fund. The income of the fund is to be used to provide members of the Faculty who have served seven years and more with sufficient money to enable them to take a year's furlough. If at any time the income shall be in excess of the demand made upon it, the remainder is to be used to provide for any of the Faculty who may be ill or have met with accident.

To the Pittsford Congregational Church is left a $5,000 endowment and to the town of Pittsford Mr. Walker willed $5,000, which is to be added to the Cromwell Bower Fund for the deserving poor. The Maclure Library Association of Pittsford is to receive all of the decedent's stock in the Pittsford Aqueduct Company, worth $15,000, and a tract of land known as "Drake's Lot" and containing a building. The latter is to be known as the Walker Memorial Building and the money is to be used for the upkeep of the property.

Under the will the Pittsford Aqueduct Company is to receive a wooded tract of land possessing springs, and this property is to be held for the protection of the water supply. A tract of land adjacent to its property is to go to the Pittsford Cemetery Association and in addition the cemetery association receives $1,000 for the care of the grave of the Rev. Charles Walker, the decedent's father. A legacy of fifty shares of the American Agricultural Chemical Company is bequeathed to Susan M. Chandler. The nephew inherits real estate in this city, Chicago, Minneapolis and Pittsford. He also receives the personal property. There are a number of bequests to other relatives.

Ginghams Still Being Sought.

Regardless of how New York may stand on the question of dress ginghams for next Spring, it is evident from the way the jobbers and cutters are buying them up here that the rest of the country has not yet had its fill of them. Large plaid effects appear to be the most-wanted patterns, but where these can no longer be had nicely-finished goods in staple designs are being snapped up. Not only are the cutters buying ahead, but they are also in the market for all the stuff they can get to fill their immediate needs. From all accounts there are not a great many goods left for prompt shipment, aside from the holdings of the jobbers, and some of these sellers are not keen about letting their goods go to the cutters when their regular trade may need them a little later.

Glove Problem Hard to Solve.

The glove problem will not be an easy one for consumers to solve this Fall and Winter unless they are prepared to pay pretty fair prices for the things they buy. This not only applies to kid gloves, but to silk and other fabric gloves as well. The steady increase in the cost of kid gloves as a result of the shortage of glove leather, and the higher cost of labor and incidentals, with a similar situation in the silk gloves that has grown out of the sharp upward spurt of raw silk, has put it beyond the ability of the retailers to supply these goods at prices even approximating those of a year or so ago unless they have some holdover stock in hand. The proportionately greater increases so far have been on the cheaper grades.

Woe to the Stout Woman.

The Parisian fashion creators, judging from reports that have reached this country regarding the Fall showings, have again decided to make life a burden for the stout woman unless the skill of the designers who plan garments solely for this type are able to solve the problem for her. In more than one of the new suits shown the jackets were fitted and the skirts were narrower than they have been for several seasons. Some of the jackets, in fact, were of the variety that have to be slipped on. The figure-revealing properties of such garments can hardly help bringing woe to the hearts of the stout.

EXCHANGE GOVERNORS WOULD END GRATUITIES

Adopt Resolution Forbidding Extra Compensation for Employes During Regular Hours.

The Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday adopted a resolution framed to end the practice of giving gratuities to employes. It was:

> Resolved, that employes of the Exchange be forbidden to accept any compensation or gratuity from any member of the Exchange or firm represented therein for any service rendered or to be rendered during the hours when said employes are in the service of the Exchange.
> Resolved that the giving or offering to give by a member of the Exchange or firm represented therein any compensation or gratuity to any employe of the Exchange for any services rendered or to be rendered by said employe during the hours that he is in the service of the Exchange, or to influence said services, is an act detrimental to the interest and welfare of the Exchange.
> Resolved, that any member of the Exchange or firm represented therein who employs any employe of the Exchange for any service during the hours when the Exchange is not open shall register with the committee of arrangements the name of said employe, the nature of the services rendered and the amount of his compensation.

The resolution is intended not only to put a stop to indiscriminate tipping, but also to more specific abuses concerning which there has been complaint in the past. It often happens that a telephone operator on the floor, receiving an order at a time when the board member of his firm is absent, has the option of placing it with any broker with whom the firm does business. Under these and similar circumstances it has been reported that some Exchange telephone operators have been able to increase their incomes materially through the necessity on the brokers' part of remaining on friendly terms with them.

Exchange to be Closed on Sept. 1.

In response to a petition which has been actively circulated on the floor in the last few days, the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday declared Saturday, Sept. 1, a holiday. It appears likely that all exchanges in the city will close on that day, the Cotton Exchange having already voted to do so, and the movement to follow suit being actively in progress on the Coffee and Sugar Exchange, Produce Exchange and Consolidated Exchange. As Monday, Sept. 3, is Labor Day, this gives the financial district a three-day week-end holiday.

Designers Are Looking Backward.

Paradoxically speaking, designers of women's wear in general in producing new things are bringing out old ones. Not only are old-time ideas in fur styles coming back to life, but quaint effects of the "Grandmother" order are being sought by some of the makers of party frocks. Yesterday there was shown in this city an evening gown introducing the "bustle silhouette." This is said to be the latest step of a "looking backward" movement which began with the introduction of humble ginghams in dresses for the elite, the vogue later becoming general and now promising to hold on for some time.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Get a Hard Jolt on News of President's Decision as to Coal Prices.

Although the financial community spent a great deal of time yesterday discussing the price fixed for bituminous coal, and professed to see in that action ground for apprehension over the prices to be paid for steel and other articles, it is a question if this single influence was directly responsible for much of the selling which carried prices back very sharply in yesterday's active market. The coal stocks and shares of the coal roads were singled out for selling, but the sentiment of the Street was not changed particularly by the settlement of the coal question, although traders made much of that factor while driving down other issues in no way affected by the decision. While some shares enjoyed a small rally in the late trading, most stocks closed at their low prices for the day after losing considerable ground. The outstanding exception to the general behavior of the market was Bethlehem Steel B, which rose to 112½ after selling down to 107½ in the early trading, and ended the session at 110½ with a net advance of 1⅜. This was the only active issue on the board to show an advance. On the other side of the list were American Smelting, off 4½; Cuba Cane Sugar, off 3¼; Delaware & Hudson, off 1⅜; Lackawanna, off 10; Lackawanna Steel, off 2½; Republic, down 3¼; Industrial Alcohol, down, 3⅜, and Steel Common, which lost 3⅛. The full force of the disappointment over the coal price-fixing policy was felt by Pittsburgh Coal, which lost 6⅞; Elkhorn Fuel, which declined 8 points, and Virginia Carolina Iron, Coal and Coke, which dropped 6 points on a single sale. Mexican Petroleum fell away quickly when it was officially announced at the State Department that this Government is not concerned in plans for a loan to Mexico, closing off 5¾ points. The selling was accompanied by circulation of a rumor that bad news is to be looked for from Russia shortly, though nothing developed to support this unhappy expectation.

Traders are, almost without exception, bearisn upon stocks on general principles, holding that little comfort is to be found in evidence which Washington is showing of its attitude toward either the industrials or the railroads. Yesterday's decline resulted in a marked increase in activity, although professional dealings still dominate the market.

An interesting innovation in war financing was the sale yesterday by J. P. Morgan & Co. of $15,000,000 of British Treasury certificates at 5¼ per cent. interest. Conditions have changed radically since the Federal Reserve Board issued its famous pronouncement against proposed bank purchases of these bils. At the time the warning was given this nation was not at war, and there was little reason to expect that it would become involved. It is planned to continue selling these bills as the demand warrants until a total of $150,000,000 shall be outstanding, but they will not increase by a dollar Great Britain's indebtedness here, inasmuch as the proceeds are to be used for paying off British Government demand loans in this market.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Bonds Strongly Held and Home Rails Are More Active.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The stock market was cheerful today with a broadening business in oils and various Mexican issues. Bonds were strongly held and home rails were more active and higher on the settlement of the trouble with enginemen. Shipping shares were firmer, Argentine rails improved, mining and rubber stocks were steadier, and there was a good inquiry for miscellaneous industrials, including meats.

Money was in good demand and discount rates were quietly harder.

There was a substantial increase in the sales of Treasury bills last week when the total reached was £57,364,000.

Prices Unchanged on Bourse.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Prices were unchanged on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 62 francs 30 centimes, for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan, 87 francs 80 centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"Hooverizing" Foreign Exchange.

Reports from Washington indicate that Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury, in co-operation with the Federal Reserve Board, plans to secure legislation which will permit of the Government regulating the foreign exchanges. It is expected that the Trading with the Enemy act, which is still pending in Congress, will be amended to provide for this "Hooverizing" of gold and foreign bills of exchange. It is understood that legislation will be adopted vesting power in the Secretary of the Treasury or in the Reserve Board absolutely to regulate and control the movement of gold from and to the United States, and at the same time to regulate all foreign banking transactions. Up to the present time the larger banks and banking houses have endeavored to adjust the foreign exchange situation the best they could without legislation and without the medium or Government officials. This has been a hard task, and bankers have felt that they have been subjected to heavy responsibilities. They welcome action by the Government which will place the control of the exchanges in the hands of a committee or of a controller. The British Treasury, it is said, has repeatedly urged our Government to take complete charge of the exchanges.

Co-operating with Reserve Bank.

Robert H. Treman, Deputy Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, sent out about ten days ago a letter to approximately 1,000 banks and trust companies in this district, requesting them to help mobilize the gold reserves by sending their gold and gold certificates to the Federal Reserve Bank, and taking in exchange Federal reserve notes, the Federal bank agreeing to pay the cost of transportation. Mr. Treman suggested that in sorting out their incoming cash the banks take out the gold certificates and not pay them out over the counter unless specially requested to do so by their customers. The Deputy Governor remarked that estimates showed that approximately $500,000,000 of gold and gold certificates were in general circulation which it was desirable to mobilize and replace with reserve notes so that the gold might be lodged with the Federal Reserve Banks, where it could be utilized as the backbone of note issues.

Fifty-eight Banks Respond.

Yesterday James Freeman Curtis, general counsel and Secretary of the Reserve Bank, announced that the responses to Mr. Treman's letters were "very gratifying." He said that 43 of the 628 member banks had adopted the suggestion and had turned in $1,800,000 of gold and gold certificates, while 15 of some 400 non-member institutions had responded by transferring $842,000. Mr. Curtis said that the figures did not include the deposits made by several New York City trust companies and State banks which had opened accounts with the Federal Bank. Most of the large Wall Street banks which are members of the system transferred the bulk of their gold holdings to the Reserve Bank some time ago, but two national institutions in very close proximity to the vaults of the Reserve Bank still maintain unusually heavy deposits of the precious metal. One of them holds about $10,000,000 and the other about $7,0000,000.

Coal Control—and the Controlled.

There was a striking dissimilarity manifest yesterday between the spirit in which the coal men took the first step in the Administration's control plan, the fixing of prices, and the spirit in which grain and sugar men not long ago took the Food Administrator's plans for their regulation. Not that the coal men seemed unpatriotic or unwilling to "take their medicine," but the enthusiasm, the semi-religious fervor, with which the grain men laid their business on the altar of their country, was not particularly noticeable among them. The fact is that the coal situation is a much more tangled and difficult one than the grain situation. Many coal consumers, enjoying long contracts under which they were getting their coal at prices fixed under the conditions of a year or so ago, do not relish the Government's action in depriving them of their advantage. The producers generally appeared yesterday to regard the new prices as not likely to last long before a revision upward became necessary. About all the President did, according to some of them, was to equalize the situation under which producers were covering their losses on old contracts by "soaking" their new customers.

The New Haven's New Idea.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, despite its troubles, has just started to put in effect what amounts to a new idea in railroading—a central classification yard for its entire system. The new yard is to be at Montowese, or Cedar Hill, near New Haven, and will be the largest in New England. The idea of a classification yard may not be entirely new in itself, but the New Haven yard will be the hub of the whole system, covering most of New England, from all parts of which trains, on all routes, made up of cars for all destinations, will be run to Montowese to be sorted, thus relieving the present terminals and yards on the outposts of the system from much of their present burden. The Montowese yard will be big enough to take the peak load of the whole system without overcrowding. At the same time the plan of a single huge central classification yard is relied on by New Haven officials to simplify compliance with the eight-hour law.

TO SELL $150,000,000 OF BRITISH BILLS

J. P. Morgan & Co. Dispose of $15,000,000 Worth in Less Than an Hour.

SIMILAR OFFERING WEEKLY

Approval of Federal Reserve Board, Which Opposed Sale, Not Asked, but No Trouble Is Expected.

J. P. Morgan & Co., American fiscal agents for the British Government, announced yesterday the initial sale of $15,000,000 of ninety-day British Treasury bills on a 5¼ per cent. basis. The new plan of financing contemplates the offering of approximately $15,000,000 of these short-term bills every week, the total amount of these obligations outstanding at any one time never exceeding $150,000,000.

The proceeds of the sale of the British Treasury bills will be used to reduce the existing demand bank loans of the British Treasury, the total of which has varied and at times has been very large. The offerings of the bills will not be pressed in the market, but a supply will always be on hand up to the weekly limit set. Yesterday the Morgan firm disposed of $15,000,000 in less than an hour, and many applications were received after the bills had all been absorbed. It would have been possible, the bankers said, to have sold two or three times the amount offered. The rate of interest will not be fixed—next week's issue may be slightly higher or slightly lower than 5¼ per cent., depending upon market conditions. The bills will be issued in denomination as low as $5,000 and $10,000, and it is expected that they will have wide distribution throughout the country. When the limit of $150,000,000 is issued new offerings will not be made until the payment of maturing bills reduces the total.

The bills are the direct obligation of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and they are payable in dollars at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York.

The proposal to sell in this country short-term bills of the British Treasury was first made last November, but the plan was abandoned because of objections by the Federal Reserve Board in Washington. Conditions have greatly changed since, especially in view of the fact that the United States is now at war with Germany and is an ally of Great Britain. In a statement issued Nov. 28 the Reserve Board expressed the opinion that there was danger of the banks overinvesting in these bills. It should be noted that at that time the plans contemplated the sale of approximately $1,000,000,000 of bills, while now the total will never exceed $150,000,000. The board's statement read in part as follows:

"It would, therefore, seem, as a consequence, that liquid funds of our banks, which should be available for short credit facilities to our merchants, manufacturers, and farmers, would be exposed to the danger of being absorbed for other purposes to a disproportionate degree, especially in view of the fact that many of our banks and trust companies are already carrying substantial amounts of foreign obligations and of acceptances which they are under agreement to renew. The board deems it, therefore, its duty to caution the member banks that it does not regard it in the interest of the country at this time that they invest in foreign Treasury bills of this character."

The issuance of the above statement stirred up considerable discussion and some criticism, both here and abroad, and the Federal Reserve Board found it advisable to put out a supplementary statement on March 8 of this year. The board said that its earlier statement had been misunderstood, and that it did not intend to convey the idea that it was opposed to further flotations of foreign Government loans in this country.

"So far from objecting to the placing of foreign loans in the American market," the statement read, "it (the board) regards them as a very important, natural, and proper means of settling the balances created in our favor by our large export trade. There are times when such loans should be encouraged as an essential means of maintaining and protecting our foreign trade. * * * The objection then made (in the November statement) by the board was to the undue employment by our banks of their funds in the purchase of foreign loans, and not to the merits of foreign loans as investments. The board was then and is now of the opinion that the liquid condition of our banks should not be impaired through undue or unwise use of their resources for investment operations. The position of the board with respect to this principle has not changed. It still takes the view that foreign borrowings should appeal primarily to the investor and not involve the use of banking resources beyond the limits of sound practice. In view, however, of existing conditions, especially as they affect our foreign trade, the board deems it desirable and in the public interest to remove any misconception that may be left in the minds of those who read the statement issued on the 28th of November, 1916. Since that date the country's gold reserve has been further materially strengthened and supplies a broad basis for additional credit."

The announcement of the offering of British Treasury bills was made yesterday by Thomas Cochran, one of the Morgan partners. He was asked if the approval of the Federal Reserve Board had been obtained. "We have not asked them," he replied, adding that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who is Chairman and ex-officio member of the board, had seen no objection to the plan.

Bankers generally commented favorably on the sale of Treasury bills, and pointed out the advantage of having the existing demand loans of no fixed maturity converted into short-term obligations, which are so much more liquid. It was said that Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, was much pleased with the new financing arrangement.

While the British Treasury bills are not available for rediscount at the Federal Reserve Banks, they are acceptable as collateral security for the deposit of Government funds.

The British Treasury bills have no relation to the advances made by the United States Government to the British Government. The former will replace outstanding bank loans, while the latter are used for the payment of supplies purchased in this country.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.

Increased dealings in September wheat were inspired by the ruling of the Chicago Board of Trade Directors that holders of future contracts at Chicago are to liquidate and not await the delivery of actual grain, this being in accord with the desire of the Food Administrator, so that the entire handling of wheat will be in his hands after Sept. 1. Prices declined 5 cents a bushel and closed 4 cents net lower. Cash wheat was firmer, however, especially in the Northwest, with a good demand reported at Minneapolis, while harvesting weather was reported favorable in the weekly Government report. Broomhall cables said supplies of wheat were adequate, exporting countries offering freely, and the floating quantity liberal. Demand for flour continues, with import arrivals fair. Very little export demand was reported.

CORN.

Under active selling pressure induced by rains over a large part of the belt, and especially in the Ohio Valley, corn displayed notable forenoon weakness, declining about 2c a bushel, which forced December contracts off to $1.06⅞. At this level covering orders appeared, due to the firmness of oats and to complaints in a number of reports about a late crop, and prices rallied, eventually recovering most of their loss, the close being only ½c net lower. Cash corn in the West was higher, St. Louis reporting an advance of 6 to 7c. Here the cash market was irregular, No. 2 yellow being quoted at 1.88½ and No. 2 mixed 1.80, both cash, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

On the idea that rains through the West would delay threshing and check the movement, oats were generally firm and closed ½c net higher. Cash oats were firmer at some of the Western markets, but easier here, closing as follows: Standard, 68@69c; No. 2 white, 69½; No. 3 white, 67@68c; No. 4 white, 66@67c; fancy white clipped, 70@71c; ordinary, white clipped, 68@70c.

PROVISIONS.

As a result of lower prices for hogs and liquidation due to rumors of an embargo on shipments of meats, &c., the provision market was weak and lower throughout most of the session yesterday. Some covering in the afternoon followed reports that there would be no immediate embargo placed on meats, but the undertone was very unsettled. Hog packing amounted to 261,000 for the week, against 487,000 last year. Receipts at Chicago were 14,000 hogs, with 13,000 expected today, while Kansas City had 4,000 and Omaha 8,000 hogs.

SUGAR.

The market for refined sugar was unchanged, but there was only a moderate business reported, as buyers were inclined to hold off. With the new beet sugar crop only a month off, and with uncertainty as to the probable course by Washington in connection with the sugar situation, buyers were inclined to limit operations and await developments. Prices ranged from 8.40 to 9c for fine granulated. Raw sugar was firm at the close, with the spot price advanced to 7.46c delivered. Arbuckle bought 10,000 bags of Cubas, prompt shipment, at 6⅛c, cost and freight, and 7,500 bags afloat at the same price. September shipment Cubas, however, were available at 6⅝c, cost and freight, and it was even thought possible that bids under this price might result in business. Full duty sugars were also offered at concessions, 6⅛c, cost, insurance, and freight being asked by sellers without attracting any demand. Closing prices were 6⅛c for Cubas, cost and freight, equal to 7.46c for centrifugal and 6.58c for molasses.

COFFEE.

The coffee market showed very little change during yesterday's trading. This is the season of the year when crop scares are likely, and it seems that this fact, combined with the talk of peace prospects, has encouraged some scattered buying of the late months. The market showed a slightly easier tone in the late trading, owing to the favorable early weather news and talk of freer cost and freight offerings. Closing prices were 1 to 3 points lower, and sales included, exchanges were 27,500 bags. The local spot market continued quiet, with quotations on the basis of 9⅛c for Rio 7s and 10⅛c for Santos 4s. COTTONSEED OIL.

Considerable weakness was shown in cottonseed oil yesterday, following the declines in lard and cotton, and the market closed 14 to 28 points net lower. Commission house selling on a liberal scale was inspired also by expectations of a bearish Government report on the amount crushed. Final prices were about the lowest of the session. Total sales 26,000 barrels. Range of prices:

BIG DROP IN COTTON

Active Months Decline $3.50 a Bale from Tuesday's Closing Prices.

The cotton market yesterday suffered a severe decline, active months breaking approximately $3.50 a bale from Tuesday's closing prices. December contracts sold off to 23.15c., the lowest price touched since they sold at 27.14c. toward the end of June, and more than 3 cents a pound below the high level of two weeks ago. December closed at 23.29c., with the general list closing steady at a net loss of 54 to 65 points.

The market was nervous and irregular during the early trading. An opening decline of 1 to 10 points was followed by a slight rally on buying which was supposed to represent the replacement of long hedges which had been liquidated last week for Japanese account. As soon as this demand slackened the market eased off again, and again rallied right after the publication of the weekly weather report. This read less favorably than expected.

The market became very weak during the afternoon. The decline was accompanied by reiterated reports that farmers showed a disposition to market their cotton as rapidly as it became available, and renewed claims that the basis was already weakening as a result of increased new crop offerings. Except for covering on a scale down there seemed to be very little support around the ring, but the close was several points up from the lowest.

Reports from Liverpool that the British Government had fixed ocean freight rates for cotton on the basis of $5 a hundred from New York to the English market, attracted considerable attention. The rate, it was said, had been fixed subject to two months' notice of revision, and while it was just about in line with prevailing quotations, it seemed somewhat of a disappointment to some of the local traders. There had been an idea that the reports of increased tonnage available would be followed by a decline in the rates during September.

Further crop complaints were received from drouthy sections of the Southwest, with no rain in sight, but these features were entirely overshadowed by the bearish idea of the effect of increasing receipts.

Exports for the day were 9,589 bales, making 226,268 so far this season, against 272,242 last year.

Following are yesterday's quotations:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Nearly 85,000 shares of United States Steel common were dealt in on the Consolidated Exchange. That stock, like the rest of the list, was under pressure from the opening of business. The drastic cut in the price of bituminous coal decided upon by the Administration came as a shock to Wall Street. Bethlehem Steel B was weak at the start of the day, but recorded an exceptional rally in the afternoon.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

The rumor of an interesting deal in the lower Wall Street section which will result in an important building improvement was current yesterday in downtown realty circles. The properties for which it was said negotiations are practically closed include those at 114, 116, and 118 Wall Street, owned respectively by Frederick O. Spedden, John E. Berwind, and Clara Gerken; 63 and 64 South Street, acquired a few days ago by the Lawyers' Realty Company from the Goodhue estate; 65 to 68 South Street, owned by John N. A. Griswold; 97 and 99 Pine Street and 125 Front Street, also owned by Mr. Griswold. The parcel at 62 South Street is also said to be involved in the pending deal. It was recently purchased by Joseph F. Cullman. The properties are within the block bounded by Wall, Pine, Front, and South Streets.

The Charles F. Noyes Company, which was said to be the broker in accumulating the plottage, declined to discuss the matter.

$1,000,000 Deal in the East Bronx.

One of the largest recent deals in the East Bronx was closed yesterday when a portion of the old baseball park known as Bronx Oval was sold by the Simpson estate, which had held the property since 1856. At that time William Simpson purchased a tract of about seventeen acres in the immediate vicinity for $17,000. The property just sold, which contains a little more than an acre, was held at $350,000.

The buyer is the Olds Holding Corporation, Louis Davis, President. It has a frontage of 357 feet on Southern Boulevard and 163d Street. The Southern Boulevard lots are 200 feet deep and the 163d Street lots 108 feet, and contain an area of over seventeen lots.

It is reported that negotiations are pending for the improvement of the Southern Boulevard front with a large motion-picture theatre building and stores. The theatre will have a seating capacity of 3,000 people. The extra depth on Southern Boulevard will be utilized for a large open-air theatre.

The D. and D. Land and Improvement Corporation, a client of J. Clarence Davies, has purchased the corner of the tract bought by the Olds corporation. It is located at the foot of the 163d Street subway station, and fronts about 210 feet on the circle, containing about six lots. A one-story taxpayer will be erected on the site immediately by the buyer.

Over a $1,000,000 is involved in the entire transaction. The S. Brener Company negotiated the sale and resale.

Mrs. Charlotte Darling of Washington, D. C., has purchased for a permanent home the residence of Walter J. Berbecker, at 212 Abingdon Road, Kew Gardens, L. I. The property consists of a large Colonial dwelling, on a plot 75 by 125. Slawson & Hobbs negotiated the sale.

American Car and Foundry Company Makes $170,000 Lease.

The American Car and Foundry Company, which occupies the entire twenty-third and part of the twenty-fourth floor in the City Investing Building, 165 Broadway, is about to consolidate in this city several of its departments now located in St. Louis, and, being unable to obtain in the City Investing Building sufficient additional space for that purpose, has secured, through Manning & Trunk, as brokers, a lease of the entire westerly half of the seventeenth floor of the Hudson Terminal Building, 30 Church Street, which it will occupy as soon as necessary alterations are completed.

The lease, which is for a term of something over five years, is at the rate of approximately $30,000 per annum and aggregates a total of about $170,000.

The Cross & Brown Company leased the store and basement 15 and 17 West Thirty-sixth Street to Seligman A. Meyers for a term of years.

MAY CALL MITCHEL IN DREAMLAND CASE

Grand Jury Expected to Question Estimate Board Members Who Approved Sale.

FRANK BAILEY EXAMINED

Assistant District Attorney Black Finds Rockaway Park Property "Sea of Sand."

From the course taken by the Grand Jury investigation into the sale of the Dreamland property to the city it became apparent yesterday that most of the members of the Board of Estimate which authorized the purchase in 1913, including Mayor Mitchel, who was then President of the Board of Aldermen, would probably be summoned to explain the various alleged irregularities which William Bullock, Tammany's investigating agent and director of the Bureau of City Inquiry, declares he discovered in that particular transaction.

It was understood yesterday that the testimony before the Grand Jury with respect to the Dreamland purchase was of such a nature as to make it necessary to call both the Mayor and Controller Prendergast. Other members of the Board of Estimate of 1913 who may be called before the Grand Jury with Mitchel and Prendergast are George McAneny, who was then President of the Borough of Manhattan; Cyrus Miller, President of the Bronx, and Lewis H. Pounds, President of the Borough of Brooklyn. William J. Gaynor, who was Mayor of New York at that time, did not vote on the proposition. Cyrus Miller protested against the purchase.

Frank Bailey, Vice President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, appeared before the Grand Jury yesterday. He was asked on the previous day to bring records which would confirm ex-Senator Reynolds's statement that he had sold to Mr. Bailey his share in the Neponsit Realty Company before the company entered into the Rockaway Park transaction with the city. According to Mr. Reynolds, he received from Mr. Bailey a check of $43,000 and a tenth interest in a mining enterprise. Although Mr. Bailey brought with him a package of papers and records, neither he nor Assistant District Attorney Black would say whether or not they contained the check or any papers proving the transfer to Mr. Bailey of Mr. Reynolds's interests in the Neponsit Realty Company.

"I cannot discuss my testimony," said Mr. Bailey. "It is contrary to the law to do so, and I do not think it right to make any inferences. In a few days, however, I may be in a position to make a public statement."

On Tuesday night Assistant District Attorney William Harmon Black inspected the Rockaway Park property, which was sold to the city by the Neponsit Realty Company at $5,032 an acre. In going through the property he said his machine was stuck in the mud three times. Asked to give his opinion of the property, he said: "It's nothing but a withered waste of mud and sand."

WOOL TRADE SEEKS ORDERS

Have Submitted Their Samples to the Government Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The American Wool and Cotton Reporter will say tomorrow:

"Waiting on the part of the dealers to see if the wools offered will be accepted by the Government has made the wool market rather quiet for the last week. Large amounts of wool have been offered, and it is understood that the Federal Committee is busy working on samples. Some sales of wool to manufacturers who have had Government orders have taken place independent of the proposition to sell through the Government.

"The next cotton condition report from the Government is looked forward to with great interest. It is confidently expected that it will be higher than 70.3. The only place where the crop is not in pretty good condition is in some parts of Texas.

"The activity in the woolen goods market is limited, and while quite a number of new offerings of fine fabrics have been made, buyers do not appear interested. There are few buyers in the market and little activity in fine fabrics could be expected. The tailors are in the market, but they are in no position to purchase any quantity of fine fabrics.

"The cotton goods market has remained steady, with prices practically at the same levels previously noted. From an ordinary distribution standpoint the market is dull. It is only the pressing needs of the Government, the export trade, and the shortage of operatives which has created the relatively strong situation, and there are many predictions that the market will have a bad break should any of the conditions now noted change."

JUSTICE
"Any policy of public regulation of railways that does not stimulate the production of transportation by attracting new capital savings is manifestly an uneconomic policy and opposed to the public interest."
Outlook, July 25, 1917.

An Economic Necessity

THE country's business is growing faster than its railroads. It has been so for 15 years.

This cannot continue without irreparable injury to commerce and industry.

The New York Central Lines
"America's Greatest Railway System"

are looking and planning ahead.

Expenditures by these lines involving hundreds of millions of dollars will be necessary in the next few years to meet the demand for increased transportation facilities.

The money may come partly from earnings; but most of it must come from public investment.

The public will invest only when assured a reasonable return.

Governmental regulation must therefore be such as to attract new capital savings.

The railroads must be permitted to charge rates that will earn a return sufficient to cover the constantly mounting costs of operation, pay interest on bonds, reasonable dividends on stock and provide a surplus for equipment, improvements and extensions.

Save Money Now On Hudson Super-Six

Many former $1200 to $1400 cars now cost about as much as a Hudson Super-Six.

Price has always been a fairly accurate index of quality. But just now, because of the headlong rising of material costs, price is not a true indication of value. Fifty-one cars have been forced to advance prices 20% to 25%.

The present supply of Hudson Super-Sixes is built from materials contracted last year. Since then material costs have almost doubled. When that supply of materials is exhausted, then Hudsons, too, must cost more. By prompt buying you can save the difference between what a Hudson Super-Six now costs and what it must certainly have to cost when its price is influenced by the present material market.

When former cheaper cars could be bought at $200 to $300 less than the Super-Six, no two of them had sales equal to those of the Hudson. That shows how popular the Super-Six has always been as compared to other cars. It is easy to imagine how much more popular it will be now that there is no such price advantage. The Hudson Super-Six has made itself the wanted car as compared with others.

It is the largest selling fine car. Almost 40,000 are in daily use. It has established itself as the lifetime car.
